TRIBUNE'S JOB SURVEY

The second section of The Tribune's survey to ascertain the effect of reconversion on Chicago area plants appears today on page 7. The third section will be published tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 [Special]—The nation plunged full speed along the reconversion route today as a Nov. 1 end to home delivery restrictions was announced, and government agencies struck off major shackles on railroad and truck travel, home construction, and raw materials for industry.

Restrictions on salary increases in the $5,000 a year and higher brackets also were rescinded. [Story on page 23.]

Measures designed to carry the nation 75 per cent of the way out of the labyrinth of war time controls were announced as follows:

DELIVERIES

The office of defense transportation announced that Nov. 1 it will end its restrictions on delivery of retail goods to American homes by motor trucks as well as restrictions on wholesale deliveries. Under existing delivery curbs Sunday deliveries have been almost eliminated, milk deliveries cut to every other day, laundry and dry cleaning to once a week, and retail delivery of packages under five pounds has been banned.

RAILROAD TRAVEL

The government lifted its ban on holiday and seasonal vacation trains, effective immediately, clearing the way for Labor day travel. It also dropped a restriction against operating trains filled to less than 35 per cent of capacity.

For the present a general freeze on passenger train schedules will remain in effect, the ODT said. This will limit restoration of holiday and resort trains to those operated regularly in season before the freeze, it was said. Railroads estimated at least 50 seaside and resort trains will go back into service.

METAL CONTROLS

The war production board announced revocation as of Sept. 30 of its intricate master system of regulating the flow of steel, copper, and aluminum, the so-called "controled materials plan," whereby army, navy, and civilian agencies got rations of metal which they rationed in turn to contractors, who passed it down the line to subcontractors.

Steel men for months have been asking for an end to CMP, contending it interfered with production by preventing them from giving customers only enough for immediate needs and filling the rest of the order later.

PRIORITIES

The WPB said it would scrap its whole series of priority ratings, such as AA-1, AA-2, AA-3, etc., effective Sept. 30, substituting a simple system for emergency and military needs and for elimination of bottlenecks.

An AAA rating will be retained for emergency use, it was said, and the other ratings will be "MM" for

One Worlder Slaps at U. S. Stir Libonati

BY CARL WIEGMAN

A veteran American Legion official, exasperated by slurs on his country's policies, spoke up for the United States yesterday at an emotion charged hearing before a subcommittee of the house committee on immigration and naturalization in the new postoffice building.

Elliodor Libonati

The witness, Elliodor Libonati, chairman of the Americanism commission, Illinois department of the Legion, testified after he had heard Russell Ballard, director of Hull House, and Edith Abbott, dean of the school of social service administration, University of Chicago, argue that American immigration restrictions were detrimental to the best interests of the world.

For Free Movement of Peoples

"I am a citizen of the world," Ballard declaimed. "I'd like to see a free movement of peoples thruout the world."

Miss Abbott contended that because the United States is one of the thinly populated countries of the world, it should open its doors freely to all nations.

Libonati was pale and tense when he followed them to the witness stand.

"During the last few minutes of this hearing there has been an attempt to put America on trial," he said quietly. "It appears to me that America has been tried and has carried out its duties and obligations to the world. It should not be insinuated that America has failed in its obligations."

Explains Legion's Stand

Libonati then explained the stand of the American Legion on immigration, tracing the organization's official views from 1937, when it opposed any lessening of restrictions, to 1944, when it urged that all immigrants be barred until all war veterans have obtained jobs and until unemployment has dropped to less than 1 million persons.

Asked for his views on what should be done about the German quota of immigrants under the present law, he responded:

"The existing German quota should be dropped and the 27,000 presently admissible annually should not be permitted entry."

Sharp Answer to Chairman

Rep. Dickstein [D., N. Y.], chairman of the subcommittee, remarked that he had attended Legion conventions and doubted that the delegates knew what they were voting about. Libonati flared:

"Don't forget, Mr. Chairman, the Legion acts thru committees just as congress does," he said. "But legislation comes from the grass roots of the Legion posts."

Disagreement on this point was expressed by the next witness, Edward F. Rothkirch u Trach, who identified himself as executive secretary of the Central European Rehabilitation association and an honorably discharged veteran of the present war. He asserted that Legion policies were fashioned by small pressure groups within the organization.

RIGHTS OF VETS TO JOBS WILL EXPIRE: HERSHEY

Boston, Mass., Aug. 22 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Hershey, director of selective service, said tonight that the legal right of war veterans for the return of their peace-time civilian jobs would expire when congress declares an end to hostilities—which he said would automatically suspend some provisions of the selective service law—including the job security clause.

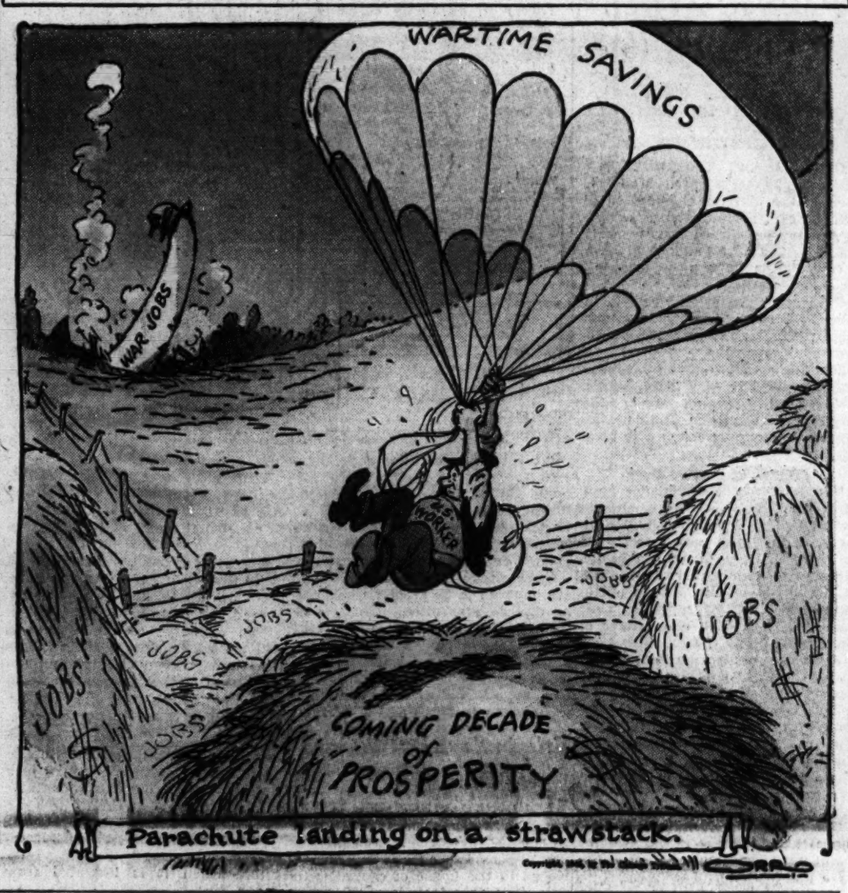
[In Washington the war department made no comment on Hershey's statement.]

He made the statement in addressing 300 draft board officials.

The job guarantee was contained in the selective service law adopted by congress, which he said, "was passed, not for all time, but for what was thought might be a year's training period."

Questioned after the meeting, Hershey said that the so-called GI bill of rights was concerned with job opportunities, and not with job return.

THE SHOCK SHOULDN'T BE SO GREAT



HERO IS EVICTED BY SWANK CAFE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—An Arkansas farmer reported today that his family, including his red haired soldier son, winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, was asked to leave the dining room of a swanky hotel last night.

The affair reverberated clear up to the White House, where President Truman will present the medal tomorrow to Sgt. James Hendrix Jr., 20, of Lepanto, Ark. Hendrix was cited for wiping out, single-handed, two German artillery positions and saving the lives of three wounded comrades in Germany.

The father, James Hendrix Sr., told a reporter that the dining room wasn't crowded.

"I guess it was just because we didn't have on fine enough clothes," he said.

Told to Leave Place

"We walked in and started to sit down when a man—I don't know who he was—came up and said we were in the wrong place, and would have to leave," Hendrix said, "so we just backed up and left. My wife felt pretty bad about it, tho.

"Afterward, we went across the street and got our dinner in a cafeteria. It was kind of crowded, tho."

Hendrix said he was not wearing a coat, but that the omission was not mentioned to him.

He said the sergeant was in uniform and was wearing his overseas ribbon.

The sergeant's cousin, Mrs. Andrew Waldo, a service man's wife, was the fourth member of the party.

Reported to White House

The elder Hendrix said the hotel was the Willard, where the party is staying. Michael Derkacz, executive assistant manager of the hotel, said he had no comment.

An assistant in the office of Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.], reported the incident to the White House. An army officer was instructed to place himself at the family's disposal for the remainder of their stay in Washington.

The elder Hendrix said, however, that he declined the officer's offer to act as an escort.

The war department said in a statement that the Hendrix party was met at the railroad station and escorted to the hotel by an army officer who apprised the hotel management of the group's arrival.

Huge Plane Caravan Gathers on Okinawa for Tokyo Trek

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OKINAWA, Aug. 22—It is just like a convention at Kadena air field here today. Last minute delegates are arriving from Cairo, Egypt; from Edinburgh, Scotland; from Miami, Fla.; from Karachi, India, and Sydney, Australia. "From all over the world," the air transport command says with proper shelving of modesty.

The object is the assembly of the biggest force of four engined transports the world has ever known, presumably to carry occupation forces to Japan. This new air line from Okinawa to Tokyo is going to open with what can, in all truthfulness, be called a flourish. The C-54 [Skymaster] planes are spread over a two square mile area.

Just a few minutes ago some boys from Paris set down on this air field which, but for the end of the war, would be projecting Super Forts to Tokyo.

What, No Champagne?

Five days ago these Paris GIs came back from a stroll along the Champs Elysees to receive orders to come here in a hurry. Already they are in the doghouse. It took only two minutes for the parched Southwest Pacific GIs to learn the Paris planes brought no champagne.

"Afterward, we went across the street and got our dinner in a cafeteria. It was kind of crowded, tho."

Never before have so many people come so far from so many places so fast.

Last week ATC planes were flying routes totaling 160,000 miles daily. That's about six times around the world. Twenty-three times every day planes left western Pacific terminals when the need came to open a line to Tokyo in a hurry and in strength. The ATC called in all but skeleton forces from its global spiderweb. As a result the planes here today could probably haul more passengers than all the planes on all domestic air lines operating in the United States today.

Ground Crews Arrive

Not only have planes been moved but also ground crews. Several thousand ATC personnel have been brought to Okinawa for this gala air line premier.

One result of this mass movement of transport planes has been a big cut in mail hauling. The ATC for several months has been delivering mail to just about any place in the world in from seven to 10 days. Now it's just kerplunk. You can't have Tokyo and mail, too.

The new air line to Tokyo is 980 miles long. Flying it takes about four hours and 45 minutes in these giant skyliners which, with 40 passengers, weigh over 35 tons. This includes also 3,600 gallons of gasoline, enough for about 13 hours' flight.

Auxiliary Arrives, Too

A luxury transport with seats, rugs, and curtains just now pulled up and flight nurses, some in blue and some in khaki, came down the ladder. The auxiliary had arrived, adding to the convention atmosphere.

For a few minutes the assemblage got a big kick out of this show of femininity. But something apparently went wrong because they were bundled back on the plane.

O, well, there have been stag conventions before.

Yanks' Franc Bonus Irks French

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 22—It looked today as tho the French treasury chest from which many millions are to be distributed to American soldiers in the form of 850 franc monthly bonuses might turn out to be a box of trouble for the provisional government.

French army barracks were in a state of effervescence, for at the same time that the Yanks were informed of the bonus the "poilus" learned they were to get a pay cut. British soldiers on the Paris boulevards also started beefing: "Why no extra francs for us?"

Since June 24, French soldier pay has been cut to less than one-fourth, according to the Official Gazette. The French private got from 27 to 35 francs daily and now he gets six francs. A corporal who got 43 now gets eight. A sergeant's pay was 90 francs but now is 10. The explanation given by the war ministry is that the budget had to be cut and that peace time pay should be less than that of war time.

The soldiers are airing their opinions in view of the fact that the Americans are getting a bounty of francs, and declaring to all and sundry the French equivalent of "it ain't right."

And a British soldier on leave in Paris said: "It makes me hot under the collar. The old British Tommy has been rooked again."

Other remarks from British soldiers were: "It's a scandal. The Yanks always seem to get any advantage there is in an allied country. The pound is as much under valued as the dollar compared with the purchasing power of the franc."

Formosa Also to Be Taken Over

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 22 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops will occupy the former British crown colony of Hong Kong, the Japanese island of Formosa, northern French Indo-China, and a small part of Thailand [Siam], Chinese surrender terms to the Japanese disclosed today.

[British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said Monday that the British had "taken steps to receive the surrender of Japanese forces" in Hong Kong, and expressed confidence that Hong Kong would be returned to the British "in agreement with our Chinese and American allies."]

British authorities in Chungking declined comment on the inclusion of Hong Kong as one of the areas to be occupied by Chinese troops.

A Chinese army spokesman declared Hong Kong was in the China theater and the high command "naturally assumes responsibility to accept the Japanese surrender there."

Chiang Studies Issue

A foreign office spokesman, K. C. Wu, said the entire issue is under consideration by Chiang, who is expected to announce a decision on the "problem" within a few days.

Details of the deployment of Chinese occupation troops were disclosed in a memorandum handed to the Japanese at Chihkiang by Gen. Ho Ying-chin, Chinese field commander.

Ho's memorandum set out that Chinese troops would occupy Formosa, that part of Indo-China north of the 16th degree of latitude and a portion of Thailand, which lies between Burma and Indo-China.

British in Indo-China

British troops will land in southern Indo-China as an occupying force.

[A British foreign office commentator in London said France was not "at the moment in physical position to take over the responsibilities of administering" French Indo-China when it is liberated. He emphasized that the French will take over administration "as soon as they are in a position to do so."]

The Chinese have not indicated any desire to claim any portion of Indo-China.

[A Tokyo broadcast said Chinese troops had entered Caobang, 15 miles inside Indo-China and were advancing toward the capital city of Hanoi, 110 miles farther south.]

Gen. Ho's memorandum specified also that Gen. Fah Wei-chang would take over Canton, the Luichow peninsula, and Hainan Island.

Japs Given Orders

The Japanese surrender delegation was headed by Maj. Gen. Tako Imai, who was told that he must provide descriptions of all Japanese

Report Big 3 Join to Block War in China

BY HANSON W. BALDWIN

[Military analyst of the New York Times]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22—Joint political action by the United States, Britain, and Russia to halt incipient civil war in China, and the joint occupation of Korea by Russia, the United States, Britain, and China are impending, authoritative sources here say.

Manchuria to China

Inner Mongolia and Manchuria, now being occupied by Russian armies, will eventually come under Chinese sovereignty, at least in principle, under the terms of the recent agreement reached at Moscow by Premier T. V. Soong of China. The Russians will acquire 50 per cent of control over the Chinese Eastern and South Manchurian railways. Port Arthur will again become a Russian naval and military base and half of the docks and commercial facilities of Dairen, ice free port 20 miles north of Port Arthur, probably will be reserved for Russian commercial use.

Probably the most pressing immediate problem in the orient is the Chungking-Yenan controversy, which, authorities here are well aware, must be prevented from developing into actual civil war if that in any way is possible. A joint demarche or declaration to Yenan, and perhaps to Chungking, by the United States, Britain, and Russia is recognized as the most desirable way of avoiding civil war and undoubtedly will be undertaken, if Russia will join in such action.

Eased by Treaty

However, the situation in Manchuria, Korea, and northeastern Asia, has been temporarily eased by the recent treaty between the Russians and Chinese drawn at Moscow, by discussions at the Potsdam conference and elsewhere and by surrender and occupation plans subscribed to by the victor powers.

Under the terms of those agreements, Korea will be placed under a trusteeship with the eventual goal independence. Russian sovereignty will be extended, as expected, to all of Sakhalin Island and to the Kurile Islands between Hokkaido and Kamchatka.

START MAKING NYLON YARN FOR CIVILIAN USE

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 22 (AP)—E. I. du Pont de Nemours company has begun capacity production of nylon yarn for civilian use at its Seaford, Del., and Martinsville, Va., plants, it was announced tonight.

The company said the present capacity, now substantially above the pre-war level, is sufficient to produce enough yarn to make an estimated 360,000,000 pairs of ladies' hosiery annually—enough to provide 11 pairs a year for every woman in America. Yarn production for other uses is being increased rapidly, it added.

To Build Up Stockpile

New York, Aug. 22 [Special]—Altho nylon yarn for women's stockings will be released to manufacturers within the week, retail sales are not expected to begin until 3,000,000 dozen pairs are in stock, which will be by Christmas, the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers announced today.

The purpose of the delay is to avoid black market diversions and to keep sales orderly, a spokesman for the association said.

U. S. S. MISSOURI MIGHTIEST SHIP IN VICTORY FLEET

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—The battleship Missouri, selected as the site for the signing of Japan's surrender, symbolizes the might which the United States navy brought against the Japanese. The 45,000 ton warship, along with her three sisters of the Iowa class, is the largest in the world.

The battleship was commissioned June 11, 1944, with Capt. William M. Callaghan, Oakland, Cal., as her first skipper.

JAPS WILL SIGN DOCUMENT ON U.S.S. MISSOURI

MacArthur Forces to Land Tuesday

MANILA, Aug. 23 [Thursday]—(AP)—Japan's surrender will be signed aboard the battleship Missouri in Tokyo bay Aug. 31, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

It was the first official word on the site of the signing. The 45,000 ton battleship participated with Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet last month in bombarding Japan.

Signing the instrument of surrender for the allies will be: United States, Adm. Nimitz; United Kingdom, Adm. Bruce Fraser; Australia, Gen. Thomas Blamey; Netherlands East Indies, Lt. Gen. L. H. Van Oyen; Russia, Lt. Gen. Kuzma Nikolaevech Derevyanko; China, Gen. Hsu Yung-chang; France, Gen. Jacques Le Clerc. Canadian and New Zealand signers remain to be designated. It had already been announced that Gen. MacArthur will sign for all the allies.

Arriving by Plane

MacArthur confirmed Tokyo reports that he would arrive by plane in Japan next Tuesday, weather permitting, with powerful allied sea and air forces.

The supreme allied commander of occupation forces also announced details of the precise instructions sent the Japanese for evacuating key areas, disarming ships and coastal defenses and providing direct assistance to the landing forces.

In his midnight announcment to correspondents, MacArthur said that members of the Japanese imperial general staff had been alerted to be on hand from 6 a. m. D-day [4 p. m. Monday, Chicago time] to meet the allied commander for immediate settlement of occupation problems.

MacArthur will accompany air borne forces which will land at Atsugi airdrome, 10 miles southwest of Tokyo, in a vast convoy of transport planes covered by fighters and bombers. The exact landing time was not announced.

Will Use Yokosuka Base

Simultaneously, landing craft such as have put thousands of fighting Americans ashore on many Pacific islands will land marines and bluejackets at the famous Yokosuka naval base, on Tokyo bay approximately 15 miles southeast of Atsugi air field.

MacArthur said the American forces later will utilize this vital Japanese base, which the enemy has always closely guarded.

[Domei news agency said in a Tokyo broadcast the first occupational troops probably would number 50,000 or 60,000. Domei reiterated a previous claim that the first allied air borne landings at Atsugi airdrome would be made Sunday, as announced Tuesday by Japanese imperial headquarters. Domei said all local civil administration in the occupation area would remain in Japanese hands, and urged the people to remain calm. The agency warned that the people must bear in mind that the allied force "will occupy our mainland fully equipped and armed." Domei said the withdrawal of Japanese troops already is under way.]

Great allied fleet units will stand in Japanese waters bulwarking the landings while disarmed Japanese ships remain immobilized, except for piloting or other guide craft.

Fifth Fleet Represented

The famed United States 5th fleet [interchangeable with the 3d fleet] will participate in the landings on Japan. Adm. Raymond A. Spruance and his amphibious task force commander, Rear Adm. Theodore F. Wilkinson, concluded a series of conferences with officials at headquarters of the United States 7th fleet and with MacArthur, and then returned to the 5th fleet to prepare for the forthcoming Japanese operations.

The entire landing area will be cleared of all Japanese military personnel and the great coastal defense guns will be made harmless by having their breechlocks removed.

Japanese civil police and gen-darmerie remaining in the area will be equipped only with small arms and will be on duty to act in case of sniping or possible demonstrations by recalcitrant fanatics.

Skill to Make Landings

The American landing forces will be in full combat equipment and will be ready for any eventuality. The operation will be handled as a regular combat operation.

Entry into Tokyo was not mentioned in the instructions.

Atsugi, a former military air base, is believed to be far inferior to usual American standards. It may require considerable pilot skill, therefore, to safely conclude such a daring and large operation.

All day and for some time thereafter planes will drone over Atsugi bringing landing forces and supplies.

The army will swing into the well drilled routine of establishing camps, outposts, and the like. Veteran marines will do the same around the heavily blasted Yokosuka.

Aerial photographs indicate most of the landing areas were badly bombed and damaged by American air raids.

It is understood that many other units are slated to enter Japan in subsequent days and that the entire occupation probably will be lengthy just for the physical accomplishment of transferring thousands of troops ashore.

Medical Units Go Along

Indicative of future landings, MacArthur's instructions mentioned Sagami bay, which was not included in his announcement of operations scheduled for Aug. 28.

It was understood that the landing forces will be accompanied by medical and Red Cross units ready to seek out and administer assistance to war prisoners and civilian internees. Several concentration camps are known to be maintained in the Tokyo area.

Headquarters estimated that 32,000 allied prisoners of war are detained in Japan. They will be returned immediately to hospitals in the Philippines as soon as they can be released.

MacArthur set a deadline as of 6 p. m. Friday [4 a. m. Chicago time] for requirements of the Japanese, as follows:

All military, naval, and civilian planes to stay out of the air.

Military, naval, and merchant vessels in Japanese waters to make no movements to be maintained without damage. Excepted were merchant craft under 100 tons engaged in civilian supply activities.

Ships and Subs to Report

Japanese or Japanese controled ships at sea must report their positions to the nearest United States, British or soviet radio station; must then proceed to the port named by the commander in chief of the United States fleet with lights burning.

Japanese submarines must remain on the surface, report their positions, fly a black pennant and show lights, and proceed to Guam, Midway Island or the Philippines.

The safety and well being of all united nations prisoners of war and civilian internees must be "scrupulously preserved" and delivery of supplies dropped to the prisoners and internees must be insured.

MacArthur ordered that, effective at 6 p. m. Aug. 27 [Japanese time], the great Yokosuka base be prepared "for occupation and possible operation by United States naval units."

Japanese Provide Pilots

To insure safe entry into Tokyo bay one Japanese ship will meet United States naval units more than 20 miles off shore and lead them into Sagami bay, just outside Tokyo bay. The Japanese also will provide 12 pilots to conduct certain forces into Tokyo bay.

Beginning at 6 a. m. Saturday [4 p. m. Friday, Chicago time], allied forces will conduct day and night surveillance flights over Japanese controled areas and drop supplies for war prisoners and internees; naval forces will occupy coastal waters of Japan and naval forces may start minesweeping operations in any of eight specified ports, including Osaka, Tsingtao, Shanghai, Canton, Hong Kong, and Singapore.

May Use Some Planes

MacArthur directed the Japanese to provide adequate accommodations, billets, camp area facilities, and utilities for the supreme commander. They are to supply 125 local guides and interpreters familiar with the area.

A request from Japanese imperial headquarters for permission to use unarmed planes in executing surrender terms was granted by MacArthur, who stipulated that the aircraft so used be held to a minimum with the planes marked by red pennants.

MacArthur also informed the Japanese government that representatives of Australia, Canada, France, The Netherlands and New Zealand will join those of the big four nations in signing the surrender document.

MacArthur disclosed that the Japanese already have a copy of the surrender document they will be required to sign.

Presumably the instrument was merely handed to the emissaries for transmission to the imperial authorities in Tokyo, since Lt. Gen. Kawabe, head of the mission, had the sole role of accepting instructions without negotiating.

Tokyo radio avoided the word "surrender" as it reported the "truce agreement."

U. S. IDENTIFIES 4 TOKYO RAIDERS FREED IN CHINA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—The war department today announced the names of four Doolittle raid flyers who have been released from a Japanese prison camp at Peiping. They are:

1st Lt. Chase J. Neilsen, whose mother, Mrs. Floyd Neilsen, lives at Hurum, Utah.

Sgt. Jacob D. Deshazer, whose mother, Mrs. Hulda Audrus, lives in Madras, Ore.

Eight Captured by Japs

The four were among eight who took part in the 1942 raid on Tokyo led by Lt. Gen. Doolittle and were captured by the Japanese when forced down in enemy territory.

[Earlier dispatches identified the other four as Lt. William G. Farrow, Washington, D. C.; Lt. Robert J. Meder, Lakewood, O.; Lt. Dean E. Hallmark, Dallas, Tex., and Sgt. Harold A. Spatz, Lebo, Kas. President Roosevelt announced March 18, 1943, that the United States had learned that the Japanese had imposed the death penalty upon the airmen after their capture. He said the sentence had been commuted for some but carried out for others.]

Details of Rescue Lacking

The war department said it had no details on the rescue of the men, altho it reported that Lt. Barr is hospitalized.

The office of strategic services in Chungking reported yesterday that the four had been liberated by a "humanitarian" team which parachuted into Peiping. The OSS said that one was in a serious condition from beri-beri, and this man may have been Barr. Beri-beri, a vitamin deficiency caused by lack of a balanced diet, results in swelling and paralysis.

SISTER AWAITS BARR

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 22 [Special] — A lanky, redheaded youth who quit college as a senior in 1940 to enter the air corps will get a warm welcome here from his only close relatives, his sister and brother-in-law, when he gets home to recuperate after three years as a prisoner in Japan.

He is 1st Lt. George Barr, 27, a navigator on one of the B-25 Mitchell bombers which participated in the Doolittle raid on Tokyo in 1942. The sister and brother-in-law are Mr. and Mrs. William Maas of 2733 W. Kilbourn av.

Until the arrival late today of a war department telegram announcing Barr's rescue, Mrs. Maas had been without word of any kind concerning her brother since the Tokyo raid.

Reported in Hospital

Her joy at official notification of his rescue was only slightly dampened by the additional information that he is ill and has been hospitalized. Early accounts of the rescue of the flyers were that one of them was suffering from beri-beri.

Barr and his sister came to Wisconsin several years ago from Queens, N. Y. Their parents are dead. They attended Northland college, Ashland, Wis., the sister graduating in 1939 and Barr getting a degree in absentia after joining the air corps. At college Barr was a basketball player.

forces and to cease hostilities "in perfect order."

He was informed that Gen. Yasuji Okamura, Japanese commander in China, would be held responsible for safeguarding all allied prisoners of war, and that all civil administrations must be surrendered only to persons designated by the Chinese high command.

He was asked to aid in the departure of forward headquarters of the Chinese high command to Nanking, and he promised to see to it that personnel of the United States army air communications service would go into Nanking, Shanghai, and Peiping.

Yanks Observers Only

A high ranking American source emphasized that surrender negotiations were between the Chinese and Japanese at Chihkiang, and that the Americans were present only in an advisory capacity. Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, San Antonio, Tex., represented the Americans there.

The surrender terms listed also the Inner Mongolian provinces of Jehol, Chahar, and Suiyan, south of Russian-occupied territory, as scheduled for Chinese occupation.

A government spokesman said he would reply later to a query as to whether the Russians would withdraw from Manchuria after surrender of the Japanese Kwantung army.

Troops under Gen. Yen Shi-shan marched into Yangku [Taiyuan], long-occupied capital of Shansi province in the north. Unofficial reports said clashes had occurred at Yangku three days ago between government and Communist forces.

Other forces commanded by Gen. Fu Tso-yi reached the vicinity of Kweisui, 210 miles northwest of Yangku in Suiyuan province.

Japs Complain Again

MANILA, Aug. 23 [Thursday]—(AP)—For the second time in four days, Japanese imperial headquarters radioed Gen. MacArthur complaining of difficulties attendant to surrender in China.

Today's message said serious difficulties were being encountered due to "the activities of irregular forces, bandits and disturbances of mobs."

"In spite of our utmost efforts to avoid the calamities of war, the situation in China has not been improved," the message related.

The Japanese asked "that you will accord consideration as to the time and processes concerning the disarming of the Japanese army in China."

French Deny "Unreadiness"

PARIS, Aug. 22 (AP)—French government officials expressed astonishment tonight at the statement of a British foreign office commentator who said today that France was not "at the moment in a physical position to take over the responsibilities of administering" French Indo-China when it is liberated from Japan.

Mili Atoll (arrow), in Marshall Islands, where Jap force has surrendered.

FIRST JAP-HELD PACIFIC ATOLL YIELDS TO U. S.

By-Passed in Islands Campaign

GUAM, Aug. 23 [Thursday]—(AP)—The small Japanese garrison on Mili atoll in the Marshalls, by-passed 18 months ago, surrendered yesterday in the lagoon aboard an American warship—the first instance of such a capitulation by a by-passed atoll since Japan quit the war.

Other enemy garrisons remain in that group of atolls which American forces seized as the springboard for the invasion of the Marianas.

The last estimate of the Japanese garrison on Mili was 2,500 troops, 1,000 naval personnel, and 1,000 civilians. It was thought to be the largest enemy garrison in the Marshalls.

Take Over in Few Days

The Japanese commander, a navy man, Capt. Majajori Suiga, shortly before noon went aboard the U. S. S. Levy, a destroyer escort, and gave up to Capt. H. B. Grow, Greenville, Mich., the commander of Majuro atoll in the Marshalls, 75 miles northeast of Mili. Grow acted for Rear Adm. W. K. Harrill, commander of the Marshall and Gilbert areas.

American occupation forces will take over Mili "within a few days," the fleet bulletin said.

The Marshalls were invaded by American forces on Jan. 31, 1944, the invaders by-passing numerous enemy garrisons in the eastern chain by going ashore in the western group.

The by-passed Japanese have been little more than a nuisance value since then from the enemy's standpoint but steadfastly had refused to give in.

Other Garrisons Remain

Mili is at the southern end of the eastern chain. There are enemy garrisons still remaining on other atolls of the eastern chain, notably Jaluit and Maloelap.

Navy reconnaissance planes on Tuesday flew over Ponape in the eastern Carolines at altitudes from 6,000 to 15 feet. The Japanese did not try to hide or offer resistance.

In the central Pacific there are some 209 atoll or island groups. United States forces occupy 10 to 15 per cent, the Japanese about 40 per cent. The remainder are uninhabited or inhabited only by natives.

Garrisons in the by-passed islands are believed to be greatly weakened by disease, starvation, shortages of ammunition and supplies. Most of the Japanese held islands in the Marshalls since the American campaign was completed there in April, 1944, have served as targets in training airmen to bomb and strafe.

Britain Says Russia Pays on $179,793,000 Debt

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 22—Russia is making regular repayments on her debt of $179,793,548 to Britain, Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton disclosed in the house of commons today. The debt includes $178,320,000 due for war time supplies and $1,473,548 in export credits under the agreement of 1936. Nothing has been written off on either of these debts, Dalton said.

FUTURE STATUS OF HONG KONG IS ALLIED PROBLEM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 22 — The future status of Hong Kong promises to be one of the early thorns in the side of the council of foreign ministers of the five great powers meeting here next month.

The British attitude is that the crown colony of Hong Kong must continue to be part of the British empire.

Reports from Chungking tonight, however, said the Chinese surrender terms to the Japs made it clear that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces will occupy Hong Kong.

United States Secretary of State Byrnes' suggestion in Washington, D. C., today that Hong Kong be discussed by the foreign ministers apparently caught the British by surprise. There were indications that T. V. Soong, Chinese premier, who is expected to fly to London from the United States next week, may make the Hong Kong issue a priority point for discussion with British officials.

U.S. SENDS PLANE TO JAP PRISON FOR WAINWRIGHT

Corregidor Hero May Be on Way to Chungking

CHUNGKING, Aug. 22 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, United States hero of Corregidor, possibly was en route to Chungking tonight from a Manchuria prison camp. Hundreds of other "liberated" American prisoners of war in Manchuria and China rested up for their return home.

America's flying mercy teams who parachuted into Japanese lines were caring for internees in almost all the scattered Japanese prison camps on the Asiatic mainland—but in Korea an unarmed, unescorted American rescue transport plane was ordered by the Japanese to leave Keijo. The Japanese refused to allow the party to see allied prisoners.

A B-24 Liberator bomber took off yesterday afternoon from Russian-occupied Mukden for Hsian prison camp, 100 miles northwest of the former Manchurian capital, to fetch Gen. Wainwright.

Eleven Need Aid

Radioed reports from Mukden said Wainwright would be flown to Chungking immediately after he was picked up, together with others of the 18 prisoners in the tiny, isolated camp. Eleven were said to need swift evacuation.

A mercy team which dropped at the Mukden prisoner of war camp reported to Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, United States commander in China, that the first concern of a Russian mission arriving at the Mukden camp yesterday was for Gen. Wainwright.

The team radioed that the Russians took over control of the Mukden camp, disarmed the Japanese, and put Maj. Gen. George M. Parker Jr., senior American officer, in charge. Parker was captured by the Japanese at Bataan.

Devereux's Name Missing

Gen. Wedemeyer's headquarters said the name of Lt. Col. James Devereux, commander of the heroic Wake Island garrison which in 1941 held out against the Japanese for 14 days, had not appeared on any list of names received from prison camps.

Names of a number of prisoners which have been received are being transmitted to Washington so relatives can be notified.

Reports came in from other prisoner camps "liberated" by the flying teams. At the ancient Chinese capital of Peiping, all internees—117 Americans, Britons, and Canadians and 133 Dutch and one Filipino—were being moved into city hotels.

The condition of the internees was described as good and medical arrangements "very satisfactory."

General Health Good

A mercy team at Shanghai said the Japanese colonel in charge of the large number of prisoners there had been interviewed and arrangements had been made to secure records of the internees.

At Weihsien, in Shantung province, another team reported there were a total of 1,528 internees—746 males and 782 females, 187 over 60 years of age, and 245 under 13. Their general health was said to be good.

But tho the mercy team at Weihsien yesterday sent a message for at least 10 stretchers and medical equipment, it appeared the prisoners might have to wait until the formal signing of Japan's surrender Aug. 31.

The Japanese commander, Col. Nobuhiko Jimbo, who claimed he commanded all Japanese forces on the Shantung peninsula, refused to permit Weihsien airfield to be used by American planes until the formal surrender. He said his orders were to cease fire only.

Japs Bring Up Tanks

It was announced that a mercy team of 22 Americans and Koreans which landed at Keijo, in Korea, Aug. 18 in the midst of 50,000 Japanese troops was ordered to leave the next day by Japanese military authorities.

The enemy brought up tanks and mortars to underscore the "invitation."

The allied group, the first to land in Korea since Pearl Harbor, had intended making preliminary arrangements for the evacuation of prisoners and to bring them relief and supplies.

Met by Jap Officers

The team, led by Lt. Col. Willis H. Bird of Lansdowne, Pa., was met by a group of high ranking Japanese officers, including Lt. Gen. Yoshio Kotsuki, commander in chief of enemy forces in Korea. The general refused point-blank to allow the party to see allied prisoners. The Japanese also did not fulfill a promise to give the team the names and nationalities of the prisoners at Keijo.

The team put up for the night at the airfield because the commandant could not get enough gasoline for the C-47 to leave immediately. As soon as the gas arrived the next morning the team was asked to clear out.

Wife Sends Note to Wainwright

Sent by Wire

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—A message from Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright to her liberated husband was en route to Chungking by radio-photo transmission today.

At the suggestion of OWI's overseas branch the Syracuse Herald-Journal obtained from Mrs. Wainwright a message to her husband written on a picture of herself.

The message said: "I am very happy today, waiting impatiently for your return. We are all well. Best love to you. KITTY M. W."

REPORT CAPTURE OF MANCHURIA'S PUPPET RULER

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The soviet Komsomolsk radio, broadcasting in Japanese to Japan, said yesterday the Russians were holding the puppet emperor of Manchukuo [Manchuria], Henry Pu Yi, an an "internee" in a safe place.

Henry Pu Yi

The broadcast was in the form of a proclamation to Lt. Gen. Hata, Japanese chief of staff, demanding "the good behavior of your army."

"His imperial majesty and his attendant are treated with hospitality," the soviet station said.

The 39 year old Pu Yi, whom the Japanese installed as Emperor Kang-Teh, long has played tag with political oblivion and his lack of aggressiveness now may save his life.

Chungking quarters indicate that Pu Yi, who, as the boy emperor Hsuan Tung, was the last occupant of China's imperial throne, probably will be treated leniently.

DDT INSECTICIDE WILL GO ON SALE HERE NEXT WEEK

DDT, the "miracle" insecticide developed by the army, will be available in retail stores in Chicago sometime next week, at reasonable prices, it was announced yesterday by Lester A. Rauthbord, president of the Knox Chemical Co., 3646 Broadway. Most retail sales, he said, will be made by drug, department, hardware, and seed stores.

Rauthbord said his company is now manufacturing the insecticide and will release it to wholesale houses Monday. He said it should be on store shelves by Wednesday.

It will be available in three forms, Rauthbord explained, a fly and mosquito spray, a liquid for painting walls, and a general spray to be used against roaches, ants, bedbugs, and flies. All except the liquid for painting will be effective against garden pests, he said.

"DDT kills all insect life, and destroys the larvae," Rauthbord said.

$352,671 IS PAID BY TRIBUNE TO 579 IN SERVICES

A total of $352,671.68 in supplementary compensation was paid by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to 579 staff members in the armed forces and their families up to the end of hostilities, according to J. Howard Wood, the paper's auditor and controler.

First payments under the plan were made in June, 1944 following war labor board and treasury department approval of the plan designed to provide adequate financial assistance for families of Tribune employes in service.

Because the payments were made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1944, the first checks paid under the plan ranged from $100 to more than $1,000.

Bonuses for Unmarried

The plan was designed to supplement government allotments. Under it families of married Tribune staff members in service receive at least two-thirds as much income as they were getting in private life from THE TRIBUNE. Unmarried staff members receive semi-annual bonuses. All employes of one year's service or more with THE TRIBUNE are eligible to receive benefits.

Basically, the plan provides for payment to each wife of 50 per cent of the difference between her husband's Tribune pay and his government pay and family allotment, and 10 per cent of that difference for each child.

Two-thirds of Pay Assured

If the 50 per cent allowance for the wife and the 10 per cent allowance for each child does not lift the total income to two-thirds of the former salary from the newspaper, THE TRIBUNE makes up the difference. The largest monthly amount the newspaper pays is $300. In the event of death of a married man in service, THE TRIBUNE continues the monthly payments to his family for six months.

Benefits are paid on the basis of the military or navy pay in the United States. No reduction of the payments is made for men who are getting added sums for overseas duty.

Payments are made on the basis of rank and pay as of April 15, 1944, with full benefit of any service increases after that date.

To Relieve Anxiety

Staff members who are getting more in service than they did from their Tribune employment also participate. In no case is the home payment less than $20 a month, even tho on a percentage basis a smaller sum would be called for.

In computing the amount earned in the year preceding induction, overtime pay and bonuses were excluded.

In announcing the plan, THE TRIBUNE said: "By this plan we hope to relieve any anxiety of our employes who are fighting for their country regarding the financial security of their dependents."

Chesser M. Campbell, advertising manager, suggested the plan.

Rescues Rabbit

Bridge Tender John Heath introduces rabbit he rescued to a spoonful of coffee.

A wild rabbit yesterday made its way to the center of the N. Damen av. bridge which has half-mile long elevated approaches on the north and south. When a motorist stopped and tried to catch the animal, it scooted thru a drainage opening at the side of the bridge and fell 15 feet into the water. John Heath, the bridgetender, put out in a rowboat and rescued the rabbit. He dried it out in his tower, then turned it loose on the river bank.

4 POWERS AGREE TO PUT TANGIER UNDER OLD RULE

PARIS, Aug. 22. (AP)—The French foreign office announced tonight that a four-power agreement had been reached in the restoration of the international status of Tangier. An international conference will be called within six months to re-examine the Algeciras convention of 1906 fixing the position of France and Spain in Morocco.

An interim report on the work of experts representing Britain, the United States, France and Russia said the atmosphere of the meeting was cordial.

The report did not mention Spain which occupied Tangier, the international zone opposite Gibraltar, on June 14, 1940. It was known that the four powers still had not settled the question of Spanish participation in the future control of Tangier.

RED AIR TROOPS LAND IN KURILES, NEAR ALEUTIANS

Also Reach Dairen in South Manchuria

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP) — Russian air borne troops landed in the American-bombed Kurile Islands west of the Aleutians today in an unexpected sky jump while other parachutists reoccupied the historic Pacific ports of Dairen and Port Arthur—40 years after Russia lost them to Japan.

Port Arthur and Dairen, on the leased Kwantung peninsula below Manchuria, were once Russian. They represented Czarist Russia's farthest expansion in her search for warm water outlets for her land and ice-locked empire.

Capture of the two ports gave Russia renewed control—temporarily at least—of the twin ports which Japan wrested away in 1905 after the siege of Port Arthur, one of history's most famous, which cost the Japanese more than 30,000 casualties.

Land on Northern Island

Taking off from the vast Kamchatka peninsula, Russia's famed flying soldiers landed on the northernmost of the Japanese owned Kurile islands—the island of Shumshu, which lies across a narrow strait from the Japanese naval base at Paramushiro, Moscow announced.

The air borne operation was carried out 750 miles west of American held Attu in the Aleutians. Paramushiro, before Tokyo's capitulation, was the frequent target of Aleutian based bombers and there had been speculation that American forces in this theater might land in the Kurile Islands.

Push to Tip of Sakhalin

The soviet bulletin also announced the occupation of Japanese areas of Manchuria was continuing while the Red troops pushed toward the southern tip of Sakhalin Island, only 26 miles across Soya strait from Hokkaido, northernmost of the Japanese home islands.

In Manchuria and on Sakhalin Island, three Russian armies yesterday seized 71,000 Japanese officers and men and roped them into prison pens for a four day total of more than 246,000.

Twenty Japanese generals were taken prisoner during the day, including the commander of the 44th group of Japan's crack Kwantung army, Lt. Gen. Hondo. Thousands of additional troops were being corralled, Moscow said.

5,000 Trained for R. A. F. in Bahamas in 3 Years

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 22 [Reuters]—More than 5,000 airmen have been trained in the Bahamas in the last three years, Air Marshal Douglas Colyer, said today. Colyer, head of the royal air force delegation in Washington, announced that the operational training unit would soon move to Scotland, but that the R. A. F. was not withdrawing from Nassau and he doubted it ever would. A unit of transport command would remain, he said.

REVEAL WASP'S BOMBING; 103 OF CREW KILLED

Bremerton, Wash., Aug. 22 (AP)—A bomb smashing thru the flight deck of the aircraft carrier U. S. S. Wasp last March 19 brought death to 103 and injury to 285 of her 3,000 crewmen but the huge fighting craft did not waver from her position in task force 58.

The navy, releasing the story today, disclosed the Wasp was hit two minutes after her sister ship, the Franklin, was damaged similarly and lost 832 killed or missing and 270 wounded—one of the greatest disasters in United States naval history. The action was 63 miles off the coast of Japan.

Launched Planes on Schedule

The Wasp put in at the Puget Sound navy yard for repairs, and there reporters learned that the Wasp not only kept her place in the fleet but continued to launch her planes on schedule.

A senior officer who insisted his name should not be used—saying "there were 3,000 of us on the Wasp; I'm just Mr. X"—told the press party that Capt. O. A. Wellers, since transferred to another command, "undoubtedly saved us from destruction by his brilliant seamanship."

The ship's guns didn't have a chance to bear on two Japanese planes which dropped out of an overcast directly overhead, said Mr. X. Only one of the planes bombed the ship, dropping a 500 pound missile that landed "a little bit abaft of amidships."

"One of our fighters shot down the 'Judy,' but its semi-armor piercing bomb had gone thru our flight deck," the spokesman recounted. "The bomb started a lot of fires on the hangar deck—about 10 of our planes just melted there. We went to work and got the fires under control. They were all out in a little over an hour."

Put Cover Over Deck Hole

"One of the first steps taken was to put a steel plate over the hole in the flight deck and we got all our planes off on schedule."

Men piled up from below to escape the suffocating smoke, flames and live steam. The ventilation system had been knocked out and below the second deck was a living hell, the officer said.

"We had suicide planes diving on us within 20 minutes after we took the bomb hit, but our guns got 'em," said Sgt. Arthur Lincoln Bauer, 26, of Hackensack, N. J., a marine. "One came so close it looked as if it had hit one of our elevators, but is missed by inches."

How One Man Died

Lt. James Bradford McCormick, who had charge of fighting fires, said his worst experience came when he entered one of the ready rooms and found a pilot whose leg had been sliced off by a piece of shrapnel.

"Take it easy, fellows, there's nothing to worry about," Bradford said the pilot told the rescue party.

"We picked him up but he died in our arms," the lieutenant said.

TAXICAB JOYRIDER GETS 30 DAYS

Jess Langston, 23, a Negro, of 813 W. Division st., who found an empty taxicab at Division and Wells sts. and took it for a joy ride was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell by Judge William V. Daly in Felony court yesterday on a charge of tampering with an automobile.

ARMY AIR CORPS WILL DISCHARGE 1,400,000 MEN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—The army air forces, now 2,400,000 strong, will discharge more than 1,400,000 men within a year, Maj. Gen. Fred L. Anderson said tonight.

The assistant chief of air staff said in a radio broadcast that the peak discharge rate for the AAF will be approximately 150,000 monthly until it is scaled down to a strength of about 700,000.

The AAF demobilization plan, he said, calls for high-point men overseas to be replaced by low-point men and by volunteers.

In the future, he said, overseas shipments will be screened to eliminate enlisted men below 75 points and those 37 years old. This will be done, he added, in order not to cut any man's chances for early release from the army and to avoid a waste of shipping space in moving men overseas who might soon be returned for discharge. At present, enlisted men are eligible for discharge if they have 85 discharge points or are 38 years of age or older.

WACS' DIRECTOR MAKES 1ST VISIT TO CHICAGO AREA

Col. Westray Battle Boyce, director of the women's army corps, arrived in Chicago yesterday for her first official visit to the 6th service command since succeeding Col. Oveta Culp Hobby in July.

Col. Westray Boyce

She said members of the corps are doing important clerical work at separation centers and ports of embarkation. WACs are filling 250 types of jobs in 22 foreign countries, the director disclosed. She said she hopes soon to visit all big WAC centers in the United States and eventually to visit them at overseas bases.

Col. Boyce entered the second officer candidate class at Fort Des Moines, Ia., on Aug. 3, 1942. She holds the Legion of Merit for her work in the Mediterranean theater, but contends that the ribbon belongs to the 2,000 WACs who served under her there.

RUSSIANS WHO WON'T GO HOME WORRY SWISS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Aug. 22—The Swiss government is puzzled over what to do with 450 Russian internees who have refused repatriation despite an order from Moscow to return to Russia. Mostly Caucasian Moslems and Georgians, with a few Ukrainians, they were among 10,000 soviet citizens originally interned in Switzerland.

The Moslems once served under the Germans and wore German army uniforms but deserted and became partisans in Italy.

The 450 internees are in a camp in Simmenthal, Bern canon, and are contented to remain in this country. Their refusal to return home, however, makes them liable to court martial in Russia. Their case has been put up to the Swiss federal council.

Russian Internee Slain

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 22 (AP)—A Russian internee was killed and three were wounded at Aigle in an altercation involving 20 Russian internees and a Swiss bartender, police said today. Their report said the bartender defended himself with two pistols.

U. S. POPULATION UP 8 MILLION IN 4 WAR YEARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 [Special]—The population of the United States in four years has increased more than 8,000,000 to bring the total as of July 1 to about 139,682,000, the bureau of the census announced today.

The increase in the war years was almost as much as the 8,894,000 jump in the preceding 10 years, but there was a decline in farm dwellers.

A summary showed there were 10,569,000 estimated births and 5,137,000 deaths [excluding war casualties] in the three and one-half years ended July 1. An estimated 5,477,000 marriages in the three and one-half years ended July 1 also was reported, the marriage rate reaching an all-time peak in 1942.

MYSTERIOUS OSS, A HAVEN OF REDS, FIGHTS TO GO ON

Spent 125 Mililon Dollars in Secret Work

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22—The ice of strategic services, which has spent more than 125 million dollars in propaganda and intelligence work around the world, is waging a desperate fight for existence.

Maj. Gen. Donovan

The organization is under critical fire in high official quarters and is facing congressional investigation of its world-wide activities and its curious fusion of the international bankers of Wall st. and the Communists of Union square.

Already a house committee has cut the OSS budget from 38 million dollars to 20 million, apparently with the tacit consent of President Truman. It is expected that the end of the war will bring further slashes in funds.

The "O, So Social"

OSS has been widely ridiculed for its cloak and dagger secrecy. The initials have been widely ridiculed as standing for "O, So Secret," "O, So Social," "Only Select Slackers," and "O, Strictly Soviet."

Maj. Gen. William J. [Wild Bill] Donovan, head of OSS, is marshalling his ingenuity for a desperate battle to save his organization. He has plans to make it a super-intelligence agency controling the gathering and shifting of intelligence abroad and correlating such units as military and naval intelligence, the FBI, postal inspectors, and treasury agents. This plan has been denounced in congress as providing for the creation of a super-gestapo.

Linked to Wall Street

Internationalist connections of OSS are readily ascertainable from a partial list of men connected with Wall street banks and industrial concerns with Wall street ties.

Junius Spencer Morgan and Henry Sturgis Morgan, associated with the Morgan banking interests, are special assistants to Donovan. Charles Ceston, a partner in the Wall street investment banking house of Smith, Barney & Co., is Donovan's first assistant in the Washington office.

Alfred du Pont, one of the family that controls the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, is high in the western European division of

Dulles, Bigelow on List

Allen W. Dulles, Wall street lawyer and bank director, is head of the OSS office in Europe. Edward Bigelow, head of a Boston banking house, is a deputy director of OSS. Dulles is a brother of John Foster Dulles, Wall st. attorney, who was official adviser to the United States delegation to the San Francisco world security conference.

David K. E. Bruce, former husband of Ailsa Mellon, daughter of the late Andrew Mellon, aluminum czar, is head of the OSS planning board. John Hughes, southern textile manufacturer, was head of the OSS New York office until recently.

Frank Ryan of Ryan Brothers, a New York silk firm with interests in Spain, Germany, China, and Japan, heads the OSS Spanish desk. Edward Buxton, a vice president of the Textile Institute, Inc., was until recently vice director under Donovan.

Mellon Banker Included

Atherton Richards, president of the Hawaiian Pineapple company, is an assistant to Donovan. Alan M. Scaife, director of the Mellon bank in Pittsburgh and other corporations, is assistant to the head of the intelligence branch, Whitney H. Shepardson, vice president of the Bates Bag company.

Kenneth Mann, a vice president of the Republic Steel company, is head of the OSS psychological division.

Many former diplomats were recruited by Donovan. These included Hugh Wilson, one time ambassador to Germany; Ferdinand L. Mayer, former minister to Haiti; Richard Southgate, Chicago banker, who was chief of protocol for the state department, and Robert Woods Bliss, former assistant secretary of state.

Zablodowsky Is Director

On the Union Square wing the OSS has an equally impressive record. David Zablodowsky, contributor to the Daily Worker, official communist daily, and members of the editorial board of Flight, official organ of the American League Against War and Fascism, is senior economic director. Zablodowsky was cited by former Atty. Gen. Biddle as a subversive.

Paul Baran, Russian born German Communist, according to information in the hands of the committee, headed the OSS Polish desk at the time when the soviets were partitioning that country. He was later shifted to the anti-sabotage division.

The entire list of OSS personnel has never been made public because of the secrecy which shrouded its operations. It is expected that congress will now ask for this list and for an accounting of large expenditures which never have been reported to congress.

BROWNELL CHARGES DEMOCRATS SEEK TO CAPITALIZE ON VETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22—Republican control of congress in 1946 was forecast today by Herbert Brownell, chairman of the Republican national committee, as he charged the Democratic party with seeking to capitalize politically on returning veterans. Brownell issued a statement after ending a trans-continental political swing about the country.

Herbert Brownell

The chairman gave these four reasons for predicting G. O. P. control of the next congress:

1. Considerable dissatisfaction with the manner in which the New Deal has fumbled the ball in preparations for speedy conversion from a war time to a peace time economy.

2. The people have awakened to the seriousness of the danger presented by uninterrupted control of all agencies of the federal government by one political party.

3. The obvious effort on the part of some adherents of the New Deal to capitalize for partisan purposes the patriotism of the millions of veterans.

4. A general disposition to be skeptical about promises made by the Truman administration to bring about federal economy.

ARMY TO YIELD SHARE IN RULE OF PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Aug. 22 (AP)—Military participation in Philippine civil administration will be discontinued Sept. 1 because it is no longer necessary, Gen. MacArthur said today.

MacArthur said he had consistently refused to assert his authority to supplant constitutional with military government because such a course "would tend to weaken the cause of democracy in the east and undermine the great strides made by the Filipino people under our guidance in building up their constitutional government." All areas of the archipelago already have been restored to the commonwealth government. Legislative, executive, and judicial branches, said MacArthur, "are functioning smoothly."

EARLY SESSION OF PARLIAMENT URGED FOR JAPS

Told: 'Must Meet New Situation'

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

An immediate extraordinary session of the diet is being urged by various political elements in Japan, Domei news agency said, as newspapers continued their campaign to smooth the way for allied occupation.

Domei, in a broadcast today [Japanese time] said the diet can display to the world the good faith of the Japanese government and people. Advocates of the early diet session, including members, insisted it is a necessity for formulating emergency measures capable of meeting the new situation as the reconstruction program.

Revision of Election Law

If the diet session is called, Domei said, a revision of the present election law will be made, followed by a general election to set up a completely new political plan.

The manner in which allied demands for peace and order are met will determine largely whether or not Japan will be able "to lay down a basis for national reconstruction," Domei quoted the newspaper Yomiuri Hochi.

Hochi and the Mainichi Shimbun said the Americans had given no indications of unnecessarily ruffling Japanese feelings while enforcing the Potsdam declarations.

Allies Make Decisions

Mainichi said, however, that the areas to be occupied will be determined by the allies, "who in making the decision will certainly take into consideration the way in which the Japanese welcome the occupation forces."

"For Japan's own good there must be speedy realization that the old order is finished," Domei quoted the influential Nippon Times. The Times warned the Japanese against "any attempt to fool ourselves as to the utter decisiveness of our predicament. . . ."

Treatment accorded Japanese surrender envoys to Manila was used by the newspaper Asahi in drawing a moral for the guidance of the people as a whole. Asahi observed that Lt. Gen. Takashiro Kawabe's party was treated with fairness and not purposely humiliated.

1,000 Planes in Air

ABOARD H. M. S. DUKE OF YORK OFF JAPAN, Aug. 23 [Wednesday]—(AP)—The American and British fleets returned to peace time maneuvers today, staging history's greatest demonstration of naval and aerial strength a few hours' steaming time from Tokyo.

More than 1,000 planes were in the air at one time roaring over the surface armadas, which represented the largest combined naval force ever assembled. For more than two hours the planes dodged in and out of the low flying clouds over the fleet. The climax of the show came with a combined "run" of major surface units and close flying planes. Some of the airmen were only a few feet above mastheads.

The demonstration had a dual purpose—to keep pilots in active practice and relieve the monotony of cruising about awaiting the time for the fleets to move into Tokyo bay for the occupation of vanquished Japan.

LABORITES WILL SEND HALIFAX TO AMERICA AGAIN

LONDON, Aug. 23 [Thursday] [Reuters]—Ambassador Halifax is "definitely" to return to Washington, D. C., the British Labor party newspaper, "Daily Herald," said today. Under banner headlines — "Bevin sending Halifax on 'grave task'", "economic snags loom for Britain as lend lease ends"—the paper—regarded as the voice of the party now in power in Britain—said that during his vacation in Britain Halifax conferred with Foreign Minister Bevin "who now wants him to head an embassy which will have to deal with stupendous economic problems."

"At the American end he will have to conduct the preliminary negotiations on trade and credit which have begun in London under W. L. Clayton, President Truman's assistant undersecretary of state.

Food and Supply Missions

"Negotiations are going on at top pressure night and day between London and Washington. The British food and supply missions in Washington are in constant touch with London.

"Large credits are needed by Britain for the transitional period before our exports can be expanded. Possibly an international trade conference will be the upshot.

"The hard fact is that we are paying for little more than a third of our imports."

At the present time Britain has an annual trade deficit of $3,000,000,000, or the full total of a peace time budget.

Must Replace Lend-Lease

"Lend-lease has now abruptly stopped, but something of a long term nature will have to replace it," the Herald said.

"Yesterday a seven member delegation of the United States congress committee on post-war economic policy met Bevin and Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer.

"Their chairman, Rep. William M. Colmer [D., Miss.], said the question of a credit for Britain to promote trade with the United States was one of the points discussed in his committee's exploratory work here.

"Socialism would not prevent satisfactory trade relations with his own country, he said.

"'We won't have any trouble with anybody who plays ball with us,' Colmer added, 'foreign trade will be a big factor in United States employment.'"

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ATOM VICTIMS' DELAYED DEATH STIRS DEBATE

Laid to Pneumonia and New Kind of Ray

Divergent views were expressed yesterday on the claim by the Tokyo radio that among the 480,000 Japanese said to have been killed, injured, or left homeless by the two atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, there were slightly burned victims who died mysteriously a few days after the blasts. A Jap broadcast reported:

"The number of dead is mounting, as many of those who received burns cannot survive their wounds because of the uncanny effects the atomic bomb produces on the human body. Even those who received 'minor' burns looked quite healthy at first only to weaken after a few days from some unknown reason, and many of them died."

In commenting on that phase of the Japanese report, Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, chairman of the department of physiology at Northwestern university medical school, said he was inclined to attribute the delayed deaths of the atom bomb victims to blast or concussion pneumonia.

Observed Among Boxers

Dr. Ivy said concussion pneumonia has been observed among professional boxers and victims of the German blitz of London. It follows a wave of compression and decompression, he explained, and results in definite injury to the lungs with infection setting in as long as 60 hours after internal hemorrhages develop.

"Concussion pneumania does not terminate fatally in all cases," Dr. Ivy continued. The ratio of mortality, he explained, depends on the distance of the victim from the center of the blast and the extent of hemorrhagic involvement. He suggested that penicillin might be useful in treating victims not too severely injured.

Dr. Ivy disputed the idea that the delayed "mystery" deaths were caused by radio active substances contained in the atomic bombs. Such substances, he said, by continued exposure are capable of causing leukemia [a disease which attacks and destroys the white blood corpuscles]. He added, however, that in his opinion, it would take longer than the few weeks since Aug. 6 when Hiroshima was bombed and Aug. 9 when Nagasaki was hit, for the disease to manifest itself.

A Contrary View

In disagreement with that theory, Howard Blakeslee, Associated Press science editor, said the delayed deaths more likely resulted from a new kind of ray made by a stream of concentrated neutrons.

He said this different kind of ray had been produced by a cyclotron [atom smashing machine] at the University of California radio laboratory so it could be seen. He described it as about 5 feet long, a few inches in diameter, and pale electric blue in color.

"This ray is considered almost instantly fatal," Blakeslee said. Animals exposed to neutron rays in much less concentrated form than the lethal stream of the cyclotron exhibit, he added, died in a few days.

He compared the diluted neutron rays to which the laboratory animals were subjected to similar weaker concentrations that might appear momentarily in the explosion of atomic bombs.

White Corpuscles Destroyed

Delayed deaths of the animals bombarded by the less concentrated neutron rays from the cyclotron resulted from destruction of an abundance of their white corpuscles in a manner which, Blakeslee contended might explain the delayed deaths of atom bomb victims described over the Tokyo radio.

Blakeslee advanced as his opinion that no one knows precisely the volume of the rays coming from the flash of an atomic bomb. Information likewise is lacking, he said, on the volume of longer lasting particles of earth and air in which the bomb blast induces secondary radioactive and neutron-active activity.

The Tokyo radio quoted Sutezo Torii, Japanese defense headquarters technician, as saying the explosion of an atom bomb apparently continues to build up increased pressure after the first impact of the explosion.

Sound and Pressure

"The sound of the explosion," said Torii's report as broadcast, "seemed to have been heard at the same time as the pressure of the concussion. Flash and pressure concussion are extremely powerful. However, the effect is comparatively slow. Thus, if it were an ordinary bomb, flash and explosive pressure would be most powerful at the moment of the explosion, but the pressure immediately released after the atomic bomb exploded swiftly scatters elastic energy thruout the air."

The investigation disclosed also that persons burned by the explosion were more seriously injured on the side facing the bomb, while the burns were lighter on the far side.

"There is about 10 minutes time between the time houses are destroyed and the time the first catch fire," Torii reported. "From five to 10 minutes after the atomic bomb exploded a black shower rained. This was apparently some form of liquid coming from the atomic bomb and it left black stains on white shirt clothing."

Tells of Devastation

The Tokyo broadcast said further of the bombing of Hiroshima:

"Since the explosion of the atomic bomb affected an area 30 kilometer [18.6 miles] in diameter and practically all houses in this area were either blown up, knocked down, or reduced by fire, it is difficult to count all of the bodies, many of which are buried under collapsed buildings. The sight of women and children wounded by the explosion defies description."

The Tokyo radio gave these figures on the atomic bombings: Hiroshima, 60,000 killed, 100,000 injured, 200,000 homeless; Nagasaki, 10,000 killed, 20,000 injured, and 90,000 homeless.

Vets Protest, Then Erase It

(Story in adjoining column)

Veterans of fighting in Germany scrawling protest at being sent to the Pacific on rail coach as their train halted yesterday in St. Paul, Minn. [Associated Press Wirephotos]

More Returned Troop Units Protest Service in Pacific

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 22 [Special]—Protests of combat veterans over being sent to Japan as occupation troops spread to additional army units today while the 95th division, which started the campaign of dissent, continued to pour out a flood of appeals for "justice."

From Camp San Luis Obispo, Cal., came protests of members of the 104th division, veterans of the European fighting, against being sent to the Pacific as peace time "policemen."

In a letter to editors, signed by many of the 104th veterans, they expressed resentment that their division "is being sent as a unit" to the Pacific altho it was in the European theater of operations for more than 10 months and had more than six months of front line combat duty.

Others Serve 18 Months

Members of the 484th quartermaster refrigeration company at Fort Warren, Wyo., protested against their unit being redeployed to the Pacific after it had "served 18 months overseas in Europe and earned four battle stars."

"Forty per cent of our personnel are replacements from the infantry who were wounded in the front lines," they said. "A large number of men in this organization had been classified limited assignment up until very recently when we received a supposedly complete examination. Apparently the men had a very sudden return to health for not one individual failed to be approved for further overseas duty."

86th and 95th Protest

Meantime, members of both the 86th [Blackhawk] division and the 95th [Victory] division continued their flood of telegrams and letters, many of the latter mimeographed, to editors and congressmen. Civilians also joined the drive by sending to newspapers protests signed by many persons, particularly women.

Members of both divisions claimed veterans with nearly enough points for discharge or nearly the age for release were being shunted to the Pacific after a hard time in the European fighting.

Only 6 More Divisions

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—Depending upon the behavior of the Japanese, the army may send only three to six combat divisions to Gen. MacArthur for use in the occupation of Japan. After the Japanese offered to surrender, it was learned today, Gen. MacArthur advised the war department that he might require six divisions redeployed from Europe but hoped to get by with only three. Two divisions, the 86th and 95th, already are in the process of moving to the Pacific.

SEIZE NEWSMEN INVESTIGATING VETS' PROTESTS

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 22 (AP)—A reporter and photographer for the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press were held in military custody for nearly an hour here today on orders of officers aboard a troop train whose soldiers the newsmen sought to interview.

J. R. Wiggins, editor of the newspaper, said Jack Weinberg, the reporter, and Dave Dornberg, cameraman, were turned over to military police at the St. Paul union station where the train, bearing members of the 97th infantry division being deployed to the west coast for embarkation to the Pacific, had halted.

Answered Soldiers' Letter

The newsmen went to the station in answer to a letter signed "soldiers of the 97th division" in which the men complained they were being "shanghaied" to the Pacific after having served in Germany.

Dornberg said he was detained by a Capt. Seranda after he had taken pictures of the men using scrub brushes to remove signs from the sides of the cars in which they were riding. The cameraman said the signs had been ordered taken off the cars by a Maj. John Callum, whose only address was given as "from Oklahoma."

The photographer said the signs he was able to read before they were scrubbed off read:

"We are being sold down the river while congress is on a vacation," and "We are being shanghaied."

Had Completed Interview

When the two newsmen had completed their interview and picture-taking, Dornberg and Weinberg said they were stopped at an exit from the depot by a group of officers who told them they were "under guard." Weinberg and Dornberg then were taken into custody by military police at the depot and held until Lt. Col. Charles J. West, district officer in charge of security and intelligence for the 7th service command, decided the men were being illegally detained and ordered their immediate release.

Weinberg said the train carried an entire battalion of the 97th division, under command of Lt. Col. Dale Lillywhite, Los Angeles, Cal. He said the men had told him they had fought five and one-half months in the Ruhr valley in Germany and could not understand why they were being sent abroad when there were so many troops in this country who had never been overseas.

The men had been given furloughs before returning to Fort Bragg, N. C., for regrouping, which they left Monday. They continued en route to a west coast embarkation point.

ATTLEE ADMITS IMPERFECTION IN WORLD CHARTER

But Calls on M. P.s to Ratify It

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 22—Doubts as to the effectiveness of the world security organization envisaged at the San Francisco conference were voiced in the British parliament today when labor government spokesmen sought approval in both the house of lords and commons for ratification of the united nations charter. However, parliament is expected to indorse the charter overwhelmingly when debate concludes tomorrow.

Prime Minister Attlee, calling on the parliament to support the ratification, said the world faces a naked choice between coöperation and destruction. He admitted imperfections in the charter, but said it was not intended as the final step toward international organization and could be amended.

The success of the world security organization, he said, depended upon the spirit in which the provisions of the charter were carried out.

Defends Veto Privilege

"If a great power is resolved not to carry out the principles of the charter, then no paper provisions will restrain it," he said.

The failure of the powers to act together would inevitably involve the ruin of the security organization, Attlee asserted.

The prime minister defended the big powers' veto privilege, declaring the exceptional position accorded them was due to the special obligations they undertook. He urged that continuous discussions be held on international affairs and that settlement of disputes not be limited to sporadic action at the time of crisis.

Former Foreign Minister Eden, who headed the British delegation in San Francisco, backed up Attlee's call for ratification. He suggested that if disputes could be handled by the security organization at an early stage there might be no need to worry about the atomic bomb. He denied that the great powers had dictated to the smaller nations at San Francisco.

E. F. M. Durbin, a Laborite, however, regarded the veto provision as the biggest defect in the charter.

"Great wars are made by the great powers," he warned.

"Ill Fashioned Alliance"

Lt. Ben Levy, another Laborite, described the charter as an "ill fashioned alliance" of the great powers who promised to love and honor each other but obey nobody.

The recurrent theme for debate in both houses was the need for some sort of control over the atom bomb. Some of the speakers wanted the secret of the new weapon guarded indefinitely, but Lord Chancellor Jowitt expressed the view that any attempt to do so would only encourage world-wide research into the new method of destruction.

RAIL INDUSTRY BIDS FOR 21,000 IN CHICAGOLAND

Truck and Traction Men Are Wanted

The transportation industry in Chicagoland urgently needs 21,000 workers to fill jobs ranging from executive positions to common labor, representatives of various fields of the industry estimated yesterday.

Many more workers probably will be needed, the spokesman said, as soon as other portions of American industry complete their reconversion to peace time production and start shipping civilian goods.

5,000 Needed Here at Once

Unprecedented war time use of track and rolling stock has forced the railroads to neglect repairs and modernization. In the Chicago area alone, the railroad retirement board estimated, nearly 5,000 workers are needed immediately. Jobs range from common labor, maintenance work, and construction, to office tasks up to executive positions.

In Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and part of Wisconsin, about 16,000 employes are needed, said the board, which is the railroads' hiring agency.

Truck Firms Want Men

Meanwhile, William B. Crawford, attorney for the Cartage Exchange of Chicago, said trucking firms represented by his association will need immediately about 2,000 workers. These firms, he said, have been operating with a working force about 15 per cent below normal. Needs of independent trucking firms and those represented by other associations will about double that figure, an industry spokesman said.

The automotive field will be able to absorb at least 3,000 workers within a matter of weeks, said leaders of that industry.

Salesmen to Be Needed

At the present time, an official of the Automobile Trade association explained, most of the workers needed are maintenance and repair men, but shortly after new cars come on the market several thousand salesmen will be needed again.

Chicago transit systems share the general industrial need for help, officials reported. The Chicago Surface Lines could use about 1,500 men for maintenance and operation. The Chicago Rapid Transit company needs at least 150 on the "L," while the suburban lines could use around 100 new workers apiece.

TRIBUNE'S SURVEY

THE TRIBUNE presents today the second section of its survey of plants in the Chicago area to ascertain the effect of reconversion on employment. Reports in this section, as in the first, published yesterday, show many jobs are open and indicate there will be a steady increasing demand for workers as peace time production swings into full stride:

American Automatic Devices company, 500 S. Troop st. — Employs 200 and needs 50 more, mostly punch press operators and assemblers; has plenty of business ahead in making automotive truck equipment.

Welders Are Wanted

Dole Refrigerating company, 5910 N. Pulaski rd.—This company, which has been in war work, manufactures parts for household electric refrigerators and freezing lockers. It anticipates a brisk peace market. The plant works 200 men in two shifts, 60 hours a week on the night side and 54 hours a week on days. A hundred men are needed at once. Some welders are wanted, but the greater need is for semi-skilled men to be trained in special operations.

R. J. Ederer company, 548 Orleans st.—Has laid off 20 of its forces of 372 since the war ended, but expects to keep the remainder busy making netting. This company held war contracts for camouflage netting.

Electrocast Steel Foundry company, 4707 W. 15th pl., Cicero—Had 165 employes on Aug. 14 and has added four since then; still needs laborers and two floor moulders. The company has many orders on hand. It makes steel castings.

General Motors Needs 600

Electro-Motive Division, General Motors corporation, La Grange—An expansion program is under way and the division, which has 9,500 employes, needs 600 more at once, particularly welders, steamfitters, pipefitters, and painters. Twenty-two hundred employes in service will be returned to their jobs and the company expects to provide jobs "for many more veterans." The plant makes diesel locomotives for railroads and reports "large orders ahead and more coming in all the time."

Emery-Carpenter Container company, 6035 W. 65th st.—Has 50 employes and can use 12 hydraulic press and machine operators. Producing fiber containers, the company now is taking orders for December delivery. When it gets more equipment this winter it will operate on two 44 hour shifts instead of one 54 hour shift.

F. D. Faraam & Co., 4940 Fluornoy st.—Has laid off six of its 75 employes, but contemplates no further reduction in personnel; made gaskets under navy contracts and will continue to make gaskets for civilian use.

John E. Fast & Co., 3123 N. Pulaski rd.—Radio condensers; probably some of 500 employes, 70 per cent of whom are women, will be laid off temporarily. Plant to resume operation today after shutdown to take care of contract terminations. Expected that 50 per cent of force will be working by this weekend and all the temporary layoffs restored in 30 days. Forty hour week in effect.

No Reconversion Problem

A. Finki & Sons company, 2011 Southport av.—Seven of its 583 employes have quit since the war ended, but none has been laid off. The company made gear shafts for the navy and heavy forging. It has no reconversion problem in resuming production of railroad equipment.

Francis & Nygren Foundry company, 2542 Fillmore st.—Employs 100 and expects to hire 35 or 40 men as soon as possible. These include molders, coremakers, and semi-skilled labor. The company has orders dating back a year and a half and almost two years in advance.

Fulton Market Cold Storage company, 1000 Fulton Market—Has 85 employes now and needs 25 unskilled men immediately; can maintain a personnel of 110 only if the government has a policy of supporting food prices.

Gage Structural Steel company, 3141 S. Hoyne av.—Force of 120 reduced by 30 men on termination of war contracts. Company expects light operation until first of next year, when building is expected to be active. One shift of 45 hours has replaced two of 54 hours.

Orders for 8 Months Ahead

Gaertner Scientific corporation, 1201 Wrightwood av.—Will cut its work week from 53 hours to 48 hours soon, but none of its 260 employes will be discharged; has enough orders on hand for eight months and expect increased export business that will support a personnel of 300 within a year.

General Screw Manufacturing company, 1238 Monroe st.—No reduction thus far in employment roll of 210.

Gerrard Steel Strapping company, 2917 W. 47th st.—Expects its pay roll to remain at the 200 listed when the war ended. The company produces wire strapping, has no reconversion problem, and has orders ahead.

William D. Gibson company, division of Associated Spring corporation, 1000 Claybourn av.—About 100 of its 843 employes have been "culled from the pay roll," but the company will return to full employment in a week or 10 days. It received 153 orders for springs Monday against a pre-war average of 100 orders a day.

Henry Giessel company, 570 Adams st.—Needs 12 sheet metal workers and solderers to help produce water coolers for trains. This would double its force of employes.

350 More Needed at Once

Goodman Manufacturing company, 4834 S. Halsted st.—Has been asked by the war production board to step up production of coal mining machinery by 50 per cent, and needs 250 more men at once, including skilled machine workers. Also needs office girls. Employed 1,400 when the war ended.

Goodrich Electric company, 4600 Belle Plaine av.—Needs 100 men for steady work in manufacturing industrial lighting fixtures. The company will train employes after they are hired.

Great Lakes Carbon corporation, 2701 E. 114th st.—Will maintain its force of 120 in Chicago and 50 at its Lockport plant, supplying carbon for metallurgical industries.

Great Lakes Spring corporation, 6401 W. 65th st.—Altho it has laid off 311 of its 561 employes since the war ended, this company soon will begin rehiring and within 10 months expects to have a pay roll of 1,500. Rehiring will begin as soon as materials are available to make automobile spring cushions.

Plenty of Civilian Orders

J. Greenebaum Tanning company, 3057 N. Rockwell st.—Has 580 persons at work producing leather for the military services; has plenty of civilian orders, and expects a slight increase in number of employes.

Greenlee Foundry company, 4600 W. 14th st., Cicero—Has cut its work week from 48 to 40 hours and needs about 20 molders and unskilled workers. Employed 100 men when the war ended and none has been laid off. The plant made castings during the war and will continue to make them.

Gutmann & Co., 1511 Webster st.—Has plenty of business ahead in making leather and needs about 40 men, including carpenters, millwrights, and stationary engineers. Has personnel of 320 now.

Hafner-Thrall Car company, Chicago Heights—Employs 28 men and needs 20 more steel workers, riveters, heaters, and buckers to keep up with orders for freight cars.

500 Employes Wanted

W. F. Hall Printing company, 4600 Diversey av.—Needs 300 men and 200 women immediately to bring force to normal level of 3,500. In addition, the company has places for 150 war veterans who are mechanically inclined and have a high school education.

Hansell-Elcock company, 435 W. 23d pl.—Employs 60 men at this plant and needs five fitters and three layout men to help fill orders ahead. Has 275 employes in foundry at 3153 S. California av. and needs 10 molders and 10 coremakers.

H. M. Harper company, 2462 Fletcher st.—Brass and bronze, screws and bolts; since war contracts have been terminated, working force of 300 has been increased slightly.

Oscar W. Hedstrom corporation, 4836 Division st.—Steel and aluminum alloy products and wood patterns; has had no layoffs and can use 50 foundry and machine shop workers immediately.

Hiring 70 More Workers

Heick Die Casting corporation, 4061 Schubert av.—Hiring 70 more die makers and casters, hand casters, and general factory help to bring personnel up to 150.

Henry Valve company, 3260 Grand av.—Employs 200 and needs about 12 screw machine and turret lathe operators, setup men, and laborers. Expects to hire another dozen to fill order for refrigerator and air conditioning valves.

Howard Foundry company, 4918 Bloomingdale av.—Employs 2,200 in Chicago and has laid off 1,000 of these temporarily until it can reconvert to peace time operations. Has laid off 100 of 300 employes at Aurora plant, where parts were made for the atomic bomb.

Huch Leather company, 1525 Homer st.—Has 95 employes and can use 25 more immediately, mostly laborers. Reports plenty of orders ahead for leather.

Hurley Machine company, 2115 S. 54th av., Cicero—All its contracts for shell boosters canceled, this company has laid off 243 of its 1,059 employes, but already is producing washing machines, ironers, and dish washers. Within 60 days, it will hire 500 workers to keep up with orders.

Illinois Gear and Machine company, 2108 N. Natchez av.—Employs 440 and needs seven skilled lathe operators. The company may reduce its work week from 48 to 40 hours.

Illinois Malleable Iron company, 1801 Diversey pkwy.—Retains its force of 800 and needs 35 laborers. Reconversion is a minor problem and the company hopes to retain all its personnel in peace time work.

Illinois Zinc company, 2959 W. 47th st.—Backlog of civilian orders will make it possible to retain regular force of 100 to 125 men in the Chicago rolling plant. This applies also to the plant at Peru, La Salle county.

Shifted to Peace Work

Industrial Condenser corporation, 3243 N. California av.—Still retains its 322 employes. As war contracts are canceled, workers are shifted to peace time production of condensers for automobiles, radios, and planes.

Inland Steel Container corporation, 6432 S. Menard av.—With contract cancellations still coming in, may find it necessary to lay off about 75 of its 713 employes for a short time.

International Harvester company—The Chicago plants came to the war's end with approximately 25,000 workers. There have been no layoffs. On the contrary, the company expects the force to be increased somewhat over a period of months to meet the anticipated heavy demand for farm machinery. The other Illinois factories, at East Moline, Rockford, Rock Falls, and Canton, will need more men.

C. R. Jahn company, 1345 W. 37th pl.—Heavy truck trailers; has been producing for civilian customers the last two months, along with work for the army and navy. Force of 75 expected to be retained if materials are available.

Working Staff Increased

James Metal Products company, 2929 N. Oakley av.—Force of 50 workers increased slightly since war work ended. Plant required no reconversion and the company expects to continue full operation for civilian market.

Janette Manufacturing company, 556 Monroe st.—Needs 10 machine, turret lathe, and screw machine operators to increase its personnel of 252. Also needs precision grinders. The company makes electric motors.

Joslyn Manufacturing and Supply company, 3700 S. Morgan st.—Hardware for telephone lines; the plant has been swung over without delay from filling contracts for the army to meeting orders from public utilities. Looking for 50 men to build up force of 500.

H. Kramer and company, 1343 W. 21st.—Retains its 300 employes and needs 30 to 35 laborers for making brass and bronze ingots.

Government Policy Criticised

Kropp Forge company, 5301 Roosevelt rd., Cicero—Reports it has laid off 100 of its 750 employes because of cutbacks and soon will lay off another 200. The company was 100 per cent in war work and 450 contracts worth a million dollars have been canceled. Roy A. Kropp, president, asserted that the return to full peace time production was being held back by the government's policy of freezing prices at pre-war levels.

K. W. Battery company, 3705 Lincoln av.—Has hired four men since the war ended and needs 10 more unskilled workers for helpers and assemblers' jobs.

Lasker Boiler and Engineering corporation, 3201 S. Wolcott av.—Employs 65 and needs 45 welders, boilermakers, and helpers. The company gradually will reduce its work week from 48 to 40 hours.

Charles E. Larson Sons, Inc., 2865 N. Keller av.—Forgings; 50 men employed on war work are being retained and the company wants to hire 10 "good, competent" workers.

Company Hiring Later

Link Belt company, 307 N. Michigan av.—Reports it is still hiring "the right kind of employes," both skilled and unskilled. The Link Belt Ordnance company plant at 306 W. 37th st. will be closed.

MacLean-Fogg Lock Nut company, 2649 N. Kildare av.—Pay roll cut from 45 to 41 persons, and probably will remain stable at this number. The company makes railroad equipment and has a "fair amount" of business ahead.

Manufacturers Screw Products, 216 W. Hubbard st.—Has started civilian production after 100 per cent operation for the government. War time force of 180 retained and "It may not be too long before we will advertise for men."

Marblehead Lime company—Needs 20 laborers and unskilled workers for plant at 103d st. and the Calumet river, and 10 for the plant in Thornton. Lime is a basic material and the company expects business to follow industrial trend.

Plant Future Uncertain

Mechanical Handling Systems, Inc., 6600 S. Nashville av.—Has laid off 385 of its 494 employes, and another 29 will be laid off today. The staff will be cut to 25. All contracts for bombs and anchor chains have been canceled, and the future of the plant is uncertain.

Modern Engineering company, 6100 N. Western av.—Employs 120 making winches, davits, and gear reduction units for the maritime commission, and needs 25 lathe operators and machinists. The plant will continue to make gear reduction units for civilian use and will have no layoffs because of reconversion.

Midwestern Tool company, 3032 Diversey av.—Some civilian production was started before the war ended and the force of 170 has been retained in expectation of steady operation during the period of retooling in industry.

Morden Frog and Crossing company, Chicago Heights—This manufacturer of railroad equipment foresees six or seven years of good business. Needs 25 men to add to present force of 160. Work week is 49½ hours.

Additional reports in THE TRIBUNE'S survey will be published tomorrow.

MURRAY WANTS U.S. RESPONSIBLE FOR JOBS FOR ALL

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, today demanded that the United States government assume the responsibility for providing employment opportunities for all Americans able to work and seeking work.

Murray's demand came at the end of an hour's haranguing of the senate banking committee, during which he called for immediate passage of the administration's so-called full employment bill, accused congress of "dawdling" over social and labor legislation, and asserted the people would demand government operation of industry if private capital does not produce jobs for all.

The employment bill, sponsored by a group of New Deal senators, declares it to be the policy of the United States that all persons "have the right to useful, remunerative, regular, and full time employment" and that the federal government shall "assure" employment opportunities.

Wants Words Changed

Murray, in an amendment submitted to the committee, would substitute the word "responsibility" for "policy," thus obligating the government to provide opportunities for full time work for any unemployed persons.

The bill's stated policy or "responsibility," if Murray's amendment becomes law, would be implemented by power given the President to prepare an annual "job budget" for the nation, indicating the anticipated number of jobs to be provided by private and public employment in the following year. From this estimate congress would determine the amount of public works needed to give jobs to all.

Demands Quick Transition

Murray also asked the committee not to permit use of the words "promote" or "encourage" in place of "assure" anywhere in the bill and to avoid substitution of "substantial" for "sufficient" in reference to planned public works to relieve unemployment.

Asserting that "millions" of wage earners are now being dismissed from their war jobs, Murray told the committee that union labor demands the immediate transition of industry from the manufacture of war goods to that of peace time supplies. The rank and file, he said, expects private industry to buy and operate an estimated 15 billion dollars' worth of war plants and machinery.

"And if private enterprise fails to give workers jobs at good wages, turning out things we all need," Murray declared, "the people will recognize the failure of private capitalism and vigorously will call for government operation.

"I am telling you this because of the pressure that is already generating from the people."

Other social and labor legislation on which early action was asked by Murray included expanded unemployment compensation, amendments to the wage-hour act raising the minimum wage from 40 to 65 cents an hour, more social security benefits—on which he accused congress of "dawdling"—and establishment of a permanent fair employment act forbidding racial discrimination by employers.

THEFT SUSPECTS WIN FREEDOM

Judge William V. Daly in Felony court yesterday dismissed disorderly conduct charges against Raymond Kelly, 37, of 657 N. Clark st., and Edward Mulligan, 38, of 11 W. Pearson st., who were arrested on suspicion of stealing jewelry from a department store at 6155 S. Western av.

CLASSES, KITCHENS, RETIREMENT BECKON 400,000 ILLINOISANS

Most of the 400,000 Illinoisans who became workers during the war, chiefly in response to patriotic urgings, are leaving the labor market, Samuel C. Bernstein, director of the Illinois division of placement and unemployment compensation, said yesterday. Bernstein referred, he said, to men who came out of retirement, housewives, and children.

Their exodus from gainful employment, the state official pointed out, will do much to make room for returning veterans and regular workers if industry can provide at least as many jobs as were available in 1940, a so-called normal year.

In 1940, 3,300,000 persons were employed in Illinois. During the war, 3,700,000 had jobs. This included those employed in Illinois' vast war industries. Of the total, Bernstein said, 350,000 were new workers—200,000 women, 100,000 children, and 50,000 persons who had taken jobs again after retiring. Bernstein predicted that 120,000 women workers will leave the labor market for good to return to their household tasks.

JAP SURRENDER ENVOY DUE AT RANGOON, BURMA

RANGOON, Burma, Aug. 22 (AP)—Southeast Asia command officials anticipated today the arrival here within 24 hours of a Japanese envoy from Saigon, French Indo-China, to begin negotiations for the surrender of an estimated 200,000 enemy troops in this war theater.

A meeting between the envoy, representing Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, Japanese southeast Asia commander, and Lt. Gen. E. F. M. Browning, chief of staff to Adm. Mountbatten, allied commander, may take place tomorrow.

Formal surrender of Terauchi to Mountbatten will take place in Singapore early in September. There will be no ceremony when allied occupation forces move into Singapore, it was said.

[A New Delhi broadcast said that a Japanese imperial messenger had arrived in Singapore, bearing Emperor Hirohito's orders for surrender of troops there. A Tokyo broadcast said the envoy was Maj. Gen. Prince Harumito Kanin.]

They had been placed in concentration camps as fascist sympathizers after the liberation of Florence last August.

QUISLING TELLS COURT OF PLAN FOR NORDIC BLOC

Sought Peaceful Union Against Reds, He Says

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 22—Vidkun Quisling's conception of a Nordic union—a sort of league of nations or united nations including the United States, Germany, Great Britain—was jeered at his treason trial today.

The former puppet premier of Norway, with his life at stake, pleaded for consideration of his contention that instead of betraying his country to the Nazis he was striving for peace between Norway and Germany and between Germany and England as a foundation for a union of the Germanic peoples against bolshevism.

Book Quoted

Introduced into the records were excerpts from his book, "Russia and We," written in 1930 and based, in part, upon his observations in 1927 to 1929 while representing British interests in Russia thru the Norway legation in Moscow.

"Bolshevism," he wrote, "is a conspiracy against Nordic inspired European civilization. Germany, America, Great Britain, Scandinavia, Finland, and Holland could break the power of bolshevism, safeguard civilization, and protect the future of the world."

"Ever since 1918," Quisling testified, "I have worked for a peaceful union of the Nordic people, not only Norwegians, Danes, and Swedes, but also Germans, Englishmen, and Americans and other people of Germanic origin."

Freedom of Criticism

"Would you join with the Nazi parties of the different nations or the heads of the governments to preserve democracy?" asked the special prosecutor, Annaeus Schjoedt.

"Democracy is possible with only one political party," the defendant replied.

"Could the Norwegians criticise your system during the occupation?" asked the judge, citing the freedom of criticism as a fundamental of democracy.

"Yes, in personal conversations," Quisling hedged.

"Many were sent to Grini [a concentration camp in Norway] as a result of personal discussions of the government," the judge said.

The spectators applauded.

"Did you not know of the nazi system and the method of developing this greater Germanic union?" asked the prosecutor. Did you not know of the concentration camps, hostages, and torture?"

"No," replied Quisling. "I read about it in the Swedish newspapers, but was never able to verify the torture stories."

Schjoedt accused Quisling of murder in the deaths of Viggo Hansteen, an underground leader and communist lawyer, and Gunnar Eilifsen, a distant kinsman of Quisling. Hansteen was killed by the Germans in 1941.

Hansteen's widow, now a communist member of the Norwegian government, sat directly across from the former puppet leader as Schjoedt charged that Quisling asked the Germans to get rid of Hansteen because he had led a strike.

Asked Only His Removal

"I never asked the Germans to kill Hansteen, only to remove him," Quisling cried. "He was making things difficult for me."

"Your accusations against Hansteen were not even true. You murdered him," the prosecutor countered.

Quisling replied that if his advice had been followed Hansteen would never have been killed. The prosecution charged that Quisling told the Germans that Hansteen was a Comunist and a colonel in the Russian army.

Calls Situation Desperate

In the case of Eilifsen, who was shot in August 1943, after trial before a special court on charges of disobedience for refusing to arrest Norwegian girls and force them to work for the Germans, Quisling said that the situation was desperate and the Germans told him that if he granted Eilifsen a reprieve the Germans would shoot not only Eilifsen, but 10 more Norwegians as well.

Quisling said he lacked authority to spare the lives of 14 other Norwegians who were executed on sabotage charges.

Picturing himself as a protector of the Jews, the big blond defendant said that he had worked closely with international Jewish organizations during the German occupation. He professed ignorance of German persecution of Jews and Norwegian patriots.

French Promised More Food; Italy on Road to Recovery

Thanks to America

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 22—France's outlook for food in the next few months will be considerably brighter if the domestic black market is stamped out, Christian Pineau, food minister, announced today in his first public statement since his recent return from a 25,000 mile hunt for groceries in North and South America.

The single concrete promise the food minister made was that fat rations definitely would be increased in October. This cheerful news coincided with the announcement of the ministry of industrial production that a second distribution of coal for the coming winter would start immediately. This distribution, like the one in July, consists of 100 kilos [about 200 pounds] for each apartment housing one, two, or three persons, and 150 kilos for apartments with four or five persons.

Pledges Black Mart Fight

Pineau said Americans do not seem well informed about food shortages in France but he expressed satisfaction generally with his trip.

He said that in exchange for aid promised by the Americans he had pledged that a drive against black market operators would be kept up, that rationing of sugar, meats, and fats would continue, and that France would order no more food abroad than necessary.

Pineau said the United States and Canada were shipping 350,000 tons of wheat of which 200,000 will go to North Africa. Despite the universal sugar shortage, Pineau said he had arranged also for an advance of 50,000 tons of British sugar which will permit present rations to be maintained.

Meat from United States

As for meat, the United States will supply 60,000 tons, including canned ham and corned beef. Early in 1946, 10 per cent of the Argentine meat reserved by England will be shipped to France. Other items obtained by Pineau were fodder, condensed and powdered milk, Argentine lentels and American beans, as well as fertilizer, insect powder, and farm machinery.

Altogether imports, including coal, will soon attain 1,000,000 tons a month and will progressively increase to 1,500,000 tons. These figures compare with 105,000 tons of American merchandise arriving at Le Havre during July.

Wages Adjusted

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Aug. 22—Premier Ferrucio Parri's assertion last week that Italy's economic and social position has improved is confirmed by reports from Milan. The country, which was headed for disaster six weeks ago, now seems to have passed the turning point toward recovery, particularly as regards northern Italy.

Prices of foodstuffs appear to have been stabilized in the last four weeks. Workmen earning about 7,000 lire [$70] monthly are able to cover their food requirements, tho civil employes, earning less, still are in difficulty. A university professor said he is paid less cash than an unskilled laborer.

Only Employes Benefit

This partly explains the success of the leftist Action party's appeal to the middle classes, who are unwilling to become Socialists of Communists. Salary improvement in Milan is only in the employe class.

Bread has much improved in quality, tho not in quantity. Substantial meals are obtainable at cafeterias with national food cards for 70 lire. A hundred of these cafeterias were opened in the last six weeks. Other restaurants require no food card but meals cost about 250 lire.

Tho the crop is much below expectations, it is now arriving in the markets. It seems the government is allowing consumption of available Italian products, without extreme hoarding or rationing. This is based on the expectation that imports of food later will be granted by the allies.

Transport Improved

Improvement in conditions seems due also to the slow but steady recovery of transport facilities, essential to salvaging the Italian economy. Every day new trains are put on between Milan and various points. New bus services are multiplying. The Milan papers are full of advertisments of passenger transportation, even Pullman buses. The Milan-Rome trip, lasting two days, costs from 3,500 to 6,000 lire [$35 to $60], according to equipment. Italians learned with delight that the allies soon will provide 22,000 trucks, 67 electric and 248 steam engines.

Two million are reported jobless.

MALAYA RUBBER OUTPUT IN '46 TO BE 40 PCT. NORMAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 22—Malaya will produce 375 million pounds of rubber—two-fifths of its annual pre-war output—in the next year, a colonial office spokesman estimated. Small plantations will be able to resume production as soon as the country is liberated and the first supplies brought to England as soon as shipping is available, he said.

The small plantations comprise two-fifths of the total producing acreage in Malaya. The spokesman said it would be more difficult to get the big plantations operating because of shortages of equipment and personnel.

The Malayan Rubber Estate Owners company, including persons or companies owning plantations no smaller than 100 acres, has been formed in London to speed the resumption of production. It has been promised government support in obtaining priority supplies of equipment, shipping, and other facilities. A similar organization has been formed by the Borneo rubber plantation owners, also with colonial backing.

Laval Claims He Saved French Press from Nazis

PARIS, Aug. 22 (AP)—Pierre Laval asserted in pre-trial questioning today that he thwarted a German effort to seize control of the French press by financial trickery. He admitted he was the negotiator when the Germans tried to buy 51 per cent of the shares of the Hachette delivery service. He insisted, however, that he urged the Germans to be content with 49 per cent, causing the negotiations to collapse.

CONSECRATE BISHOP OF LONDON; 200 CRY 'HIRELINGS OF ROME'

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Almost 200 persons shouting "You are hirelings of Rome" disturbed the enthronement today of Dr. J. W. C. Wand as bishop of London for the Church of England. Bishop Wand succeeds Dr. Geoffrey F. Fisher, who was elevated to archbishop of Canterbury.

Two formal protests on the grounds that Dr. Wand was "a Roman Catholic and not a fit and proper person for the position" were presented to Vicar General Philip Baker Wilbraham in the vestry before the ceremony.

When the procession headed by Dr. Wand and the vicar general entered St. Mary's Woolnoth church disorders broke out. They subsided only at intervals during the ceremony.

U. S. CLOSING OUT ALL ITS NAVAL BASES IN EUROPE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

LONDON, Aug. 22—The United States does not plan to have any permanent naval bases in Europe and is closing out its present ones as quickly as possible, Adm. H. Kent Hewitt said today on taking up his duties as commander of the American naval forces in Europe. The navy's only long-range job in Europe now, he said, is to support the army of occupation in Germany, using Bremen and Bremerhaven as naval bases.

United Kingdom bases are just about closed out, with few ships left, and all naval air bases are closed. There are still small naval detachments in Marseilles and Le Havre in France, and Palermo in Sicily, but they are only token forces, the admiral said.

He found the great liner Europa undamaged on his trip to Bremerhaven, the admiral added. She is being rapidly fitted with bunks to be used as a transport to take 11,500 troops back home at a time. The ship is an American prize.

FINANCE CHIEF OF ARGENTINA RESIGNS IN ROW

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 22 (AP)—Finance Minister Alonso Irigoyen submitted his resignation today with the explanation that an unnamed army general who was not a member of the Argentine cabinet had demanded that he approve a decree for an appropriation of funds or resign.

There were reports of a cabinet crisis which might result in the withdrawal of all civilian members, leaving the executive power exclusively in the hands of the military.

In his statement to President Edelmiro J. Farrell, Irigoyen said he no longer was able to collaborate with the military regime because of its domestic political policy. He said he had not lost faith in Farrell.

BYRNES REVEALS KING'S PLEA FOR ROMANIA REFORM

Wants Regime to Please Big 3 Powers

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 [Special]—State Secretary Byrnes disclosed today that King Michael of Romania has appealed to the United States, Great Britain, and Russia to help give his country a new government acceptable to all three of the great powers.

The king took this step, Byrnes said, after his demand to Prime Minister Petre Groza for resignation of the latter's cabinet went unheeded. Groza heads a coalition "national democratic front" which officials here consider to be dominated by the Communists.

Changes Up to Ministers

Byrnes discussed the Romanian affairs at a press conference in which he also stated that the United States' position on post-war territorial changes is that they must be taken up by the council of foreign ministers of the five big powers. He declined to speak directly of policies relating to Hong Kong.

[In London official quarters said they have no knowledge of any intention to discuss the future status of Hong Kong at the forthcoming council of Big Five ministers. A dispatch said it is generally assumed in London that the future of Hong Kong as a British colony is not in doubt.]

Byrnes disclosed that the United States is not contemplating supervision of European elections, but intends merely to observe them.

Wants a Free Press

He said his department believes the best way to observe them is to permit the foreign press free movement in the lands where the elections are to be held.

Emphasizing that the United States, Great Britain, and Russia agreed at the Potsdam conference that reporters of all the allied nations should have freedom to travel and report on conditions in the Balkans and Poland, Byrnes pledged support to American newspapers in their efforts to get reporters into countries from which the American press is now barred.

He said he has asked the state department representative in Budapest, Hungary, to intervene in the case of four American correspondents reportedly placed under restrictions there by the Russians. He hopes this action will bring recognition by the Russians of the American correspondents, he said.

Doubt Reds Will Aid

Regarding the Romanian situation, Byrnes said the United States is ready to discuss King Michael's appeal with the other two powers and has so notified them. Doubt was expressed by officials here, however, that Russia will agree to any measure which would involve Big Three activity inside Romania, such as aid in holding a Romanian election.

When the Germans were ousted from Romania in November, 1944, the country was given a government containing representatives from all the major national parties. This government, under Prime Minister Radescu, was ousted last February at the insistence of Moscow's Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs Vishinsky. The Groza government came into power March 6, Groza being a member of the "Ploughman's front."

Michael's Plea Told

Byrnes reported King Michael said he had consulted with political leaders and the majority desired formation of a government under conditions which would permit of its recognition by the principal allied powers, the conclusion of necessary treaties, and the admission of Romania as a member of the united nations.

When Groza failed to heed the king's request that his cabinet resign, the king sent identical notes of appeal to the American, British, and Russian members of the allied control commission asking help in forming an acceptable government, Byrnes said.

Field Estate Loses Plea for Subway Case Retrial

Judge Ulysses S. Schwartz in Superior court yesterday denied a motion in behalf of the Marshall Field estate, owners of the Great Northern hotel property at Dearborn and Quincy sts., for a new trial of its subway damage suit against the city. The estate's plea for a judgment of $397,564 was denied by a jury in Judge Schwartz's court May 16. The city contended the property had enjoyed benefits because of the subway which more than offset any damages.

Truman Greets De Gaulle; Chicago to Honor Warrior

Gets Warm Welcome

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22—In search of a solution for the economic and political problems that beset his country, Gen. de Gaulle, provisional president of France arrived in the capital late this afternoon for a three day visit.

The French leader received a warm welcome from President Truman as he arrived with a staff of 16 advisers and attaches.

Bands played and military salutes were exchanged on the lawn of the White House as formal amenities were exchanged by the two leaders. The general was ushered into the White House, where he was honored at a state dinner and remained as an overnight guest. Tomorrow he takes up residence in Blair House, the nation's guest house.

Money Number 1 Item

Whether Mr. Truman's warmth continues when Gen. de Gaulle makes his pleas for financial and political aid or whether the President will turn as cold a shoulder to the head of the French state as the late Franklin D. Roosevelt did will be devloped in the next three days.

Number 1 item on the De Gaulle agenda is money. He and his staff will state France's case for increased American financial aid to set France on her feet economically and rehabilitate that war damaged country. It is expected that he will ask for long term credits of several billion dollars.

At present France is receiving aid under a lend-lease agreement, concluded last February, providing 2 billion, 575 million dollars in goods. This provided 900 millions of railroad equipment and machinery to be repaid in 30 years at 2⅜ per cent interest, and 1 billion, 675 million dollars worth of food and raw materials. The food and raw material shipments were halted by termination of lend-lease.

"An Immense Task"

Politically De Gaulle is seeking American support in establishing an international zone in the Rhineland as a buffer between France and Germany, a definite estimate of reparation payments France can expect from Germany, a larger part for France in the world picture, and speedy return of Americans from France so that country can more rapidly return to normal life.

After his plane arrived at national airport, the general made a statement following a greeting by American and French dignitaries.

"On my arrival there is one thing I want to say," he began. "And that is without you, the American people, led by your great Presidents — Roosevelt and Truman—there would have been no future for Europe or Asia, but intolerable servitude.

"Now, we have to organize the world to conform to the principles for which we all fought. In this immense task, the United States will have to play the leading part.

"It is France's earnest desire to unite her efforts with yours in a spirit of confidence and friendship."

The general will remain here until Sunday, when he will make a special trip to Hyde Park, N. Y., to visit Mrs. Roosevelt, and the grave of the late President.

Here on Monday

Gen. Charles De Gaulle, chief of the French provisional government, will arrive in Chicago about 6 p. m. next Monday evening for a night and a day of official entertainment by the city and the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mayor Kelly said he had made arrangements to meet the French leader's plane at Chicago airport. The mayor and the general's official party will go to the Blackstone hotel. State, city, county, and federal officials will be hosts at dinner there. Business leaders also will be present to greet De Gaulle.

Plans Made Official

Kelly conferred during the day with Jean Viala, French consul in Chicago, and Jacques Walch, representative of the French press and information service.

"The dinner in the Crystal room at the Blackstone has been definitely decided upon, altho Gen. De Gaulle may be later than 6 o'clock at the airport," Mayor Kelly said. "If he's somewhat late the dinner probably will be held up until he can get there."

C. A. C. Luncheon Tuesday

For Tuesday morning and afternoon various events have been arranged for the distinguished guest, including visits to airplane factories and a trip over the city's boulevard system in an open automobile with the mayor and others. In the morning De Gaulle will hold a press conference, Mayor Kelly said.

Around 11 a. m. Tuesday a reception will be held for the famous Frenchman on the Victory plaza at the La Salle st. entrance to the city hall and at 12:15 p. m. he will be taken to the Palmer House for a luncheon by the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Grand ballroom.

Gov. Green, Mayor Kelly, prominent business leaders, several American Legion heads, including State Comdr. Arthur E. Canty, members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, and leaders in the French colony will attend the luncheon.

10 IN FROG GANG ENCOUNTER BARS THEY CAN'T LEAP

Ten members of the "leap frog gang" of tavern bandits, who showed off by leaping over bars in at least 25 holdups, were sentenced to the state penitentiary on robbery charges yesterday by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court.

Robert Kozak, 18, of 2107 W. 19th st., the leader, was sentenced to three to 10 years. Harold Borkus, 17, of 2532 S. Albany av., was sentenced to three to eight years. Fred Litke, 26, of 2033 W. 18th st., and David Tinucci, 21, of 432 S. Hoyne av., discharged soliders, were sent to prison for two to five years.

Sentences of a year and a day were imposed on Ralph Lipowski, 16, of 2011 18th st.; Sam Paul, 22, of 4332 Washington blvd.; John Bielanski, 16, of 4112 S. Richmond st., Joseph Rendak Jr., 18, of 2037 18th st., and James Lenca, 17, of 1919 17th st. The 10th defendant, Edward Kotbra, 17, of 2046 W. 18th st., was sentenced to one to two years.

REDS PROTEST WATCH ON POLLS BY OUTSIDERS

MOSCOW, Aug. 22 (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia asserted today that "observation" by foreign powers of elections within another country amounts to "control" and is incompatible with the principles of democracy.

The newspaper defined the soviet viewpoint on this question in commenting on the Greek request—which Russia has declined but the United States, Britain, and France have accepted—that allied powers oversee the Greek national elections.

[The Izvestia statement followed American and British criticism of the election scheduled Sunday in Russian occupied Bulgaria. Secretary of State Byrnes told the Bulgarian government that it evidently had not arranged for all democratic elements in the country to participate in that election "free from the fear of force and intimidation." Britain notified Bulgaria she would refuse to recognize as "democratic or representative" any government chosen under present electoral law in that country.]

Hiding Real Situation

Izvestia declared that "by inviting foreign observers, the government of Premier Vulgaris [of Greece] obviously is pursuing a policy of hiding the real situation."

It said "events occurring in Greece indicate that here there are not the conditions necessary for deciding the indicated problems, not the conditions for genuine freedom, democratic elections, and not the conditions guaranteeing the free expression of the will of the people."

Izvestia said that Russia at the Berlin conference opposed the proposal, raised by the British and Americans, to send observers to oversee elections not only in Greece but other countries.

Called Direct Interference

Izvestia said that the fact that permission for foreign observation is given voluntarily does not alter the facts of the case.

"Such control, or as it is sometimes called 'observation' by a foreign state over elections in an alien country is inarguably one form of direct interference in the internal affairs of this state, interference which does not help to strengthen democracy, but on the other hand, undermines the strength of democracy."

The Izvesta editorial did not name any other country specifically, except Greece.

Poland, however, is one of the countries planning to hold elections. The Berlin agreement provided that representatives of the press would enjoy full freedom to report those elections. The press in that case presumably would be observers.

MEDILL TEACHER DISCOUNTS GI NEUROSIS FEARS

Concern expressed by public welfare agencies about combat veterans returning to civilian life as psychoneurotics is unwarranted, in the opinion of Kenneth E. Olson, head of the Medill School of Journalism, now on military leave. Olson, now head of the journalism section of army university center No. 1 at Shrivenham, England, is in charge of 220 Yanks studying journalism under army auspices.

"These GI's out of combat outfits are great guys," he writes. "I have the best classes I have ever had in my life. All this worry about psychoneurotics is hooey. There are the kinds of men America needs."

Despite the fact that news of the Japanese surrender came at midnight, London time, the Shrivenham Post, section publication, carried a more complete account than any of the London morning papers, Olson said.

Amateur Radio Operators Stay Under Old Licenses

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—The federal communications commission said today that amateur radio operators will continue to function under their pre-war licenses. The amateurs were authorized late yesterday to resume activities in the 112 to 115.5 megacycles bands for the first time since 1942.

CAN'T SELL GAS WITHOUT TIRES, DEALERS WAIL

Chicago service station men complained yesterday about a lack of customers to buy gasoline and tires. If they had more tires to sell, there would be more motorists to buy gas, said Brad Provis, president of the Gasoline Retailers' Association of Metropolitan Chicago.

Except on week-ends, gas station business is bad now, Provis said. The 1,500 or 1,600 stations did a land office business Aug. 15, when gas rationing was abandoned at 9 a. m. Motorists came in all that day and much of the night to fill their gas tanks. The following Saturday and Sunday were good days. Since then, however, business has slackened, Provis said.

"We need tires," Provis said. "Many cars are being kept off the streets only because their tires aren't good. Many drivers have authorization from their ration boards for new tires, but it doesn't do any good if the tires can't be bought."

8TH AND FINAL WAR LOAN DRIVE WILL OPEN OCT. 29

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—The eighth and final war loan drive—the "victory loan"—will begin Oct. 29, with a goal of 11 billion dollars. Four billion will be for individual purchasers—two billion of that in "E" bonds—and seven billion will come from other nonbank investors.

Treasury Secretary Vinson made the announcement tonight and noted that altho the present treasury balance is "large," there have been "enormous obligations incurred in the achievement of victory."

"The aftermath of war carries grave responsibilities that must be met," Vinson said. "A substantial army and navy must be maintained until order is restored thruout the world."

SANTA CLAUS DIES HARD

Two Americans well acquainted with international finance are in London. Assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton is there to consider the many appeals for help the British are making on the eve of termination of lend-lease. Winthrop Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, is there to preside at a meeting of the council of the International Chamber of Commerce. On Sunday it was reported that Mr. Aldrich had received from King George a decoration described as the "King's medal." This must have been exceedingly embarrassing to the American banker, as he had been urging a post-war grant in aid of 3 billion dollars to the British to cover immediate import needs.

Mr. Clayton went over to inform the new socialist government that lend-lease was a war time arrangement which must now end with the termination of hostilities. As Arthur Sears Henning reported in his story in Monday's TRIBUNE, the British have found getting food, materials, and equipment from us for nothing so delightful that they want it to go right on. They say that they have lost much of their investments during the war, and will need American funds to pay for imports if they are to enjoy the standard of living of pre-war days. To raise their living standards, as promised by the Labor party in the recent campaign, they will have to have more funds to buy machinery and raw materials. In addition to all this, there are the frozen balances in London, owned principally by members of the sterling bloc, the largest claimant being India.

When the war started Britain was already in to us for 4 billions growing out of the last war. Altho we were willing to receive payment of this in instalments running over more than a half century, no payments have been made since 1933. Eight billion dollars was added to this debt in the form of net lend-lease aid during the course of this war. As Mr. Henning said in his article, there is no expectation on either side that this will ever be repaid.

The British now figure that about a billion dollars' worth of food a year, for not less than three nor more than six years, will put them on their feet. There are other versions of what this gratuity is to be. Mr. Aldrich would give them 3 billions and call it "retroactive lend-lease." John Williams, vice president of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, says let's give them 3 billions so they can stabilize the pound. The London Economist would combine the Aldrich and the Williams proposals making our parting gift 6 billion dollars. The Economist would have the money used not to buy food, but to pay 50 cents on the dollar on frozen sterling balance.

Presenting the British with a bonus would lay us open for a touch from Russia, China, and the rest. Russia has asked for a billion dollars from the Export-Import bank, but if we are to be a sucker for Britain running to much bigger figures, Moscow will ask for a handout as big as anybody's. Counting on some sanity in America, Stalin has announced a new five year plan, under which slogan the Russian people will again be subjected to an extremely low standard of living, so as to restore the destroyed capital equipment of that country. Stalin, the Communist, places such a high importance to capital that he is willing to have his people undergo unprecedented hardships to acquire it. The British, on the other hand, believe that the way to get capital is to get America to donate. Where 12 billions has already been obtained, they think more is to be had. Strangely enough, there are Americans willing to give it to them.

Where is the money coming from for gifts to Britain of a billion a year, or 3 or 6 billions in a lump sum? There is only one source the government has—the American taxpayer. A billion a year would take all the income tax collected from individuals before the war. American wealth totaled only about 360 billion dollars before the war. Our debt is 300 billions. We are nearly busted ourselves. Mr. Clayton should come home and Mr. Aldrich should give back the medal to King George.

THEY ALL WANT OUT

Members of the 95th division, which had a good combat record in Europe and is now at Hattiesburg, Miss., being prepared for duty in the Pacific, are conducting a more or less organized campaign of protest against being sent abroad again. The men of the 95th think they have done their share and that some one else should pick up the burden.

This, of course, is but one incident in the universal effort to get out of uniform and back into civil life. Special pleas are heard on every hand for older men, for men with children, for limited service men, for veterans of long service in the Pacific, and for almost every classification of soldier which imagination can conjure.

As between all these different claimants, Gen. Marshall and the war department are far more capable to judge than any civilian. The judgment should be left to them. Whatever it is, it will be unpopular with the men who have to stay in, and their friends and relatives.

This does not mean, of course, that the army should have carte blanche in holding men in service. If that concession were made, and some of the officers who fear diminution of their present rank had their way, the army never would be demobilized. But when it is agreed what the army's tasks are, and how many men will be required to perform them, the final say on who gets out and who stays in should be left to the army.

It is obvious that we are going to have a very large force to occupy and police Japan, and that that task may last for a number of years. It will not be surprising if the mere job of rounding up and disarming the Japanese forces scattered thruout the short-lived empire that was dismembered by the American offensive in the Pacific may in itself take from three to six months.

But while we have the primary responsibility in the Pacific, that load can be greatly lightened by a more realistic treatment of the occupation problems in Europe. Every country which was occupied by the Nazis stands to benefit from the partial dismemberment of Germany and the confiscation of a large proportion of German industrial equipment. Let those nations protect their own winnings.

The Dutch, for example, have demanded that they be allowed to annex German territory in repayment for the Dutch land flooded or otherwise ruined by the nazi occupation. There is a good measure of justice in their claim. But if they want to annex part of Germany they should be prepared to furnish some of the troops to occupy and police the remainder. The same can be said for Belgium, the Scandinavian countries, and France.

This nation does not expect to take anything out of Germany and it should not be expected to continue for more than a few months its policing operations there. It should certainly not be expected to conscript men for that work or to hold men who have been conscripted for duty in Europe. If the people who are benefiting from the occupation of Germany do the occupying our task of occupying Japan will be greatly simplified.

CLIPPING THE GI'S

The French government announces that it is going to "give" American soldiers stationed in France 850 francs a month—$17 at the official rate of exchange. The official explanation is that this is a special subsidy to compensate members of our forces stationed in that country for the reduction of the purchasing power of their army pay by inflation and black markets in France.

It is no such thing. It is the final, open confession of one of the most scoundrelly confidence games in history, a confidence game perpetrated on American soldiers by their own government, as a favor to the French. The so-called gift of 850 francs is less than 10 per cent of what every soldier is defrauded of every month by this crooked deal in currency.

American troops in Europe are not paid in American money. They are paid in the currency of the country in which they are stationed and their pay in terms of American money is converted into the foreign currency on a wholly artificial basis. The American GI gets 50 French francs for a dollar. If he were given a dollar, he could go into the so-called black market and buy about 200 francs with it. The term "black market" is a misnomer. Actually it is the real, free market and the official rate of exchange is the phony market. Thus, a private who drew all of his pay of $80 a month should be able to purchase 12,000 French francs with it. The army gives him only 3,000. The alleged "gift" of 850 francs is obviously inadequate to compensate him for the injury done him.

The official excuse for establishing the rate of exchange at the present fraudulent figure was that the device would prevent the American soldiers from preëmpting too large a quantity of the scarce goods and services in France. The same effect, obviously, could have been obtained by paying the soldiers only a quarter of what was due them in dollars, holding the rest for payment to them on the return to this country and permitting them to convert their dollars into francs at the actual instead of the artificial rate. What this juggling of exchange rates amounts to is taxing every American soldier in France 75 per cent of his pay in order to bolster the French financial system. Now the French are graciously giving back about 10 per cent of their cut. The whole arrangement stinks and the current announcement only serves to bring the stench into the open.

HOPEFUL IF TRUE

The Times of London, commenting on discussions concerning the restoration of Indo-China to France, observes that French statesmen will have the opportunity of sharing with Britain and the Netherlands the responsibility, at once delicate and essential, of guiding the national movements of the east along the road leading to self-government and international coöperation.

This is a rather striking departure from the traditional viewpoint of Maj. Astor's paper, long known as almost an official mouthpiece for the British foreign office. This Tory organ in the past has shown little tender concern for the empire's colonial subjects, the exploitation of whom has been accepted as a necessity in maintaining the British ruling class, in which the Astor family definitely belongs.

The Times makes clear that its new position is not dictated solely by altruism, however, for it attributes the development of the spirit of nationalism in the orient to the Japanese occupation. The Japs failed in their military program, but there is no doubt that their propaganda of "Asia for the Asiatics" will long outlast their occupation of colonial territories. The defeat of the western empires in the early months of the war has had repercussions from India to the Dutch Indies. The unquestioned position of the sahib has been badly shaken.

Whatever the motives that have influenced the change in tune of the Times, the fact that it has been recognized that Asiatics are entitled to something better than imperialistic exploitation is heartening. It is to be hoped that words are bolstered by acts.

UP THE SACRED MOUNTAIN

We gather from the news that the zone of American military occupation around Tokyo will include Mt. Fujiyama, world famous as the centerpiece of Japanese scenery. We assume, therefore, that American soldiers will soon be devoting their leaves to ascents of the sacred cone, unless military necessity forbids this form of energetic merriment.

There are three trails up Fujiyama available from the Tokyo-Yokohama area. We recommend the one in the middle, the Subashiri trail, for patriotic reasons. At its foot the Yanks will discover, probably to their great surprise, a monument to an American citizen which was erected by his Japanese admirers. It commemorates an enthusiastic observer and recorder of Japanese folklore and customs—the late Frederick Starr, professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago.

For many years Freddy Starr, as the students always called him, was the choicest character on the Midway campus. He was romantic, for he traveled in strange countries and brought back, to garnish his stark bachelor quarters, uncanny relics such as African juju masks, Inca mummies, and Mexican Indian skulls. He was comic, for he looked like a sarcastic cherub, had a blue tooth that waggled, and read books while walking abroad. His gifts of wit and imagination made him a talker whom reporters loved, and so Freddy was on the first pages of the newspapers oftener than any prof. of his time. At alumni reunions his former students would embrace him and recall his fabulous ice cream parties, when the stealing of the freezer from his back porch was a major objective in the career of the sophomore class.

Prof. Starr had a familiar spirit in the form of a Mexican boy, an orphan whom he adopted. When this lad was murdered on an expedition in Mexico, the professor abandoned that land to its anthropological fate, and took up Japan in a large way. After his retirement, he established his home in Seattle, where the marus for Yokohama were at his doorstep.

His last book was "Fujiyama, the Sacred Mountain of Japan," published in 1924. Every important Buddhist and Shinto shrine in Japan has had a ceremonial visit from Freddy Starr, who often made such pilgrimages in native costume.

PEACE AFTER STORM

Tho fitful thunders rumbled on and on,
The tempest ceased at last, and blessed calm
Was here. From dawn to dusk and dusk to dawn
We marveled, drinking in the long-wished balm.
How much our souls sought healing God alone
Can tell. He knows we feared the glaring lights
And bowed our souls before His august throne
Imploring Him to hide the gruesome sights.

Our God is good; we feel it in our hearts,
To bring an end before its time seemed near,
A quiet time while each to each imparts
New hope succeeding doubt and constant fear.
O God who tamed the thunders, Thee we praise,

A Boy's Buried Treasure

Who in boyhood didn't read and dream about buried treasure? I did—and found it, too!

My brother and I, swimming in a nearby lake, found a big trunk on the muddy bottom, 10 feet deep. By diving and hammering it with rocks, we opened a hand-sized hole in its side, and pulled out a small leather bag. It was full of old American small change and coins of foreign origin. We also fished out what looked like bits of paper money.

We rushed home to tell Pa and Ma of the treasure in the submerged trunk. He swore us to secrecy and organized an expedition, with a horse and wagon, 50 feet of strong rope, a sledge hammer, and two lanterns.

We boys dived and nearly drowned ourselves fastening the rope around the trunk. Then Pa's horse snaked it ashore. We opened it in the basement like conspirators and found this treasure: 100,000 tobacco store coupons, tied in bundles; 7 bolts of ancient calico, 6 flat irons, and an iron cuspidor shaped like a turtle.

I still keep the iron turtle and use it as a door stop. It represents my closest approach to the riches of Monte Cristo. Alexander Belfuss

THE DUKE'S DALMATIAN

[A Bakrak Ballad]

The Duke has spots before his eyes,
Which shouldn't cause too much surprise
For they belong upon a hound
He claims he either bought or found.
Dalmatian coach dogs are quite rare
And seem to need especial care,
So Duke buys dog food by the crate
With vitamins irradiate,
Which is passed up for table scraps.
And so the moral is, perhaps,
That dogs, like people, all condemn
The things it's claimed are good for them!

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

Mrs. E. F. writes: "My son has been in the navy for nearly a year and has not sent any allotment to me. I need his help. Can I apply to the navy for an allotment or does he have to make the application?"

The application must be made by your son unless he is missing or prevented from making the application. Parents are either class B or B-1 dependents and allowances are not granted to these classes of dependents without the consent of the enlisted man. Wives, who are class A dependents, may make application for family allowances if their husbands do not.

H. R. asks: "How can the premiums on my son's insurance with a private company be taken from his army pay? My son is overseas."

Any person in service may make an allotment from his pay in favor of a private insurance company for the payment of premiums on life insurance. This is merely a convenience offered by the government to insure against lapse of private insurance for the service man.

T. B. asks: "Where can I apply for the mustering out pay of my son who was killed in action in Europe? When will I get my pension?"

You are entitled to six months' gratuity pay as a result of your son's death, but no mustering out pay. You must prove dependency before you are entitled to a pension.

ERYSIPELAS, A STREP INFECTION

IN MEDIEVAL days, eight diseases were regarded as violently contagious: anthrax, consumption, epilepsy, erysipelas, leprosy, scabies, and trachoma. I don't know why epilepsy was placed in this category; but a thousand years from now those who delve into the history of medicine in the 20th century will pause in wonder at some of our classifications. Perhaps in that far off era our descendants will understand the cause and cure of all these maladies.

Today we consider erysipelas mildly contagious. Because of improvements in public sanitation and personal hygiene we no longer encounter the widespread epidemics that swept over Europe in the middle ages. Since the discovery of the sulfonamides and penicillin, fatalities are few and far between.

Nevertheless, this ailment is not licked. It is more common in infants, tho no age is exempt. As a rule, the condition follows injury to the skin. In the newborn, infection enters thru the navel; women who have recently given birth, via the pelvic region. Years ago, when girls routinely pierced the lobes in order to wear the type of earring then in vogue, a successful portal of entry was provided.

With men, shaving nicks frequently furnish an opening for the causative agent. In other patients the illness occurs subsequent to surgery or a respiratory infection; and it has been observed as a complication of chickenpox. If the tissues have been weakened by burns or skin disorders such as ringworm, a favorable environment is offered to the microbe.

The organism responsible is a streptococcus related to the strain which causes scarlet fever. Apparently the strep is with us always, but if resistance is maintained at par we keep the upper hand. Should we allow our reserve to drop, it is easy to understand how any "bug" can take the offensive. We know that streptococal infections assume many manifestations. In the case of erysipelas, which is referred to as a skin disease, there may be marked constitutional symptoms.

The first lesion usually appears abruptly after a chill, altho a 24 hour notice may be given in the form of a mild indisposition. The affected patch, about the size of a quarter, is dark red, swollen, hot, glossy, and tender to the touch. As the eruption spreads, the original site may clear up and there may be no further extension. But in the severer forms, a much larger surface may become involved.

With the appearance of the skin outbreak, the temperature shoots up and may reach a height of 105 degrees F. Fever persists so long as the rash continues to advance and, unless sulfa therapy is instituted promptly, this takes approximately a week. As fading begins, the level drops and shedding and scaling ensue.

One attack does not confer immunity and, in spite of the hopeful outlook, there is no sense in tempting fate by encouraging bacterial invasion. Ninety per cent of the cases start on the face. This means that we should stop, look, and listen before picking or squeezing blemishes. This will help to prevent recurrences.

DIABETIC DIET

M. A. writes: Are carbohydrates omitted entirely in diabetes?

REPLY

Not at all; in fact, the diet usually contains more carbohydrates than either fats or proteins. When insulin is administered, a more liberal intake is allowed. In general, the total amount is less than that consumed by a normal individual.

SOONER OR LATER

B. C. writes: Can one go on living with gallstones or do they have to be removed?

REPLY

A person may live comfortably for a long time with stones but, in most instances, surgery becomes necessary eventually. A bland diet low in fats must be resorted to during their presence.

TEAM WORK

J. U. G. writes: What is the function of the arteries and veins?

REPLY

The arteries take the blood from the heart to all parts of the body; the veins pick it up from where the arteries end and bring it back to the heart.

The Town That Sweet Potatoes Built

For 60 days during the battle for Okinawa the natives of Ishikawa [Stone River] lived on nothing except sweet potatoes, the AAF magazine in the Pacific, Brief, reports. In that period its population jumped from 1,800 to 18,000, the town opened a jail, an orphanage, an insane asylum, a school, and a home for the aged. During the day 300 women would go into the fields and dig sweet potatoes. At night their harvest would be divided equally among all the residents. The next day a new crew would go out. Those who didn't work didn't eat. When, at the end of 60 days, the town got its first issue of rice, the residents were so excited they piled up all the sweet potatoes in a public square, named it Potato Plaza, and held a tremendous festival on top of them. One Okinawa debutante [clad in many kimonos] did a folk dance with fans. American spectators said Sally Rand was better. And all for a handful of rice.

He Couldn't Sit Down

For 15 or 20 years Percy Wilson, Chicago mortgage banker, has given an annual outing for Chicago newspaper real estate and financial editors. A few days ago the event came up again. As Mr. Wilson had promised steak, the crowd gathered early and eagerly. Not only was there a steak dinner at night, but there was a fried chicken luncheon in midday, the two gorging contests separated by an afternoon of golf, all at the Knollwood Country club. Dinner time came and all settled hungrily around the table. Suddenly some goof counted noses. "Thirteen," he said. Every one laughed. "We can't have that," Mr. Wilson said. Every one laughed again. Superstitious at a steak dinner in rationed days? Nonsense. In came the first course: Crab meat. They pounced into it. One gentleman looked up and noticed Mr. Wilson was not at his place. He commented on it. "O, well," another said, "he'll be back. Don't you think we'd better eat?" They did. The salad came, and still no host, and still they ate. Finally the steak came, enormous steaks inches thick. "Think we ought to wait for Percy now?" some one asked. No, was the reply, as they dug into the steaks.

The slowest eater was almost thru when Mr. Wilson appeared, towing a stranger. "Gentlemen," he said, "I want to introduce Mr. Parsons." Mr. Parsons sat down and tore into a steak, as did Mr. Wilson. His dinner partner essayed a few words of polite chit-chat, but Mr. Parsons was reticent. He ate on and on, so silently that at one point another guest cried: "Don't make so much noise, Mr. Parsons!" As the dinner came to its gorged end, Mr. Parsons somehow faded away as unobtrusively as he had eaten. Then the host arose. "Maybe I'd better explain Mr. Parsons," he said. "I decided I just couldn't sit down with 13 at the table, and I went out to look for some one to join us. I had a devil of a time finding some one." His incredulous guests agreed it must have been tough. Forty-five minutes to find a man willing to eat steak. The war is really over.

NEW DEAL ORIENTATION

Camp Atterbury, Ind., Aug. 17—I charge the present administration with using the so-called "reconditioning educational" program of the army as a propaganda organization designed to convert the returning GI to the principles of New Dealism.

Thruout my army career my impression has been that much of the "orientation" I was exposed to has been thinly disguised political propaganda. However, of late much of the disguise has been dropped.

I believe that some one could render a great public service by investigating the source of much of this material and proposing some form of nonpartisan censorship. PRIVATE

LOW FLYING PLANES

Chicago, Aug. 11—Low flying by airplanes over Chicago, and particularly the loop, is positively forbidden by the government. Rules are enforced by the civil aeronautics administration, which has an office at Chicago airport. Citizens may report complaints there to Inspector Clark, giving the plane's wing number, and the time and place of low flying. If it is found that the pilot was operating his plane at less than the CAA minimum ceiling of 1,000 feet, without due cause, the pilot will fly no more.

Most air lines fly over the loop at 2,600 feet and airport authorities say 2,000 is minimum. The general ceiling of 1,000 feet for urban areas is intended to permit a plane to glide, in the event of motor trouble, to an airport or to open country. DAVE CUNNINGHAM

MAIL FROM HOLLAND

Chicago, Aug. 19—Adriana Sonnevedd in THE TRIBUNE of Aug. 19, stated that letters coming from the Netherlands must be mailed in England. I have seen and read several letters which came from the Netherlands since its liberation. Those mailed in April and May had British stamps and postmark. From the contents of these letters, I gather that directly after the liberation there was no mail going directly out of the Netherlands. These letters were given to Canadian soldiers, who mailed them in England.

More recent letters have the Netherlands stamp and postmark, and therefore must come direct from there. I think if some kind Canadian had not taken Adriana's letter she would not have received it so promptly.

THEY COLLECT, TOO

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 18—A deal of nonsense is being uttered about the "vast army of the unemployed" due to the conversion from war to peace and the consequent release of workers. Regardless of what one may think about the wisdom of unemployment compensation, I am wondering whether, among those held to be entitled to such compensation and covered in "Labor's" figures as to the extent of unemployment, are to be included the thousands of women who never worked before but, out of desire for high wages or some degree of patriotism, took jobs in war plants or elsewhere, which jobs have now been taken away. It seems to me that they should not, in any sound sense, be regarded as "unemployed."

1. Not as to the joint tenancy assets.
2. The question whether the will is probated has nothing to do with your being subject to the inheritance tax, except as it may present the facts of record.

HEWITT OFFERS PLAN FOR SEWER CHARGES TO RAISE $3,300,000

Raising of $3,300,000 a year thru a service charge on connections to the city's sewer system was proposed yesterday by Public Works Commissioner Hewitt at a meeting of the council committee on planning. Chairman Lindell [8th] said a new law permits the city to make such a charge.

Hewitt suggested a 50 cents a month charge, to be added to water bills, on each of the 540,000 sewer outlets of six inches or smaller diameter, the type used for residences and most apartments and stores. The fees would be graduated up to $1 a month for the larger sewers, a few of which are 30 inches.

The added $3,300,000 would go a long way toward rehabilitating and replacing Chicago sewers, Hewitt said. He urged the city to go ahead nevertheless, with a projected 86 million dollar ten year program of new construction. Committee members said they hoped this work could be financed by a loan from the federal works agency.

REBELS IN IRAN ARMY ADVANCE ON HOLY CITY

TEHRAN, Iran, Aug. 22 (AP)—Iran ordered troops today to protect the holy city of Meshed, in northeastern Iran, against what the minister of war termed an attack by a band of mutineering officers and soldiers.

The minister said the mutiny started at Khorassan. A number of Iranian officers and 15 soldiers commandeered two army trucks, radios, rifles, and ammunition and fled. Later, they disarmed an Iran cavalry squadron, whose officers joined the mutineers.

TOURISTS FLOCK TO RESORTS IN NEARBY STATES

Thousands of vacationers, freed from gasoline rationing, are swarming into the north woods and lake regions of Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota. Resort owners are preparing for record crowds, especially from the Chicago area, expected to pour into those playground sections this week-end and for the rest of the warm season.

Many resort areas already are crowded. Some have been since long before rationing ended—in fact, all summer. Popular northern Wisconsin resorts are reported "packed to the roofs." The stay of guests—even old customers — is limited to two weeks in some places.

Thruout the three states resorts that usually close their season after Labor day report bookings into October. Persons without reservations frequently find themselves seriously inconvenienced. Against their original intentions, numerous vacationers become real tourists because they can't find a place to stop for long.

A survey of the Chicagoland vacationing situation disclosed the following details:

WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Aug. 22 [Special]—The influx of tourists into Wisconsin promises to be so heavy that the resort industry, rated the state's second most important business, may surpass in this war shortened year the record set in 1941.

"Resorts are packed to the roof," reported Clyde Tutton, chief of the state beverage tax division. Resort owners advised that advance reservations are necessary in most cases. Tourist trade thruout the state has been good all summer and promises to continue for a month or more.

Frank Graas, Gov. Goodland's legislative secretary, said resorts on th Door county peninsula have had one of their best tourist seasons in history.

H. H. Alexander, superintendent of recreational publicity of the state conservation commission, said 163,000 nonresident fishing licenses have been issued thus far in 1945, as compared with 158,889 for the big resort year of 1941.

MICHIGAN

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22 [Special]—Northern Michigan's tourist business is booming as it never has before in late August when it is usually on the decline. Resort area bookings are being extended into October. Traffic is approaching pre-war figures. A third state ferry was pressed into service in the Straits of Mackinac to handle northern bound vacationers.

Overnight cabin camps are doing a rush business. They were sold out in Mackinaw City and many other places. Gaylord reported a food shortage with stores closing at noon because they had nothing more to sell.

"Most of the travelers are just touring, they are not stopping at the lake resorts because they are full already," said William Palmer, manager of the West Michigan Tourist association. "They go from place to place, spending the night where darkness finds them."

MINNESOTA

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 22 [Special]—Resorts in northern Minnesota have enjoyed their busiest season in years and are preparing for a late season boom. Verne E. Joslin, state tourist bureau director, said virtually all resorts were filled to capacity during the summer months and that now they are being flooded with telephone calls and telegrams from persons seeking accommodations.

CHAUFFEUR IS HELD IN THEFT OF $3,000 FROM UNDERTAKER

Albert Russell, 43, who was returned to Chicago from Los Angeles, Cal., to answer a charge of grand larceny of $3,000 from an undertaking parlor at 3604 Ogden av., was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge William V. Daly in Felony court. Detective Emil Smicklas told the court that Russell admitted taking the money June 27 while he was employed by Miss Irma Roach, owner of the company, as a chauffeur. Miss Roach said the $3,000 was an educational fund for her two nephews.

REPORTS BRITAIN AND AUSTRALIA IN SECRET ROW

Canberra's Role in Jap Surrender Is Issue

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 22 [Reuters]—A bitter behind the scenes diplomatic struggle between the British and Australian governments over Australia's position in the Japanese surrender has been going on for a few weeks, the Canberra correspondent of the Sydney Sun reported today.

Australia's complaint, he said, was that, tho she was the main supporter of the British empire in the Pacific, Australia was being relegated to a position of dependency. The writer said Australia had found that Britain did not fight to have her represented at the surrender and armistice negotiations. Consequently, he added, Australia had asked the United States to obtain that representation.

Britain, the correspondent added, wanted only one Australian brigade to go to Japan, but Australia had decided to send two. Australia also had rejected a suggestion that the Australian force operate under a British commander, and had insisted that the force have its own commanders, subject only to the direction of Gen. MacArthur.

Minor Powers to Sign

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 22 (AP)—Representatives of minor allied powers will sign Japanese surrender documents at Tokyo in the same manner as delegates from the United States, Russia, England, and China, it was announced today by John A. Beasley, Australian defense minister. In this group will be Australia, France, Canada, New Zealand, and the Netherlands.

Beasley said the decision giving the smaller countries full participation in the capitulation ceremony was made following strong representations by the commonwealth government concerning Australian rights in the surrender arrangements. In replying favorably to these representations the United States referred to the "outstanding part Australia played in the war against Japan."

"No Pacific country outside the United States has played a more significant role in the struggle against Japan than Australia," Beasley said.

Thanks for MacArthur

Prime Minister J. B. Chifley sent a message of thanks today to Gen. MacArthur for "the incalculable service you rendered Australia by your leadership in this area which so happily resulted in the complete defeat of our enemy."

Chifley also expressed "our deep appreciation for the service and sacrifice of members of the United States armed forces which came to our aid in our hour of great need, and who played such a magnificent part, in association with Australian forces, in making possible complete success of allied arms in the Pacific area."

Sydney Paper Objects

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Sydney Sun, in a front page editorial today, said "a timely lesson for Australia was recorded when Gen. Wedemeyer, American commander in China, in his congratulatory telegram to Gen. MacArthur, claimed Buna, Gona, Salamaua, and Lae as American victories. If the American war leader harbors such misinformation, what of the rest of America's millions.

"That great soldier, MacArthur, never failed to give credit to the right quarter, and the king unhesitatingly credited our diggers with 'the first victory over the Jap land forces,' yet Wedemeyer's claim can do endless harm.

"It isn't a matter of idle boasting. Australia's prestige in the eyes of the world, her status at the peace tables, her rightful place in history demand the widest factual publicity for the deeds of her sons.

"They fought on so many fronts all over the world that they are bound to figure in the histories of all allied countries."

MP SAYS BRITISH HIT AT WINNIE AS A DICTATOR

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—John McGovern, an independent Labor party member of parliament from Shettleton, said today "people resented the dictatorial attitude" of Winston Churchill during the war.

"The first time they had the opportunity of administering a rebuke they did so," McGovern declared, referring to the recent general election.

"Churchill was going round smoking his cigar with his hat on top of a stick and giving the V sign," McGovern said. "People felt he was enjoying the war and felt it was his private war and that he was prepared to carry it on, as Mrs. Churchill said, until the cows came home."

ROCKFORD FINDS 5 NEW CASES OF POLIO; TOTAL 169

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 22 [Special]—Five new cases of infantile paralysis today brought the number of cases in the Rockford area since July 1 to 169, but physicians at the headquarters of the Winnebago County Infantile Paralysis Foundation insisted the outbreak has passed its peak.

No infantile paralysis deaths were reported in the last 24 hours. Since the outbreak began there have been 19 deaths.

The headquarters said it received word today that Col. F. B. Meriweather, head of the United States public health service in Chicago, will arrive here tomorrow with a group of public health experts to begin a scientific study into the cause of the wave of poliomyelitis here.

Polio Tapering Off

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—An official of the United States public health service said today reports indicate that this year's nation-wide outbreak of infantile paralysis "might be tapering off." The total number of cases for the year up to Aug. 18 was 4,276, compared with 6,262 for the corresponding period last year.

BENES TO START 4 YEAR CZECH RECOVERY PLAN

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Czech officials in London disclosed to night that President Eduard Benes will soon inaugurate a four year economic program aimed at bringing Czechoslovakia back to peace time production ahead of other European countries formerly occupied by the Nazis.

Altho details of the program were unavailable, it was understood that Benes has worked out plans to set factories, plants, and mines into speedy production on a scale that will regain for the nation her former industrial position by the end of four years. Czech officials expressed conviction that a normal economic and industrial scale could be achieved in three years.

Heavy industry already is producing between 50 and 60 per cent of the 1938 output. The great Skoda arms works, which the Germans used to full extent during the war years, is now back in partial production, turning out equipment for the Czech army. Under the Benes plans they soon will begin manufacturing peace time products, such as agricultural machinery.

NORTH TO SOUTH SHIFT DETECTED IN COUNTY POLIO

Infantile paralysis cases in the county are following a north to south course, Dr. Edward A. Piszezek, county health director, said yesterday. He revealed that a 17 year old girl in Harvey had been stricken, bringing the county's total this year to 26 cases and one death.

Three new cases were reported to city health officials. They said no north to south trend had been evident in the city. Yesterday's cases brought the yearly total to 56 and three deaths.

The Chicago and North Western railway yesterday dispatched two mechanical respirators, known as iron lungs, to Rockford to help combat the polio epidemic in that city, L. L. White, vice president in charge of operations for the road, said.

EXILED SPANIARDS IN MEXICO CHOOSE GIRAL AS PREMIER

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22 (AP)—Dr. Jose Giral, former premier of Spain, was named premier of the Spanish republican government in exile today and asked by President Diego Martinez Barrio to form a government. This government when formed must be approved by the cortes [parliament] here. Martinez Barrio said the cortes will meet after deputies in Europe and South America have arrived.

The president said he hoped the government to be formed "will be able to carry out immediately and successfully the plans for recovery of the national territory, economic reconstruction and social normality, and formal recognition of the other states."

Possibility of simultaneous severance of relations soon with the Franco government of Spain by most of the Latin American republics is indicated in diplomatic circles. Such action has been delayed by indecision in some of the republics, but conferences on the subject are continuing, it is reported in embassies. Ecuador, Colombia, Chile, and Peru were mentioned in these circles as hesitating.

SOCIAL SECURITY PAYMENTS GO TO 50,579 IN COUNTY

Social security payments amounting to $1,059,062.26 a month were being made to 50,579 aged or dependent men, women and children in Cook county on June 30, H. L. McCarthy, regional director of the social security board in Chicago, said yesterday.

The number of beneficiaries and the volume of payments may be doubled within a year as a result of industrial reconversion, he said.

Beneficiaries on the June list included 20,889 retired workers 65 years old or more who were employed in qualified business or industrial jobs; 6,379 wives, at least 65 years old, of retired workers; 6,361 widows with young children; 12,902 children of dead or retired workers; 3,780 widows, at least 65 years old, of workers, and 268 aged dependent parents of deceased workers who left no widow or children under 18 years old.

UNRRA Studies Red Plea for $700,000,000 in Relief

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—United States and British delegates to the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration conference renewed tightly guarded talks with Russia today on the soviet union's request for $700,000,000 in relief. The UNRRA council approved committee action in voting Italy full relief aid. The council voted to classify Italy as a "liberated area."

5 PUBLICATIONS WILL BLOW HORN OF AIR LEAGUE

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 22—The Provisional International Civil Aviation organization will go into the publishing business in a large way, a master plan drafted by the Canadian preparatory commission showed today.

The plan is contained in a book of 29 sections, and is being used as a working basis for the 20 nation council set up in Chicago last fall which has been meeting here for the last week. The plan will be altered in details as the council considers it, but it represents the best estimates of aviation experts of both Canada and the United States as to the needs and operation of the new global air organization.

The publication section calls for at least five regular publications, ranging from weekly to yearly issues, and leaves the door open for an even more ambitious program.

Publications Listed

"To facilitate the fullest coöperation in the field of international civil aviation," the plan says, "PCAO should undertake all publications which, on the grounds of efficiency, adequacy, and international public policy, can best be carried out by the organization."

The plan calls for publication of a weekly information circular, including particulars of customs, airports, air contracts, and agreements between nations, charges for use of international airports, and other technical data.

Press releases would be published weekly, "or more frequently when required." They would cover "short popularized reviews of those achievements, decisions, problems, and meetings of PICAO which are of public interest," and "feature articles from time to time on problems of particular public interest."

Contract Not Mentioned

The plan does not go into the problem of which nation or company will get this rich publishing contract, or whether the work will be divided up.

It has been estimated unofficially that the budget will call for expenditures of $800,000 to $1,000,000 a year to start. A conference spokesman said today that the United States wil be called upon to pay "not more than" $100,000 of this preliminary cost.

Three Weddings, Two Abroad and One Here, Are of Interest

BY JUDITH CASS

NEWS of three weddings in the immediate future is of interest. One of them will take place today in England, where Capt. Secor Delahay Browne of the army air forces will claim a young English woman as his bride. The younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Aldis J. Browne of Lake Shore dr. and Miss Mary Denise Bellamy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Giles of Wilderness rd., Chislehurst, Kent, will be married in St. Mary's church, Chislehurst, with a small reception following for members of the family and close friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Browne naturally have not met their new daughter-in-law, but they have known her for some time thru correspondence. Capt. Browne, who has been overseas two and one-half years, was stationed in England for a year but now is based in France. His duties take him frequently to England. He served in the campaigns in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, and Germany.

Capt. Browne's brother, Lt. Aldis Browne Jr., has been on naval duty in the Pacific for 18 months. His wife and their young son and her mother, Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr., have been in Santa Barbara, Cal., this summer, but will return to Chicago Sept. 10. The Brownes' daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Hollister Straus, and Pvt. Straus of the army are living in Washington, D. C. They were married last spring.

Other Weddings

Tentatively planned for Sept. 25 in Paris is another wedding of interest here. The bridegroom-to-be is Dr. Conover Talbot, younger son of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot of Division st., who is serving as a captain in the army medical corps. The young woman who will be his bride is Lt. Helen Wallace of the army nurse corps. Both are stationed in a general hospital outside Paris, but they met in Chicago when she was in nurse's training in St. Luke's hospital. If Capt. Talbot and Lt. Wallace receive orders to return to this country next month, the wedding will be postponed and will take place here later.

Capt. Talbot, a graduate of Princeton university and of Northwestern university's medical school, interned in the University of Baltimore hospital in Baltimore, Md. His sister, Mrs. Bennett W. Carrington Jr., just has returned home from Passavant hospital with her new son, born Aug. 8 and named for his father. Lt. Comdr. Carrington, who recently was promoted to that rank in the naval reserve, is expected soon from Norman, Okla., to see the baby.

Another wedding date which just has been set is that of Miss Alice Polk Warner and Lt. [j. g.] William L. McLennan of the naval reserve. Lt. McLennan returned on leave yesterday from duty in the Pacific, and next Monday he and Miss Warner will be married. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 p. m. in Christ church, Winnetka. Only the families will be present, and a reception for the same small group will follow in the Winnetka home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Polk Warner.

Miss Warner will be attended by Lt. McLennan's subdebutante niece, Nancy Ober, daughter of the Woodbury S. Obers. Lt. McLennan, son of Mrs. Donald R. McLennan of Lake Forest, and his bride will go to Newport, R. I., temporarily. Miss Warner is the daughter of R. Miles Warner of Greenwich, Conn.

News of Births

At Martha's Vineyard, Mass., where he is stationed with the naval reserve air forces, Lt. [j. g.] J. Thomas Martin III, is celebrating the arrival of his son yesterday in Easton, Md., where his wife, the former Joan Hixon, has been staying with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Elliot Wheeler. The baby is a fourth grandson for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon of Lake Forest. Because of Mr. Hixon's illness, he and his wife do not plan a trip east to meet the baby in the near future.

The Hixons' two elder daughters, Mrs. Maurice F. Hanson and Mrs. Milton Wilson Jr., their husbands, and the Hansons' two sons and the Wilsons' little boy have been sharing the old Aldis home in Lake Forest this summer. In September the Hansons will return to Washington, D. C., where Mr. Hanson is connected with the office of war information. He now is here on a two weeks vacation.

Three year old Susan Hackbert and her brother, Paul II., who is 2, soon will be welcoming a new brother, Peter Harlan, to their nursery in Evanston. The third child of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan L. Hackbert [Joanne Williams] was born Sunday in Evanston hospital.

Engagement News

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Bechstein of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Beverly Willis, to Lt. William E. Van Dessel Jr. of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Dessel of Munith, Mich., formerly of Evanston. Miss Bechstein was graduated from Stephens college and from Northwestern university. Her fiancé, who served overseas for eight months, is stationed in Walla Walla, Wash. He was pilot of a B-24 and holds the European theater ribbon with four battle stars, the air medal with three oak leaf clusters, the distinguished flying cross, and a Presidential citation for service in Holland.

Barbara Straw Is Bride Today in Lake Forest

The Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest will be decorated with greens and white lilies for the marriage at 5 p. m. today of Miss Barbara Straw and Lt. Willard Wilkins Brown of the naval reserve air forces. Here for the wedding and reception to follow in the Lake Forest home of the bride's parents, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. H. Foster Straw, are Lt. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royal Hunter Brown of Maplewood, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond De Voe of New York, and Miss Dorothy Shepard of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Edna Noll of New York will serve as maid of honor, and the duties of bridesmaids will be shared by Miss Jean Wilkin of Barbados, British West Indies, and Miss Louise Young of Lake Forest. Lt. George J. Seel IV. of Maplewood will be best man, and ushering will be the bride's brother, John Parker Straw, and Ensign John Condo. Lt. Brown and his bride will use his two week leave visiting Yellowstone Park en route to his new post in Seattle, Wash.

Miss Charlotte Meredith Meyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Meyers of Winnetka, has set Sept. 1 as the date for her marriage to Lt. Ralph A. Benz Jr., of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benz of Tucson, Ariz. The wedding will take place in SS. Faith, Hope, and Charity church in Winnetka, followed by a reception in the Evanston Golf club. Mrs. Gordon L. Pirie wil serve as matron of honor, and Miss Mary Jane Williams, Miss Dorothy Butler, Miss Nancy Hillis, Miss Marcia Fitch, Miss Nancy Sprague of Long Beach, Ind., and Miss Maria Strehlow of Peoria, Ill., will be bridesmaids. The bride's brother, William, who is attending marine officers' candidate school at Quantico, Va., will be best man.

Lt. Benz will take his bride to Luke field, Ariz., where he is stationed following his return from duty overseas.

Hats Literally Strike a New High in Style

BY REA SEEGER

The height of a hat is still the most exciting and important fashion news of the new fall season. The hats add more than six inches, sometimes as much as nine inches, to the silhouette. With them all women appear slim, sleek, and incredibly tall. High crowns achieve this new skyscraper headline. Some hats with very narrow and shallow brims, by contrast, make the crown even higher in outline.

When crowns are high, the contrast trim is doubly effective. Formerly a single band of fur, a ribbon, or flowers were all that could be managed without making the whole creation top heavy. Now this trick is doubled. Two bands of trim, one around the base of the crown and another around the top of the crown, are not out of the ordinary.

Veils, either short and heavy or fine and hanging well down at the back, are smarter than ever. The big mesh patterns are extremely distinctive with big bulky hats and with the severely plain felts. The hats really require such softening devices to make them feminine and flattering. Pewter gray veils on off-white hats are very different, and so are the spicy copper tone veils on black hats.

Copper colored satin ribbon with a black hat is another sure fire contrast. This subtle and unusual combination of brown with black is as high fashion as in other seasons. The hats are distinctive with black or brown costumes.

There is a revival of lustrous satin ribbon for contrast trim on the early fall and winter hats. Some hats have bows of satin ribbon in three or four skilfully blended colors. These are the very feminine hats to wear with suits as well as with the first fall wool dresses and coat-dresses.

Both the extremely high hats and those of lesser altitude and with wider brims flaunt this flattering contrast of many bows of satin ribbon in harmonizing or effective contrast arrangements. Some of them have the additional feminine wisp of filmy contrast of veiling, usually in shades of taupe, light brown, or deep navy blue, no matter what the color of the hat.

Seekers of Help for Household Find There Is Still a War On

If you're looking for household help, you may as well know there is still a war on. It's the war women workers are waging to keep from going back to the kitchen—somebody else's kitchen.

Japan's surrender ended war jobs for hundreds of women, but so far only a handful have indicated they'll take domestic service instead. All of which is bad news for housewives who have made the phrase "after the war is over" their hope song for aching backs and dishpan hands.

Employment agencies said yesterday the trend seemed to be to seek work in peace time industry or to settle down for a spell of rest on an unemployment compensation income.

At the United States employment service representatives said the displaced women who need to work are seeking jobs related to what they were doing in war industry and are finding them.

Miss Josephine Jensen, who has handled the domestic help desk at the Northside Employment Service, 4802 Broadway, for 10 years, said one woman from a war plant had come in this week and taken a household job.

Miss Jensen said a maid's average of $25 a week, with room and board thrown in and with no withholding tax or social security deductions, amounts to more than the earnings of a $40 week secretary. But girls still won't seek domestic jobs, she asserted, until they have to unless some changes are made. She listed a principal need as more free time.

Mrs. Marie Louis Dexter of the Marie Louise Bureau de Placement, 721 N. Michigan av., said three women came in from war plants this week and took domestic jobs. Mrs. Elizabeth Beck, owner of Jane Estabrook's Household registry, 49 E. Oak st., said about 10 had come in from the war industries, most of them men seeking places as private chauffeurs. She said the men told her the former domestic workers among the women were "not in any hurry to get back" and were "planning on that unemployment compensation."

"It will be at least two months and maybe longer before we'll know if there is a surplus in the employe pool," Miss Annetta Dieckmann, metropolitan industrial secretary of the Young Women's Christian association, said.

Miss Dieckmann is acting executive of the Household Employers' league, an organization of women pledged to abide by set standards for household help. These include paid vacations, time and one-half for overtime, and definite understandings on wages and hours.

"They won't take domestic jobs if they can get factory work," was the way Harry La Velle, manager of the Acorn Employment agency, 2300 Lake st., expressed his lack of workers for domestic listings. He handles Negro help.

Harold Thompson of the Tivoli agency, 6312 Cottage Grove av., said that only a few new applicants had appeared in the last week. His agency handles a large placement of day workers.

Telephone calls to USES offices in Evanston, Oak Park, and Wheaton showed that suburban offices had plenty of calls for domestic help and few answers. Mrs. Margaret Smith, Evanston manager, said fewer than 10 women had indicated in the last week they'd take household assignments.

A statement from the war man power commission yesterday bore out the USES announcement that women workers could go into reconverted industry. Among the openings listed were 670 sewing machine operators. Employment agency managers said they understood many of their former domestic help clients were interested in that kind of industrial work.

Intermission

"I'll not think of the office once!"
You vow when leaving for a rest
To get away from ddily chores
And do the things you like the best.

Then at the hotel lobby desk
You hear the sound of typing keys
And think, "If I were doing that I'd work with much more speed and ease."

You meet new people on the pier
And talk and swim [have so much fun!],
But when you mention where you work
You learn they know your boss' son.

You also see your company's ads
That sell your product here to Nome,
And thus you learn, despite your vows,
You can't forget your office home!

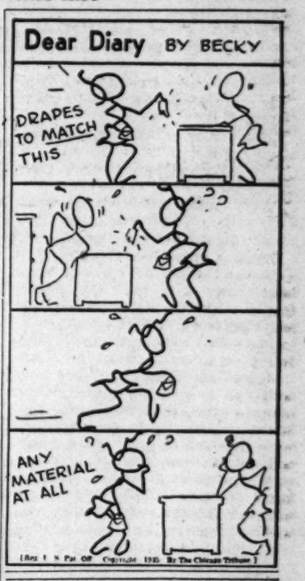
Social Myth

With many persons wondering what will be the fate of the older worker in post-war adjustments, some comments of Dr. Lydia G. Giberson, industrial psychiatrist, are worth consideration. Said Dr. Giberson in a lecture at McGill university: "Doctors from the Harvard fatigue laboratory decided that the assumption that there is a rapid decline after 40 years of age in the quality and quantity of work is 'a social myth, which, tho in some respects not misleading, is inconsistent with the evidence. The rate of decline in capacities after 45 has been grossly exaggerated. There is little reason for taking the position as a ground for action that, in general, men over 45 years of age are less effective than others in industrial occupations.'

"My own experience in industry," Dr. Giberson continued, "would lead me to agree with these last findings. I would add only that I have found them also true for women. . . . To put the matter clearly, the industrial workers of 45-65 years of age constitute a normal group of workmen, and by this I mean normal as judged by almost any set of standards. . . . When this group is criticized I should like, just for the record, to have the critic state clearly his own age and expectancies."



Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 22—Bing Crosby and his brother, Everett, are all ready and set to go for another 5 million dollars. They've got the rights and will put on the screen that Irish-Jewish classic, "Abie's Irish Rose." It wouldn't surprise me one bit if Bing ended up playing Rose. Maybe he could make the character Tokyo Rose. . . . British producers cabled Freddie Finklehoffe an offer to open "Daisy" in London before Christmas. But Freddie has other plans for his musical. He'll put on this period comedy, which he wrote in collaboration with Sid Silvers [who is just out of the army], in New York. The personnel of the show is all set. The cast will include Ella Logan, Bert Wheeler, Sid Silvers, and the De Marcos. Finklehoffe is negotiating with Richard Rogers and Oscar Hammerstein II. for the musical setting. . . . I hear Katharine Hepburn is reading a refurbished version of "The Razor's Edge" in which the part of Isabel has been written with Hepburn's talents in mind. It's a complex role, but Katie could play it—and how! . . . Music-Man Phil Harris and Producer Mark Hellinger were in a luncheon huddle recently about Mark producing a picture with Phil in star spot.

Plans to Rise and Sing Again

Irving Berlin is busy on the music and lyrics for a new Broadway show which will feature Rise Stevens. Irving's doing the whole thing. It seems the story is a minor consideration—the music's the thing. . . . "Silver Lining," the Marilynn Miller life story Producer Jerry Wald will make with Joan Leslie in the lead role, really will be started soon. Lynn Root is working like mad on the script. . . . The Glenn Langans [she was former Showgirl Lucille Weston] are expecting a baby next spring after seven years of marriage. The Langans met when he was a Roxy theater doorman and she was a showgirl on the Roxy stage stooging for Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.

20 Children Are Stars for a Day

Twenty kids between the ages of 5 and 12, children of men in service, had a grand time in Griffith park yesterday, and earned regulation extra salaries when they played in Tom Breneman's "Breakfast in Hollywood." Breneman, who has a huge following among bluejackets and GIs, suggested the idea of using servicemen's children. The children were brought to the park in a studio bus, rode the merry-go-round with Bonita Granville and Eddie Ryan, and got autographs from every one except the wooden horses. After Director Harold Schuster called it a day, they topped off the activities with a tour of the zoo. . . . Barry Sullivan will play the lead in "Tokyo Rose," Pine and Thomas say. Osa Massen is all set for a feminine role. But Rose, who would smell as sweet by any other name, hasn't been cast as yet.

Technical Director Is Real McCoy

When Metro picked Grant B. Cooper as the technical director for the Lana Turner-John Garfield epic, "The Postman Always Rings Twice," they got the real McCoy. Cooper was assistant district attorney for Los Angeles county for eight years. He obtained the first death penalty in California under the Lindbergh kidnaping law. . . . I hear Irene Ryan and Sidney Miller will produce that musical review they've written together, "Hayride in Havana." I wonder if they remember "Mexican Hayride" with Bobby Clark which scored a hit in New York last year? Hay! hay! . . . Local athletes released from service took movie jobs before the opening of the fall semester. Don Maimberg, star left tackle for the University of California at Los Angeles, was out of uniform one week when he went into "Tarzan and the Leopard Man," with Johnny Weismuller. Charles MacBride did the same thing. Neither plans to stay in pictures, however.

Camera Appearance for Dancer

The talent scouts' good deed for this week undoubtedly will be the signing of beauteous Mia Slavenska, ballerina of "Song Without Words," for a camera appearance. Every studio had a hawk-eye there opening night. It's a shame the voices didn't come up to Franz Steininger's adaptation of the Tschaikowsky music and the splendid Forman Brown lyrics. . . . A persistent rumor credits the return of Busby Berkeley to Metro to a reshoot program for the finale of "Ziegfeld Follies." . . . With Hollywood going location mad, Wilbur Clarke, one of the owners of El Rancho Vegas hotel, has pulled a smoothie. He's bought vast acreage outside Las Vegas and is equipping it with studio buildings to rent. We'll have westerns with a new locale, it seems. . . . If Oscar Brodney's screenplay of the life of Arthur Murray suits Universal when finished, George Murphy is their choice to play it.

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Mildred Meinert, Montague, Mich.]

THE QUESTION

WHERE ASKED

Stevens building, 17 N. State st.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. William T. Gill, housewife, 1099 Sunset rd., Winnetka—I don't believe in waiting up for a child to check up on her and to make sure she comes home at a certain time. But I believe when my daughter is old enough to go out I'll wait for her to come home all starry eyed to tell me about the fun she has had.

Mrs. E. J. Kelly, saleswoman, 612 Belmont av.—Yes, I think parents should wait up for their children when they are out. If children know the parents are waiting up, they won't stay out all hours of the night. If they can get away with it they love to stay up late. They don't realize the value of sleep.

Mrs. Anthony Flynn, fountain manager, 1755 N. Mason av.—Parents should train children so they can be trusted. Then it won't be necessary to see that they get home at a certain hour. When my children were younger I always knew when they got home but I never asked them any questions. They always told me.

Mrs. Harry Schaller, housewife, Mendota.—My son has a certain hour that he's due in at night. We have perfect trust in him to come home at that time. If he went beyond that time limit and had no logical reason or explanation, we wouldn't be so lenient with him. I would wait up for a child if it were necessary.

Mrs. Sophie Neer, housewife, 6514 Bosworth av.—What can any parent gain by waiting for children to return to their homes? I think most children would resent it. Children should be trained to be sensible and should be supervised to a certain extent but not so closely that it makes them feel uneasy.

Flying Officers' Mothers Plan Luncheon Meeting

The Mothers of Flying Army Officers will hold a noon luncheon meeting Monday in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle st. There will be a program of songs by Miss Mary Jo Brummel, accompanied by Robert McDowell.

Chicago Woman's Musical Club Will Hold Concert

With proceeds going into its scholarship fund, the Chicago Woman's Musical club will hold a benefit concert at 2 p. m. today in the Granville Methodist church at 1300 Granville av. The program, arranged by Mrs. Dayton W. Brundage, is to be shared by Miss Vera Jeske, contralto; Miss Katherine Brummel, soprano; Miss Marie Dreier, composer-accompanist, and Mrs. Marietta Burroughs, organist. Mrs. E. E. Vollmer is president of the club, which offers scholarships for talented young musicians.

Lectures Today

Arnold E. Bergstraesser, "Wilhelm Dilthey and Max Weber: An Empirical Approach," continuing series on "Philosophies of History," 4 p. m., Social Science building, University of Chicago, free.

SURPRISE DECISION

"I'm not accusing you, Sherrill, of killing Flack," said Charlton. "Fact is, not for publication, I would pick a man on the other side. But that's only a guess."

"You mean Bill Cairns," Humphreys prompted.

"I'm not saying his name."

"If you happen to be looking in the direction of Cairns you might take a glance at the big mogul behind him," Bruce said. "At the man who pulls the strings and makes his puppets jump."

Charlton turned wearily. "Give me some evidence and I'll look at him."

Bruce turned to the sheriff. "It might be interesting to find out if Quint Milroy has a good alibi for the night Flack was killed."

"If he were to tell me he was asleep in his cabin would you have any way to prove it wasn't true?" Humphreys asked.

"Just a shot in the dark," Bruce admitted. "He may be innocent as Mary's little lamb."

The owner of the Quartercircle DC had not expected the sheriff to welcome Milroy as a suspect with any enthusiasm. If there was any lead pointing to the man Humphreys would look into it thoroly, but he was not going to antagonize Milroy.

The prosecuting attorney raised a point. "Could Flack have got your hat without anybody seeing him around your place?" he asked.

"Easily," Bruce told him. "We are often all away from the house hours at a time. He could have slipped in without being seen."

Humphreys rose. "Well, I've got to get back to my office. By the way, Bruce, Mr. Barnard wants to see you before he leaves. He is starting for Washington tomorrow. He'll be at the hotel here tonight."

"Has he given you any line as to how he feels?" Bruce inquired.

"No. He is close-mouthed. I had a long talk with him today. He asked a lot of questions about Jeff Randall. You might as well know, Flack left a diary. He was Randall's man and got $40 for stealing your hat and telling Daly you were going to raid his ranch."

"That helps," Bruce said eagerly. "It helps a lot. Randall is in this now."

Charlton spoke a word of caution. "The diary doesn't say Jeff Randall. It says J. R."

"Same thing. Does Barnard know about the diary?"

"Yes. He and Sawyer have read it. Would you like to see it?"

"Very much." Bruce read what was written in the notebook and returned it to the prosecutor. "Thanks a great deal, Charlton."

"I don't know that I ought to have shown it to you," the lawyer replied. "But I don't think you had anything to do with this killing."

Bruce had a long talk with the two government men at the hotel that evening. They questioned him closely on every angle of the trouble between the cattlemen and the homesteaders. What they wanted were facts, and they offered no opinion of their own. One point struck Bruce as favorable. A great many of their queries had to do with Jeff Randall.

The decision of the administration at Washington was a stunning surprise to those of the cattlemen who had fenced government land. It came in the form of an order to take down within 30 days all fences inclosing land belonging to the federal state. Messages flew back and forth between the offending ranchmen and their congressmen. Jeff Randall went back himself, met the man in the White House, and did not help his standing with him by getting into a passion.

Jeff came home in towering rage. It did not improve his temper to discover that Daly, Applegate, and the other stockmen who had been his allies in preëmpting illegally were busy tearing down barb wire in obedience to the order. To find them very cool to him was a shock. Humphreys had shown them the notebook left by Flack. They had long resented the ramrod ways of the owner of the Diamond Tail, and it was more than they could stomach to learn that he had killed a friendly neighbor's cattle.

Cairns showed up at the Diamond Tail the day after Randall's return. He had been discharged by Daly. The two men quarreled bitterly but ended by burying their resentment and entering into a treaty of offense and defense. So the former foreman of the Pitchfork went on Randall's pay roll.

Rod remonstrated with his father about the hiring of Cairns.

"You can't afford to take Bill on," he urged. "The fellow is completely discredited. It is generally believed that he murdered Flack. Why tie him around yore neck when you are in bad yourself?"

"I'll take on anyone I like," Jeff stormed. "You may be a quitter like your brother Ben, but I'm going thru to a finish."

"What's the sense in being bullheaded when you know you're licked?" Rod asked. "No man can fight the United States government. And to hire Cairns now is like waving a red rag in front of a wild bull."

The bitter bile so filled Jeff that he wanted his enemy to know the destruction of all his hopes, the defeat of his plans, before the man went out himself in the crash of his fortunes. Jeff was no longer sure of all his men. His hatred of Sherrill they could understand and respect. What they could not forgive was the raid he had engineered on a friend's stock. One of his riders had quit. Two or three others were sullen and critical. Quint Milroy he could depend upon. The man had a dour loyalty to the one that paid him. There was a big, brutal quarterbreed called Rudy who would do anything for money, and a sidekick of his named Fox who always followed Rudy. Jeff could not count his son Rod in to obey orders.

One afternoon Rod met Linda and her brother Brand in the hills driving a bunch of strays back to Bar BB range. The girl was wearing old levis, high-heeled boots, and a dusty sombrero droopy with age. But the boy's clothes she wore could not conceal the grace of her slim little figure or the beauty of her vivid face. Rod had not seen her since the day he had broken with her at the Applegate ranch. It gave him a stab to find her so lovely.

They stopped to chat.

Probe Causes of Tension in School Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Recently we talked about safeguarding the health of the school child by having a physical checkup before the school year begins. Today we'll discuss the plight of the kindergarten or slightly older boy or girl who vomits his or her breakfast, luncheon, or both. These same children, however, on week-ends or holidays, or if kept at home with colds, eat with relish and experience no unpleasant aftermath.

Many of the mothers who write to us in connection with such school day disturbances, are quite naturally upset and are anxious to do something about it.

While some vomiting has a physical cause [and if you suspect it, consult a doctor], much of it is a psychological thing. Nervousness, excitement, and strain all are factors. And vomiting having occurred once, the habit may be formed, and repeated when the situation in which it occurred arises again. Or having created a sensation in the family, vomiting sometimes is repeated to gain a repetition of the attention and solicitude, altho the child may not himself realize his own motives. The point however is that the origin of most habitual vomiting is not physical.

When a mother feels confident that her child's vomiting is tied up with school, with some other excitement, haste, or strain, she must begin her attempt at a cure by concentrating, not only on checking the result but on removing the cause.

One of the first of these causes to cope with is hurry. You will find your own way out. Here are some suggestions:

Get your young school child to bed early so that you can get him up in plenty of time for all the morning "stunts." Any mother knows what I mean by morning "stunts." They include washing, brushing teeth, dressing, eating, going to the bathroom. Get past the first three performances so there is leisure for breakfast, and always time for the necessary bathroom trip after it.

Keep calm yourself.

See the teacher and explain the situation to her. She may unwittingly have stirred up your small one, or may be holding up some ideal of a perfect class record in promptness and attendance.

Keep these points in mind for the new term.

You can work it out, I'm sure, with these suggestions to start with; and if you realize that a take-it-for-granted attitude about school on your part will do much to help your child over the difficulties, whereas tenseness, scolding, or too much solicitude only adds fuel to the fire.

And never threaten your child, when he's never been inside a school, that he will be taught to obey "when his teachers get hold of him," if you hope to have him look forward with joy to his first years of school.

Reveal British Used Women's Scarves to Spread Propaganda

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 22—How Britain's ministry of information reached into women's fashions to spread propaganda around the world was revealed here today.

Early in the war, when many mimeographed handouts were landing in newspaper wastebaskets, a London fashion designer suggested to the ministry that Britain's story be told on gaily colored scarves and exported thruout the world. Altho silks and dyes were scarce, the ministry approved the idea and supplies were made available. Soon the scarves began appearing in the United States, Turkey, Sweden, South America, and other neutral areas.

The first scarves reproduced the government's posters urging "Lend to defend—if you must talk victory, go to it." Later they carried excerpts from former Prime Minister Churchill's speeches.

Thru the Looking Glass

You have to hand it to the college girls. They, as a group, seem to be able to achieve more complexion glamor than any other single set of women. They know what they like in make-up, and they shop around until they find the cosmetics that help them toward the goal they aim for—the look of natural, unmade-up prettiness.

A make-up base is pretty much of a rule with them, and one of their favorites is a creamy cake make-up that serves both as a foundation and a skin dressing. It gives the kind of silky, soft finish to the complexion that girls love. It veils minor flaws and makes the use of powder over it a matter of choice. Time being a valuable element in a college girl's life, they find that this make-up stays put for hours and cuts the time spent on their faces to a minimum.

The foundation comes in eight shades, ranging from light to a deep, glowing tan, all of them keyed to natural complexion tones. It's a cinch to apply with a sponge or a piece of cotton moistened with water and worked over the cake until a creamy lotion is effected. This is spread evenly over the face and neck. The excess is blotted off with tissues or the fingers. When almost dry the make-up is blended with the fingers until the coating is smooth and even. The finish is velvety and flattering, devoid of any harshness.

This is an inexpensive kind of make-up, another point that wins favor with the school girls, and the neat plastic case is the kind they like to flash around.

The dressing isn't drying to the skin and the college girls have no priority on its use. Many of their older sisters find it suits their foundation needs admirably.

Prison Movie Benefits from Capable Cast

"WITHIN THESE WALLS"

By Mae Tinée

This fairly believable story of melodramatic happenings in a big prison benefits from a cast of excellent actors, headed by Thomas Mitchell. As a successful judge, Michael Howland, he gives up his place on the bench to take over the job of warden in a "big house" that has a decidedly unsavory reputation for jail breaks and intrigue.

He is a man who uses only stern justice and force in dealing with criminals. Fearless and honest himself, asking for no breaks, he is not prepared to give any to any one else, even his own son, who is a high spirited and reckless youngster of 17, anxious to get away from parental authority.

The boy disappears for several years, finally turning up as a convict in the prison where his father is warden. This is a body blow to the parent, but when the boy strikes a guard, not even the pleadings of his young daughter can make the father lessen the sentence of eight days in "solitary."

It takes an attempted jail break and a tragedy to make the warden realize that a wise man uses different methods for handling different persons and that there are times when kindness gets results where force gets only rebellion.

Mitchell gives a forthright, earnest performance, Edward Ryan is convincing as the son, Mary Anderson is appealing as the daughter, and Mark Stevens, who plays the role of a man who "takes the rap" for some one else, handles a difficult part well. The jail break scenes pack a terrific wallop of suspense.

More Laurel and Hardy

"THE BULLFIGHTERS"

Produced by 20th Century-Fox, directed by Mal St. Clair, featuring Laurel and Hardy, Richard Lane, Margo Woode, and Carol Andrews. Also presented at the Grand.

Ah, si, si, senora, senorita, senor, there are many bulls in this film; also Laurel and Hardy. And if you were a fan of this comedy team 'way back in 1929, when they first appeared in the flickers, you probably are one of those who still can laugh at their slapstick antics. "See one, see them all," is my motto.

Ollie, a detective wearing a big star, and Stan, his meek little partner, reach Mexico City to hunt down a certain Larceny Hattie. But after finding their quarry and much egg throwing, the plot somehow takes a twist, and ne'er more do you hear or see Hattie. For then along comes hefty Muldoon, a gentleman the boys once had put in prison for 20 years and who wasn't really guilty. With Mr. Muldoon threatening to skin them alive, Stan and Ollie, to keep out of his way, agree to let Stan pose as a famous bullfighter from Barcelona.

Naturally in the end Mr. Laurel and Mr. Hardy get properly skinned and creak their way back to Peoria, Ill. All very funny. . . . My suggestion to next door neighbors Blenda and Brownie, who seem to be so jealous of Skeezix's and Nina's freshly roasted ham these days, just amble over to the Grand and sneak a taste.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 clubs	Pass	2 hearts
2 spades	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of hearts.

A great many contracts depend for their success upon the proper utilization of dummy distributional features. Conversely, many contracts could be defeated if the defenders would concentrate on impairing the value of dummy's short suit by repeated trump leads. This type of defense must be planned very early, frequently before the opening lead. So that when dummy is suspected of having a singleton or void in some side suit, a trump opening will be very effective. Sometimes, however, the defender is in a position where he cannot afford to lead trumps, because such action would sacrifice a sure trick. In such cases an effort should be made to get partner into the lead.

An interesting situation developed in today's hand. The bidding followed orthodox lines. Note North's refusal to make a free bid on the first round which was proper strategy. But when partner persisted in the face of two bidding opponents a belated raise was justified.

West led the 10 of hearts which declarer took with the jack. Since clubs must be ruffed in dummy, declarer immediately returned a low card of that suit. West played the seven and East overtook with the eight and returned a trump. This permitted declarer to ruff only two clubs in dummy and he was obliged to lose one spade, one heart, and two clubs for the set of one trick.

The fulfillment of this contract should have been relatively simple. It is very evident that even one trump lead by East will ruin the hand, so that East must not be given a chance to obtain the lead. The proper play at the second trick was the king of clubs, not a small one. This would force west to take the trick and he could not profitably lead a trump. Declarer would then be in a position to ruff three clubs in dummy and so fulfill his contract.

Enlarge Your Dating Circle, Girl, 15, Told

BY SHEILA DALY
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"I have been going with a fellow now for two years. We have come to like each other quite well. I am only 15 years old and am a junior in high school. My parents approve of this boy and of my going with him. They also hope that I keep this steady company with him. I wonder if we should become better friends or . . . what? I like him very much, and I'm sure he likes me. We aren't going steady, but neither of us dates any one else. Do you think this is the wrong thing to do? Do you think we should meet other fellows and girls and go on dates with them?"

That's your story, morning glory, and now you're wondering about the ending. The very fact that you've begun to wonder just what goes on with other young characters about town is a sure sign that this friendship is not based on a permanent, moonlight-and-roses affection. Once you begin wondering what you're missing, you can be sure that you are missing something. It's time you brushed those stars out of your eyes and looked around at all the fun every one else is having—and then start having exactly the same kind, with more than one fellow. Fifteen is too young for going steady; you're not ready for a solo friendship yet.

"We're a group of 20 gals who will be freshmen in September. We've had fun in 8th grade, but whenever we get together with the fellows they want to neck. They say 'everybody does it,' but that doesn't strike us as much of an excuse. We do have fun with the fellows if they don't bring up the subject of necking, altho we wish we knew of more to do than just dance and talk."

If you do have fun with the fellows otherwise, then the solution is just not to let the topic come up. Often fellows, for lack of anything else to do, will turn to necking. So if you keep them having fun, it won't even enter their minds. You're still too young for exclusive pairing off, so why not plan a few group evenings together? Make plans for a beach party or weiner roast for the whole gang, complete with weiners and buns, and an older couple just to keep things under control. Or have all the crowd over to one of the gal's homes for an evening of fun. Try something different like a taffy pull, for instance, pooling your sugar supplies to make one batch. Or you may spend the evening playing planned games.

Add ½ tsp. dry mustard
1 pimiento, chopped
1 (2½ oz.) can mushrooms (optional)

Pour into a margarined casserole, top with margarined crumbs, if desired, arrange slices of MOR on top and bake 35 to 40 min., or until brown, in a moderate oven, 350° F. (or cover and place in refrigerator until time to bake). Serves 6.

A Tasty Combination

A large combination vegetable salad, rolls and a beverage are all that are needed to make a tempting main course with this delicious MOR noodle casserole. Add blueberries and cream for dessert and all is well.

For extra deliciousness, make this Chiffonade Dressing for the salad: Just before serving, add 1 hard cooked Clear Brook Egg, 1 tsp. minced onion and 1 tbsp. pimiento (all finely chopped) to ¾ cup of your favorite French Dressing which has been shaken well. Easy as that but what a lift it gives to any green salad!

Another taste-tempting combination for a hot summer day is a cold plate of MOR potato salad, deviled eggs and tomatoes stuffed with cottage cheese. Start the meal with quick B-V French onion soup and the dinner problem for another day is happily solved.

MOR Potato Salad

Combine
1 can MOR, cut in cubes
3 cups diced cooked potatoes
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup sliced celery
2 tbsp. minced onion
½ cup sliced radishes
¾ cup WILSON'S MAYONNAISE mixed with ½ cup milk

Mix carefully so vegetables will retain their shape.

Cover and let stand at least 2 hours to allow flavors to mingle. Serve well chilled in crisp lettuce cups.

Sincerely,
George Rector

A FARMER TURNS TO ARTS OF WAR ON HOME FRONT

Takes Leaf from Book of Jungle Strategy

BY MERLE HUBKA

In the pre-dawn darkness yesterday Martin Richardson walked out to the barn on his 40 acre farm at 131st st. and 80th av., near Palos Park. He put a halter on his cow, picked two chickens off a roost, and started out into the pasture.

Crouching low he walked slowly, keeping the cow between him and a hedgerow. One hundred yards out in the field he put the chickens on the ground, and returned with the cow. The chickens stayed in the field.

Martin walked up to his lookout in the barn loft. There he had mounted his double barrel shotgun on a plank fitted with a swivel so it could be aimed like an anti-tank gun.

Ready for Enemy

In the chambers were two shells which Richardson had loaded with extra charges of powder and shot. A string was fixed around the two triggers so they could be fired simultaneously.

Richardson began his vigil. His quarry was a red fox that had outwitted him numerous times and had feasted on 200 of his chickens and guinea hens in two years.

He had seen the fox a dozen times—even in the act of stealing a choice hen. He had shot at the animal several times. Traps had failed.

As the dawn began to break yesterday Richardson had his eyes on the pasture. The chickens began to stir, then started back toward the barn.

Foe Goes Into Action

Richardson moved quickly behind his improvised field piece and grabbed the lanyard. The chickens ambled along the hedgerow until they were almost within 200 feet of the barn. Then they flew into the air as a ball of fur leaped out at them.

The fox had overshot his mark and was doubling back when Richardson drew aim and fired.

The blast knocked Richardson back on the floor. When he got back to the window he saw the chickens streaking it for the barn. The fox was dead.

"I shot a lot of foxes on a ranch I owned in Texas," Richardson said later, "but I never met up with a smarter brand than this Cook county type."

THREE TO FACE TRIAL HERE IN EXTORTION CASE

William H. Huber, 46, of Elkhorn, Wis.; Burdell M. Boardman, 20, and Carl S. Garman, 32, both of Delavan, Wis., charged with attempting to extort $40,000 from William C. Hubbell, Harvard, Ill., bank president, were ordered removed to the jurisdiction of federal District court in Chicago yesterday by Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy in Milwaukee. They will be brought to Chicago later this week by United States marshals. Boardman is said to have instigated the extortion plot because Hubbell's bank foreclosed a mortgage on his automobile a year ago.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 23—Tennessee Convention of 1784

SETTLERS of the section which now is Tennessee assembled in convention on Aug. 23, 1784, at Jonesboro and chose delegates to a later convention to form a new state. The territory was admitted to the union as the 16th state on June 7, 1796.

In 1768 the Iroquois ceded all claim to the central part of eastern Tennessee to the English and a year later several cabins were built along the Holston and Watauga rivers on what was presumed to be Virginia soil. A settlement near the present Rogersville was made in 1771 and another sprang up soon afterward on the Nollichucky. After the failure of the Regulator insurrection in North Carolina in 1771, many Regulators went into the wilderness.

A survey of the western boundary between Virginia and North Carolina showed the settlements to be in North Carolina, but that colony made no effort to assert jurisdiction nor did it attempt to protect the settlers from Indian depredations. Therefore, the residents of the first two settlements met in 1772 to form a government, since known as the Watauga association, and in 1775 the settlement on the Nollichucky was forced to join the association.

In the same year the land was bought from the Cherokee Indians in hope of averting war, but with the approach of the American Revolution, the dream of becoming a separate colony with a royal governor was abandoned.

On petition of the inhabitants, the territory was annexed to North Carolina in 1776 as the Washington district, which a year later became Washington county, with the Mississippi river as the western boundary.

After the American Revolution the legislature of North Carolina offered in 1784 to cede her western territory to the general government. The Watauga settlers were indignant at this transfer without their consent and assembled in convention on Aug. 23, 1784, and chose delegates to a later convention to form a new state. A second convention in November broke up in confusion, but a third adopted a constitution and ordered the election of a legislature. This body met early in 1785 and elected John Sevier governor of the new state of Franklin [at first Frankland].

MYSTERY BLAST IN NAVAL BOMB FACTORY KILLS 2

Wilber Daugherty, 29, of 516 Woodlawn av., chief inspector, and Val Marks, rural route 3, Aurora, a foreman, employes of the United Wall Paper company plant at Montgomery, Kendall county, were killed yesterday in an explosion on the plant's disposal grounds on the banks of the Fox river.

Virgil Rusher, 45, of 442 N. Damen av., Chicago, production superintendent, was blown into the river. He is in Copley hospital, Aurora, with a crushed left leg.

Ray Hoen, plant manager, said the three men were preparing to burn hazardous waste material left over from the company's contracts for the manufacture of flares and incendiary bombs for the navy. He was unable to say what caused the explosion.

SUIT TO CLOSE VILLA VENICE FILED BY STATE

The attorney general's office yesterday filed suit against Albert Bouche's Villa Venice, night spot near Northbrook, Ill., asking that it be closed as a public nuisance for alleged failure to comply with the Illinois workmen's compensation act. The suit, filed in Circuit court, charges the owners have refused to file with the state industrial commission any statement showing financial ability to pay compensation or to post any guarantee.

FLIES 4,650 MILES IN SUPER FORT; IN AIR 23 HOURS

GUAM, Aug. 22 (AP)—Twentieth air force headquarters reported today what it said was believed to have been the longest mission ever made by a B-29 Super Fortress bomber—a round trip flown on a secret mission of 4,650 miles which kept the plane in the air for 22 hours, 58 minutes.

Lt. Thomas A. Bell

The Super Fortress "City of Maywood" [named for Maywood, Ill.] made the flight, equal to the distance from New York to Moscow, before the end of hostilities. It flew from Guam to Hokkaido.

Pilot of the record breaking mission was Lt. Thomas A. Bell, Oak Park, Ill.

CHICAGO TO GREET ALL-STARS AT LUNCHEON TODAY

WAR VETERANS, SPORT LEADERS AMONG GUESTS

Junior Association Expects 1,200

BY WILFRID SMITH

[PACKERS' CAMP NEWS ON NEXT PAGE]

The coaches and members of the All-Star football squad will be greeted officially by Chicago sports fans today in the Sherman hotel at the annual Junior Association of Commerce luncheon. More than 1,200, including 300 wounded veterans from the Gardiner, Vaughn, and Great Lakes hospitals, will attend.

This luncheon, 12th in the series at which Chicago has met the collegiate football stars of the nation, not only is the largest but it also is a record in the city this year for a gathering of like nature. The kick-off is scheduled at 12:15 p. m. in the grand ballroom of the hotel. A limited number of tickets, priced at $3.75 each, may be purchased at the door.

Altho this is the All-Star's luncheon, Don Hutson, Green Bay's great end, himself a one-time All-Star from Alabama, will represent the Packers to explain the plans Head Coach E. L. [Curly] Lambeau has made for the battle a week from tonight in Soldiers' field. Hutson started at left end for the All-Stars in 1935 and since joining Green Bay has played in the 1937 and 1940 games.

Ward Will Speak

John F. O'Loughlin is general chairman of the Junior Association of Commerce committee which organized today's meeting. He will serve as toastmaster. Ralph Rohweder, president of the association, will welcome the All-Stars and guests. Bill Haarlow, executive vice chairman, a former University of Chicago basketball star, and William R. Bawden, director of the Junior Association of Commerce, also will be at the speakers' table.

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and director of the All-Star games, will speak. Ward will introduce Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, head coach of the 1945 All-Star squad, and Bierman's assistants, Jeff Cravath, Southern California; Ray Eliot, Illinois; Jim Lookabaugh, Oklahoma A. & M., and Howie Odell, Yale. Bierman will introduce the All-Star players.

Guest List Is Sports Who's Who

Sports leaders of Chicago and the nation will be present. Among those at the speakers' table will be John Gottselig, manager of the Chicago Blackhawks; Ralph Brizzolara, general manager of the Chicago Bears; Capt. H. E. Sears, Glenview naval air station; Elmer Layden, National Football league commissioner; Jimmy Crowley, All-America conference commissioner; Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, Great Lakes; Lew Fonseca and Earl Hilligan, American Baseball league; Kenneth L. Wilson, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference; George Donoghue, superintendent of the Chicago park district; Ted Payseur and Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern university; Tom Haggerty, De Paul university; Kyle Anderson, University of Chicago; Charles Brickley, one-time Harvard university football star; Maj. Ednyfed Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board; Charles Bidwill, John L. Keeshin, Harry Kipke, Jim Masker, Red Grange, and Christy Walsh.

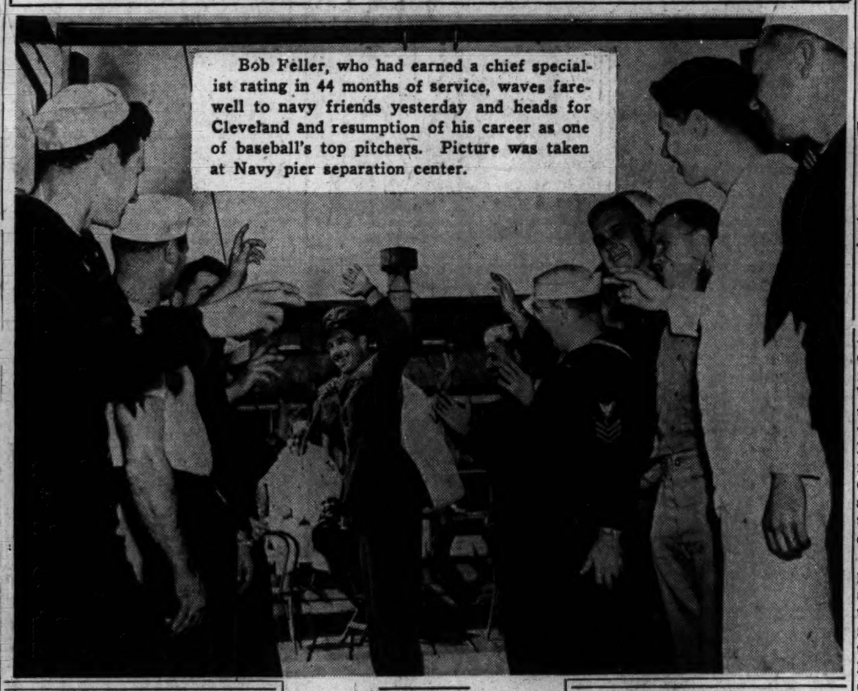
Footballs, autographed by the All-Stars and coaches, and tickets for the game Aug. 30 will be given away as door prizes.

Meet Bluejackets Saturday

The All-Stars drilled twice yesterday in Dyche stadium. Their work again was comprehensive, with defensive maneuvers taking up most of the afternoon period. Despite the favorable weather, the coaches criticised the execution of the attack, but whether this sluggishness was due to the letdown after 10 days of work or whether the men yet haven't reached physical condition can not be told. Subsequent scrimmage, particularly on Saturday at the Great Lakes Naval Training center against the Bluejackets, will furnish a better idea of what the All-Stars will accomplish against the professional champions.

The All-Stars temporarily have lost the services of Pvt. Denver Crawford, tackle on the 1942 University of Tennessee team. Crawford's mother died in Kingsport, Tenn., and he left by plane yesterday afternoon. Funeral services will be held tomorrow and Crawford hopes to rejoin the squad Sunday.

WHEN A SAILOR FELLER LEAVES HIS FRIENDS



Bob Feller, who had earned a chief specialist rating in 44 months of service, waves farewell to navy friends yesterday and heads for Cleveland and resumption of his career as one of baseball's top pitchers. Picture was taken at Navy pier separation center.

NICK SCOLLARD HAS ALL-STARS' LOFTIEST GOAL

A giant end from St. Joseph's college of Collegeville, Ind., may figure prominently in the passing attack planned by the College All-Stars against the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field a week from tonight. He's Sgt. Nick Scollard, whose performances in workouts in Dyche stadium have indicated he may match the pass catching ability of the Packers' famed duo, Don Hutson and Harry Jacunski.

Scollard, a native of Indianapolis, has been moved up to Head Coach Bernie Bierman's tentative first team, and he hopes to climax his collegiate career with a starting assignment against the National Football league champions. Scollard led St. Joseph's to an undefeated season in 1941, his final college year. In addition to his offensive and defensive work at end, Scollard is an expert place kicking specialist.

He handled all place kicking duties for St. Joseph's during his three years at Collegeville, and a 30 yard field goal gave the Hoosiers a 3 to 0 victory over Toledo in 1941. He has used his toe effectively in point after touchdown attempts in scrimmages this week.

Billy Andrews, manager of the All-Stars, began preparations yesterday for the important assignment he will fill on Saturday when the All-Stars scrimmage the Great Lakes Bluejackets at the naval training station. Andrews will attempt to find any Green Bay scouts disguised in white sailor uniforms when the All-Stars practice their hocus-pocus plays. "Ah won't use any gestapo tactics, jes' some plain ol' FBI stuff," drawled the half-pint Texan.

The All-Star game has brought together three former high school teammates. They are Lt. William Meek, Tennessee quarter back; Pvt. Ted Cook, Alabama end, and Corp. Joe Eddins, Auburn guard, who were members of the West End High school eleven which went to the finals of the Birmingham, Ala., city series in 1938.

BIVINS KNOCKS OUT MOORE IN 2D AND ALSO IN 6TH!

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22 (AP)—Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland heavyweight, ended Archie Moore's winning streak at 27 tonight, knocking out the St. Louis boxer in both the second and sixth rounds of a hectic bout in Cleveland stadium. Bivins weighed 186 pounds and Moore 168½.

The official end came in 38 seconds of the sixth round, but it was an anti-climax. Before that Moore was down for counts of seven, nine, and 10 in the second, and twice for nine in the fifth.

In the second, Bivins landed a right on Moore's chin, and Archie went to his knees. Without waiting for his opponent to rise, Bivins crashed another blow to the jaw and Moore was counted out. However, after a consultation, the judges decided the bout must go on after a five minutes rest. They awarded Moore the second round on a foul.

Feller Out of Navy; Off to Cleveland

BY FRANK MASTRO

Chief Specialist Bob Feller, star fireball pitcher who won 25 games for the Cleveland Indians during the 1941 season, was officially separated from the navy at Navy pier yesterday after being in the service 44 months.

Feller, who had compiled 45 points, one more than the number required by the navy, during his hitch—29 months of which were spent as chief of an anti-aircraft gun crew on the battleship Alabama—left on a United Airlines' mainliner from the Chicago air port at 11:20 last night to rejoin his former teammates in Cleveland. He is to be on the mound for the Indians against the league leading Detroit Tigers in Cleveland stadium tomorrow night.

Bob Is Satisfied with Salary—and Shorter Working Hours

Feller made the trip with his wife, the former Miss Virginia Winther of Waukegan.

Feller said he would pitch under the financial terms of his existing contract. When asked what his salary would be he said, laughing:

"You can guess any amount from $20,000 to $50,000. At any rate, it's considerably more than my navy pay, and the hours are shorter, too."

Won Nine of 11 Games

While Piloting Bluejackets

Feller reported at Great Lakes last January and subsequently was placed in charge of the Bluejacket baseball team. He won nine of his 11 games for Great Lakes, one of his victories being scored at the expense of the Chicago Cubs. The score was 1 to 0.

Bob said his pitching chores at Great Lakes have placed him in "pretty good" condition, and he doesn't expect to encounter much trouble regaining his old form.

The 180 pound former Van Meter, Ia., farm boy said he would be ready to pitch against the White Sox in Comiskey park next Tuesday or Wedensday.

Jockeys to Turn Today's Fees Over to Their Guild

Riders at Washington Park who are members of the Jockeys' Community Fund and Guild will turn over all the fees they earn today to their organization. John P. The funds are used for hospitalization and welfare work among jockeys in need.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The Washington Park turf course program reaches its climax today with the fourth running of the $15,000 Meadowland handicap for which 12 thorobreds with a distinct liking for the greensward have been named in the overnight entries.

This list includes the top-weighted Devalue, winner of the $50,000 Stars and Stripes; Take Wing, victor in the 1944 Meadowland and Layout, a convincing first in the $10,000 Grassland handicap, another mile and a quarter turf event.

Take Wing Is Favorite

Devalue, owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Nemecek's Happy Hour farm of Roselle and trained by Ralph Salvino, will have his weight carrying ability put to a real test today under an impost of 122 pounds, for he carried only 108 in whipping the highly regarded Thumbs Up in the Stars and Stripes.

The Mrs. Clyde Troutt colorbearer, Take Wing, probably will go postward the favorite under the guidance of Jockey Freddy Smith for it will have the speedy Fergie's Ariel as a running mate.

Fighting Don Equals Record

Fighting Don, 3 year old son of Fighting Fox, owned by Miss Gertrude Donovan of Muskegon, Mich., equaled Three Dots' track record of 1:10 for six furlongs in taking yesterday's featured race, the $5,000 Donges handicap. The big bay colt, ridden by Otto Grohs, whipped Twosy, the favorite, by a length and a half and left five others strung out behind him. Ruth Sidell's Burgoo Maid was third. The winner paid $6.

The day's program drew a crowd estimated at 17,500 which wagered $1,216,328. The daily double, won by Ben Fogelson's Vinum [$5.60] and Herbert M. Woolf's Amphibious [$7.60], paid $22.20.

Noth Named Basketball Coach at Oak Park High

Orin Noth, Oak Park High school tennis coach, has been named head basketball coach of the Villagers, it was revealed last night. Noth, a basketball official, succeeds Henry M. Scott and will also coach the frosh-soph football team. He will be assisted by Bob Wright, who moved to the Suburban league school after coaching at Hinsdale.

BABE ZAHARIAS, PHYLLIS OTTO WIN ON 20TH

Mrs. Mayer Scores 2 and 1 Upset

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The suspicion that yesterday's second round matches in the 45th annual tournament of the women's Western Golf association would pop up with a deal of competitive fireworks was more than verified at the Knollwood club as eight gals—one from the east, one from the Pacific coast, three from the central states, and a southern threesome—worked their way into this afternoon's four quarter-final matches.

Dorothy Germain, the Philadelphian who is seeking to become the second golfer in W. W. G. A. history to bring off a consecutive triple, is still on hand, but Sally Sessions, the versatile Muskegon, Mich., athlete, was the only survivor able to close up for the day in less than sixteen holes. On the other hand, Mrs. Mildred [Babe] Didrickson Zaharias of Los Angeles, Western Open champion these last two summers, and Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia., last year's amateur runnerup both were forced into 20 hole arguments before they could earn places in today's eightsome.

Suggs to Meet Sessions

The remaining quartet consists of Louise Suggs of Lithia Springs, Ga., Monday's record cracking medalist; Mrs. Frank Mayer of Lake Shore, Chicago District titleholder; Eileen Stulb of Augusta, Ga., and Marjorie

Phyllis Otto

Dorothy Germain

Row of Anniston, Ala. The first match, at 1:15 o'clock, matches the medalists of the last two amateurs, the Misses Suggs and Sessions. Miss Otto, the Northwestern university senior, draws Miss Stulb as her opponent and the third bout sends Miss Row, 1942 Western Open finalist, against Mrs. Zaharias.

The extra inning contests merit first mention in any story of the second round. Mrs. Zaharias after being four up at the turn over Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O., found the Ohioan squaring the match at the 18th, Babe going out in 82, five over par, while Peggy finished with an 81.

Miss Otto Beats Kielty

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

THE Big Ten conference wisely is tightening its eligibility code for the post-war period. . . . There is still considerable work to be done in fortifying intercollegiate sport, especially football, against the attacks of the minority elements on university faculties which see no place for competitive games. . . . Tug Wilson and the athletic directors of the Big Ten have a responsibility which may be more important than they realize. . . . Their leadership will weigh heavily in the future of amateur sport, because organized groups everywhere are influenced by the action of the midwest league, whether or not they admit it. . . . If the Big Ten tolerates hypocrisy or is lax in enforcement of rules, college football will die, make no mistake about that. . . . This department has no doubt of the ability and the determination of Wilson and his associates to get Big Ten sport past the crossroads. . . . There will be those who will think the present code is too strict. . . . There will be those who contend it isn't severe enough. . . . There will be a few worrying about the growth of professional football. . . . More than ever before, sanity is needed in sports direction. . . . There is growing evidence that some of the new rules will work unfairly against returning service men. . . . When the university needed football players in 1942, 1943, and 1944 almost every eligibility barrier was removed. . . . Now that the player needs the university he finds various obstacles athwart his path. . . .

One of the new rules disqualifies a student from college football if he has committed himself to a professional team for post-collegiate service. . . . Until a few months ago a trainee who had played professional football and received money for years could, during the war, participate in college games. . . . Doesn't it seem reasonable that a returning soldier or sailor who helped fight and win the war and comes to a university under government auspices provided by the GI bill needs participation in athletics in his readjustment to civilian life? . . . Why is he discriminated against when the university no longer is desperately in need of athletic talent? . . . Many heroes of the war can return in good time to complete their college training, but some of them may be dissuaded from doing so, if they cannot engage in intercollegiate competition. . . . If participation in the intercollegiate program was desirable during the war and if participation in intramural sports was not sufficient then, why is participation in intramural contests sufficient now for the ex-service men? . . .

Let us suppose that GI Joe, out in the Pacific facing a long war, had been approached by a representative of a professional team. . . . Let us suppose, further, that this representative told Joe that if he committed himself to a certain professional team, such a commitment would insure his security in the uncertain post-war world. . . . Let us assume that Joe gave some commitment to this representative of a professional team. . . . Even if he did not sign a contract or accept any money, under the new Big Ten ruling he would be excluded from participation in intercollegiate athletics whereas, during the war, boys who had played for years as professionals were able to participate. . . . Can't Joe reasonably argue to himself that the schools have by their war time conduct, if not by their explicit pronouncement, induced him to do something that afterwards worked a hardship on his desire to come back and complete his university work? . . . The ruling obviously was a slap at professional football, which will succeed, of course, with or without the coöperation of college leaders. . . . That is not the point of this piece. . . . We are trying to say that the new regulation is unfair to young men who might like to go back to the old locker rooms at their alma mater. . . . It may affect more players than was realized at the time of its adoption.

A Woman's Way

A woman's age is a funny thing;
At 16 she will boast:
"No more may I be called a child,
I'm 17, almost!"

But then time spends itself on her;
In 20 years or more,
She gives her age, reluctantly,
As "not quite 34."

Service Men's Wives

Service men's wives who are on the loose
Have aroused, it would seem, much public abuse,
But what about those, waiting and yearning,
Who are faithfully keeping the home fires burning?

For one who now and then goes astray
I think it is perfectly safe to say
A hundred others, stanch and fine,
Are doing their duty and "holding that line."

One thing it is never wise to do—
Condemn a class because of a few.
In any group, do we need to be told,
There are always a few who stray from the fold?

So here's to a toast to the service men's wives
Patiently leading those lonely lives,
In a way which wil let them look straight-in-the-eye
Their home coming men in the sweet by-and-by!

[The Cubs, idle yesterday, will open a three game series with the Cardinals tomorrow in Wrigley field. Story on next page.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox emerged unexpectedly yesterday from one of their periodical drives for a place in the second division. Another trimming at the hands of the Yankees was about to engulf them in the final of the series when they arose in the ninth inning, smacked three tying runs across the plate and then went on into the 11th where they managed to muster a pair of hits to record a run that netted them a 6 to 5 decision, their second in the six game set with the New Yorkers.

The Joe McCarthy entry, until the ninth, appeared to be set for a happy ride homeward, because of the ease with which they had cut scoring coupons against Ed Lopat's southpawing. Between their hits and the liberality of the lefthander the Yanks went into the ninth in the lead, 5 to 2, not much hitting having come from the Sox against either Ken Holcombe or Joe Page who appeared in the fifth. But the hits did come when the veteran Jim Turner showed up as a rescuer.

Tresh Ruins Turner's Act

What helped to ruin Turner's act in the ninth was a two bagger from the bat of Mike Tresh and that wasn't the last the 41 year old milkman was to hear from the same opponent. Tresh came up again in the 11th after Cass Michaels had fanned and exploded another double, this one into the right field. Lopat was retired on a fly to Tuck Stainback and Wally Moses, who had accounted for the third of the three runs in the ninth, was treated to a pass. Then Kerby Farrell, with his third hit of the afternoon, singled over short, Tresh scooting home.

Lopat's troubles in the first inning were numerous enough to per-

DOC BEREZNEY TO TREAT PACKERS' TACKLE TROUBLE

Veteran Star Reports at Green Bay Camp

BY EDWARD PRELL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 22—The Packers' right tackle problem eased today with the arrival of Dr. Paul Berezney, a budding young surgeon from the Florida west coast. The doctor, regular custodian of this spot in the Green Bay line for three seasons, hopes to make up for lost time and qualify to start against the College All-Stars a week from tomorrow night in Soldiers' field. He may play with the world champions all season.

Tiny Croft, Forrest McPherson, and 235 pound Ed Neal have been working at right tackle, but Berezney's presence may cause Croft's return to left tackle, his normal position. McPherson had been moved from center to help bolster right tackle, but the chunky veteran is standing by for a possible call at center now that it appears Ralph Hammond will be lost for the game. Hammond, former Pitt center, still is taking treatments for an injured knee and is out of uniform.

No Man Power Shortage

The Packers' squad now numbers 39, top personnel for a pro team in the All-Star series in three years. The roster includes three centers, eight guards, seven tackles, eight ends, three quarter backs, four left half backs, three right half backs, and three full backs.

The Packers approached a full blown scrimmage in a bristling workout this morning under ideal weather conditions. A defensive team wearing blocking pads tried to mess up running and passing maneuvers. For the first time the champions tried their skill at field goal kicking, with Don Hutson, Ted Fritsch, and Glen Sorenson taking turns. The Bears won last year's All-Star game on a field goal by Pete Gudauskas, an erstwhile Packer, by the way.

Coach Curly Lambeau cleared the field of spectators to give the session an added appearance of importance. The squad went back to the field in the afternoon for more instructions on assignments and strategy to be used against the All-Stars.

Friends of Jimmy Crowley, commissioner of the new All-America football conference, are awaiting his arrival here Sunday for a visit. Crowley started his brilliant football career at Green Bay's East High school and his coach in the 1919 and 1920 seasons was Curly Lambeau. Crowley will go to Chicago from Green Bay for the All-Star game and a meeting of the All-America conference.

CLAY TARGET TITLE RETAINED BY INDIANA GIRL

Vandalia, O., Aug. 22 (AP)—Ruth Knuth, Indianapolis, Ind., today became the first Grand American trapshoot champion to retain a title as she won the women's champion of champions crown with 95 x 100.

She went into the last 100 targets of the North American trailing Lela Hall of East Lynne, Mo., by one target. Mrs. Hall had 96 x 100 but her state did not have a state shoot so she could not compete in the champion of champions contest.

The class championships decided today were:

Class AA—Julius Petty, England, Ark., 100x100.
Class A—Bernie Judd, Hamilton, O., 100x100.
Class C—A. R. Gentry, Chicago, 99x100.
Class D—J. L. Kiesschnitz, Wentzville, Mo., 94x100.

Duck Season in Illinois to Open Oct. 13

BY BOB BECKER

Mr. Sportsman, here are the hunting seasons to keep in mind this fall in case you are figuring on wheeling out the old family bus for a trip during the next few months. The Illinois duck season will open Oct. 13 with a bag limit of 10 ducks per day. [No extra mallards this fall.] A special northern Illinois season [Lake and McHenry counties] for mudhens and coots starts Oct. 1. No mudhen hunting is permitted in any other part of the state until the regular waterfowl season opens Oct. 13. The Illinois pheasant season again starts on Nov. 11. But this year the season will run thru Nov. 25, which gives hunters five extra days.

Change Daily Bag Limit

South Dakota has decided on its pheasant season. The opening day is Sept. 29. A season of 120 days has been authorized in 38 counties with shorter seasons in others. For most areas there will be a daily bag limit of eight pheasants and hunting will start each day at 10 a. m.

No Hungarian partridge shooting at all will be permitted in South Dakota this fall. Regulations allow nonresident hunters to ship or take 40 pheasants, 10 less than last year's maximum. The daily bag limit on pheasants may include four hens in some counties, three in others. South Dakota's nonresident license remains at $20.

Delay Upland Game Opening

The Sept. 29 opening on upland game is the first time in several years that South Dakota has failed to take the duck season as its cue to start upland game shooting. The delayed opening was picked chiefly because of a large percentage of late hatched birds. Duck hunting in the northwest states opens Sept. 20 this year.

GIRL, 14, RAPED BY ARMED MAN; BRIDE ATTACKED

More Policemen Detailed to Hunt Assailants

Four more rape cases were reported to authorities yesterday and last night as more policemen were added to special details in an effort to halt the increase in sex crimes.

Latest victim was a 14 year old girl, living in the vicinity of Spaulding and Balmoral avs. As she was walking in front of 5450 N. Kedzie av., at 9 p. m., a man about 35 pressed a revolver against her back and forced her into a near-by alley where he raped her.

The child ran home. Her parents notified police who took her to the Swedish Covenant hospital. The girl described the man as "sharp featured" and said that she can identify him.

Young Bride Raped

Of the other victims, one was a 21 year old bride of six months. She was raped in an automobile near Grand and Washtenaw avs. by a man from whom she had accepted a ride at Milwaukee and Armitage avs.

The other two victims were Negroes. One was raped in an alley in the rear of 4214 Cottage Grove av. by a Negro who threatened her with a gun; the other was raped in a passageway at 607 E. 60th st. by a Negro who threatened her with a knife.

In Criminal court Frank W. Bruno, 32, of 2020 Fremont st., a truck driver, charged with the attempted rape and robbery of a woman in his automobile Sunday night in Stanton park, was sentenced to from three to five years as a parole violator by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward. He had been placed on probation by Judge Ward Jan. 13 as the result of a similar offense.

Tears Fail to Move Judge

Bruno's wife, Johanna, and his two daughters, 10 and 4, wept in court, but failed to move the judge.

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned by a coroner's jury in the slaying of Pierre D. Francis, 32, by Frank Walls, 55, a Negro, 1520 N. Wells st. Walls found Francis molesting Walls' 3 year old foster daughter in the Walls basement Tuesday and shot him.

Philip Peyrot, 24, of 5541 Pensacola av., a laborer, arrested Tuesday as a suspect in the rape earlier that day of a 25 year old wife of a sailor, mother of two children, in her home, was charged with disorderly conduct after the victim failed to make a positive identification.

TRAFFIC JUDGE TO SUPERVISE SAFETY TESTS

Judge John T. Zuris of Traffic court will supervise tests at the city automobile safety lane at 31st st. and the Outer dr. at 2 p. m. Wednesday to see how many drivers who came before him this week are speaking the truth when they tell him their automobiles are mechanically perfect, he said yesterday.

"Every motorist who tells me his car does not need a safety sticker because there is nothing wrong with it, will be ordered to go to the lane next Wednesday," he said. "I just want to see how many of these cars really can pass an inspection."

Edward J. Gorman, vehicle license commissioner, said more than 3,000 cars were tested yesterday, and about one-third were rejected. Gorman said 4,000 cars a day should be going thru the lanes. Police issued 200 tickets yesterday to motorists driving cars without safety stickers.

HIKES thru rural areas at this time of the year cause the wildflower fan to wonder about the natural phenomena that produce yellow flowers on dry soil and blue and purple flowers in the lowlands.

With few expections, most of the late August wildflowers follow this pattern. Among the flowers now on display in the marshy areas surrounding the big pond are blue monkey flowers, which get their name from the pansylike shape of their petals; purple heal-all, a medicinal plant used by western pioneers; the first light purple New England asters of the season, and the showy, dark purple ironweed that grows 6 feet tall in the mucky ground near the pond windmill. We also found light blue vervain around the pond; white exceptions to the rule of blue and purple were provided by the first small white asters and the round white blossoms of the buttonbush shrubs.

Yellow in Uplands

Away from the moist lowland area, one finds many yellow flowers in the comparatively dry upland soil at the edges of cultivated fields and along the farm roads. The coneflowers still are in bloom, and the tall stalks of the prairie dock and compass plants are topped by small yellow flowers. The prairie sunflowers are out, and the coarse giant mulleins add another touch of yellow to the August scene.

Two other yellow flowers now on display in upland fields are ragweed and goldenrod, the two growths most commonly connected with hay fever. Allergists long ago found that goldenrod is not the villain it once had been pictured, because it is responsible for little hay fever distress. Goldenrod pollen is so heavy that it travels only a short distance.

Ragweed Flies Far

The tiny, yellow grains of ragweed pollen, on the other hand, are so light and buoyant that they are carried many miles to cause sneezes and wheezes.

Another point about hay fever pollens not generally known is that there are two types of ragweed: giant ragweed and lesser ragweed. The giant type, which grows 6 to 8 feet tall, is common in many waste places. This species gets most hay fever blame. Lesser ragweed is comparatively insignificant, usually reaching a height of 12 to 18 inches, but this small species is the most prolific producer of hay fever pollen. Many hay fever sufferers are allergic to lesser ragweed and not to the more common giant variety.

The thorobred horses on the Wheaton farm are of no help in eradicating hay fever plants. We watched several of them grazing in a pasture the other morning, and noticed that they sampled all the grass in the pasture, but carefully munched around the small ragweed, leaving it completely alone.

★ The GARDEN ★

IN FORMER years the farm gardener has successfully raised radishes, leaf lettuce, carrots, beets, cauliflower, tomatoes, and broccoli in the farm hotbed, which is 7 feet wide and 40 feet long. In small home frames the root crops and lettuce are best adapted for this type of planting.

Patch planting, rather than row planting, is recommended for hotbed gardens to increase the yield. For example, a solid patch of 4 square feet of leaf lettuce may be planted now—a similar patch in two to three weeks, to provide a succession harvest. Radishes also may be planted in small patches, with two to three plantings sufficient to continue the harvest until November. Beets and carrots should be planted in rows and thinned as in outdoor plantings.

The carrot rows may be as close as 5 inches, beet rows about 7 inches, leaving just enough space to use a hand cultivator.

Execution of a price administration order suspending Barney Kessel, owner of a steak house at 741 Randolph st., from serving meats or other rationed foods for the duration of rationing was stayed yesterday by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe pending Kessel's appeal to the OPA hearing administrator in Washington, D. C.

Atty. John F. Cusack said the OPA suspension placed Kessel in double jeopardy for failing to report that he had obtained 79,260 red ration points by selling cooking oils. He was fined $1,000 Aug. 7 by Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw for the violation, and the OPA suspension order was issued Aug. 14.

Judge Igoe also dismissed an OPA motion asking that Nick Klikas and Peter Milos, owners of the Halsted Packing house, 736 S. Halsted st., show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for violating an injunction.

Police said Mennella was accused of robberies by John Forrestal, 4127 Monroe st.; Thomas Van Bossen, 2116 S. Morgan st.; Edward Fetchark, 6438 S. Morgan st.; Melburne Lange, 5333 62d st.; Michael Walsh, 6189 Sangamon st.; Raymond Klarr, 6213 S. Laflin st., and Edwin Bell, Negro, 3715 S. State st. They said the robberies occurred in January and February.

URGES POSTING OF REWARD IN HOTEL BOMBING

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 22 [Special]—Police Chief Harry T. Everett today called on Louis C. Curl, owner of the Lincoln hotel, and two associates in his night life operations to offer a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of persons responsible for the bombing of the hotel yesterday.

Curl has insisted he has no information about the four bombings of his property—his home, hotel and night club—in the last five months. He was quoted as saying he "operated a horse wire at the hotel and took small bets there by telephone" but he doesn't know why he would be bombed.

There have been unconfirmed reports that a Michigan City, Ind., group has been trying to "muscle in" on gambling here.

MEAT SHORTAGE IN RESTAURANTS STILL PREVAILS

That blue plate special will continue to swim in vegetables with little, or no meat for the next couple of months, restaurateurs predicted here yesterday. Despite expected increases in meat supplies and red point ration loans, which have been authorized by the office of price administration until September, restaurant managers find themselves barely able to operate, let alone give the customer more meat for his money, they said.

Restaurant owners are being harder hit than during the course of the war, Irwin Kusswurm, legal advisor of the National Restaurant association, maintained. Allotment cuts, which ranged from 20 per cent to as high as 48 per cent for the July and August period, caused many restaurants to close their doors, he said.

Meat supplies are short now because of the two holidays last week, John Cutting of the American Meat institute pointed out. Little slaughtering was done due to peace celebrations, he said.

FIREMEN APPEAL FOR OUTSIDE AID ON PENSION FUND

Chicago business firms and individuals have been solicited for the first time in a half century for contributions to the Chicago Firemen's Benefit fund, Michael J. Corrigan, fire commissioner, said yesterday.

The fund hitherto has been maintained almost entirely by uniformed members of the department. It is used to provide protection for wives and families of firemen who meet death in the line of duty.

Corrigan said that the fund, which faces a threat to cash reserves in the event of multiple deaths resulting from a serious fire, needs $150,000. Part of it will be raised from the sale of tickets to a benefit baseball game between the Chicago and Milwaukee fire departments Wednesday in Wrigley field.

Contributions, Corrigan said, should be made payable to the Chicago Firemen's Benefit fund, and mailed to Room 105 in the city hall.

STOCKS MOUNT, BUT TRADING IS MUCH SMALLER

Rails and Mail Orders Lead Advance

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—The stock market advanced today, but turnover shrank so low that the comeback was unconvincing.

Rails, mail orders, aircrafts and assorted industrials with good peacetime prospects made the best showing. Gains of 1 to 3 points were well distributed at the close with several larger gains among transportation preferreds. Many pivotal issues, however, made little or no progress. Transfers were 760,000 shares compared with 1,160,000 yesterday and were the smallest since Aug. 8.

Traders More Hopeful

A little more hopefulness regarding reconversion, short-lived unemployment, the outlook for big postwar consumer spending, dividends, earnings and further easing of federal controls buoyed sentiment. Talk of heavy foreign demand for American goods aided individual favorites. Many customers, however, stood aside to await more definite trend indicators.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up 0.5 at 63.9, biggest advance since Aug. 9.

The Chesapeake & Ohio merger proposal for its subsidiaries lifted Nickel Plate preferred 6¾ and Pere Marquette senior stocks 2 to 5. Common stocks of both roads together with C. & O. lost ground.

RAIL BONDS STRONG

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—A strong recovery in secondary rails placed the bond market in substantially higher ground today. Advances among leaders ranged to 3 points. Industrials and utilities generally held steady. United States government issues declined. Total sales were $6,750,000, only a little better than half the $12,410,000 yesterday.

Leading the rally were obligations of the Baltimore & Ohio, Milwaukee, Rock Island, New Haven, Pere Marquette, Nickel Plate, New York Central, Chicago & Alton, St. Louis-San Francisco, Cotton Belt, International Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific.

CHICAGO LIST RISES

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover was 32,000 shares. Among the volume leaders were Consolidated Biscuit, up 1; La Salle Extension, up ¾; Miller and Hart, up ¼; Chicago corporation, up ⅛; and Commonwealth Edison, down ⅛.

PEACE HOLIDAYS SLASH ELECTRIC POWER OUTPUT

Factory and plant holidays throughout the country last week because of the war's end brought a drastic decline in electric power output, an Edison Electric institute report showed yesterday. National production in the week ended Aug. 18 dropped 11.5 per cent to 3,939,195,000 kilowatt hours from 4,451,076,000 a year ago.

Chicago area output of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies, excluding sales to other utilities decreased 15.2 per cent from a year ago to 160,791,000 kilowatt hours.

Edison Gen. Electric Plans Heater Output This Week

Electric water heaters this week will begin coming from Chicago plants of the Edison General Electric Appliance company for the first time since 1942, Ward R. Schafer, vice president, said yesterday. Electric ranges will follow about Sept. 1 and other appliances later in the month, Schafer said.

FAIRBANKS-MORSE

In view of the 30 million dollar decline in Fairbanks, Morse & Co.'s sales in the first half of 1945, what was the explanation for the very small decline in profit? What is the company's outlook?—K. G.

The decline in sales to $51,038,000 in the six months ended June 30 from $81,722,000 a year earlier was the result of cutbacks in war orders. Costs decreased $11,172,000, and provisions for federal taxes, renegotiation, and contingencies were reduced by $19,400,000. The $1,788,295 profit was only $67,711 less than a year ago and was equal to $2.98 a share on the 599,596 shares, compared with $3.10.

Because Fairbanks-Morse output for the navy was largely in its regular diesel engine and generating equipment lines, little reconversion is believed necessary. At their annual meeting in April, the stockholders were informed that the company's commercial business was running 40 per cent ahead of the best previous years.

Its pre-war products will be supplemented by diesel locomotives made by a division established last year. The company's line of pumps was broadened by the purchase late in 1944 of the Pomona pump division of Joseph Hendy Iron Works.

Subsequent to 1939 earnings have ranged from $4.47 to $4.87 a share. Earlier profits were: 1939, $4.12; 1938, 83 cents; 1937, $3.48; 1936, $3.81. Both in 1944 and 1943 dividends totaled $2.50, and $1.50 has been declared so far in 1945. The stock this year has sold at the highest levels since 1937.

FREEZE LIFTED ON SALARIES OF $5,000 OR MORE

Bigger Bonus, Fees Are Permitted

BY WILLIAM STRAND
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Wartime restrictions on salary increases in the $5,000 a year and higher brackets were lifted today by the internal revenue bureau. The action is a companion step to last week's order by President Truman removing controls on wages and salaries under $5,000 which are under jurisdiction of the war labor board.

The new ruling provides that the granting of raises cannot be used by employers as an excuse for breaking price ceilings or adding to the cost of commodities bought by the government. The effect will be to permit increases in salaries, bonuses, commissions, fees, incentive pay and other types of compensation, limited by existing price ceilings and employer profits.

Retroactive Raises

Under new regulations, it was explained, it also will be possible to grant retroactive salary increases which meet the treasury's condition. A spokesman for the salary stabilization unit said any agreed amount of back pay could be paid as a bonus with future increases added to regular pay checks.

Where employers already have on file applications for increases which are consistent with the new policy, the bureau statement announced, the employers may proceed at once to grant the increases without waiting for action on their applications. An increase consistent with the new policy also may be made by an employer who has heretofore received disapproval of an application filed under the old regulations, the bureau added.

The new regulations do not validate any illegal salary increases made in the past in contravention of the former policy, the statement asserted, adding that enforcement action will continue against past violators who may now be under inquiry.

Designed to Prevent Inflation

Today's order was issued by Joseph D. Numan Jr., commissioner of internal revenue. Under the war time salary limitations, designed to guard against inflation, the internal revenue bureau has authority thru its special salary stabilization unit over all salaries of $5,000 a year or more. It also controls any salaries of less than $5,000 where the compensation is paid to administrative, executive, or professional employes who are not represented by labor organizations.

Salaries in the latter category also are affected by the new regulations.

The stipulations under which any increases can be given were listed as follows:

1. The salary increases will not be used, in whole or in part, as the basis for seeking an increase in price ceilings.

Can't Boost Cost to U. S.

2. The salary increases will not be used, in whole or in part, for resisting otherwise justifiable reductions in price ceilings.

3. In the case of products or services being furnished under contract with a federal procurement agency, the salary increases will not increase the cost to the United States.

As long as these conditions are met, the bureau said, employers may proceed to grant salary increases without any application for approval. Otherwise, the employers must apply in the usual manner to a regional office of the salary stabilization unit, bureau of internal revenue.

Disclose DPC Gamble on Big Wooden Plane

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 22—Howard Hughes, the millionaire Texas oil man and close associate of New Dealers in Washington, obtained an 18 million dollar loan from the Defense Plant corporation to build his gigantic eight-motored experimental wooden seaplane at Culver City, Cal., it was disclosed here by American observers at the provisional international civil aviation conference.

This novel craft, with 320-foot plywood wings, a plywood fuselage 220 feet long, and a gross weight of 400,000 pounds attracted only "academic" interest of the army and navy, altho it was built in war time, they say. Just what put the DPC, an organization which was supposed to supply factories for war purposes, into the business of constructing an experimental aircraft that won't be able to fly for many months no one is able to say.

Hopes It Will Fly Next Year

Hughes is the principal owner of Transcontinental and Western Air, recently awarded permission to fly the North Atlantic route to Europe under circumstances which aroused protests in congress.

Hughes hopes to test fly the big ship, named the "Hercules," before next year. Pictures of its disassembled fuselage and wings were released recently. If it flies it will be the world's largest aircraft, powered by eight 2,000 horse power motors. Its laminated wood construction dispensed with many critical materials, altho other critical materials went into it, as well as the labor of thousands of workmen at a time when the west coast shipyards were crying for help to recommission damaged warships and freighters for military service.

The experimental venture started out under the joint management of Hughes and Henry J. Kaiser, shipbuilder, and the plane was known as the H-K 1. By the time pictures of it were released, however, the Hughes aircraft corporation, was given exclusive credit and it was dubbed the "Hercules."

Built on "Can't Lose" Basis

The ship was built in a DPC owned factory, formerly used to build a high-speed twin-engined army photo reconnaissance plane. No army or navy contracts were involved in its construction, it is said.

Hughes Engineering company is said to have collected fees from the DPC grant for its services in planning the plane. Hughes thus operated on a "can't lose" basis. If the plane fails, the government owns it. If it is a success, being unique and something of a "white elephant" in size, it probably can be purchased by Hughes or others interested for a fraction of its cost.

Whatever its fate, the experience gained in proving or disproving its design will give incalculable aid in the manufacture of large aircraft to the company manufacturing it, which is the Hughes' Aircraft corporation.

WESTERN AIR'S REVENUES AND PROFITS MOUNT

Revenue of Western Air Lines and its subsidiary, Inland Air Lines, increased 120 per cent in the first half of this year over the corresponding period of 1944, William A. Coulter, president, said yesterday. Consolidated net income was $266,350, or 65 cents a share, compared with $43,233, or 10 cents a share, a year ago.

Coulter said that the combination of a 15 cents a mile decrease in operating expenses and an increase of 131 per cent in revenue miles flown largely accounted for the profit gain.

Western Air's contract service for the air transport command in Canada and Alaska terminates Sept. 1, but it has route applications before the civil aeronautics board for regularly scheduled passenger flights to Alaska, as well as Chicago, Minneapolis, Minn., Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash.

SLOW IMPROVEMENT IN SUGAR FORECAST—MAYBE BY NEXT YEAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22 (AP)—Slow improvement in the American sugar supply, tho vague as to the time, was indicated today by statements of several authorities. They agreed that no marked increase in rations is in sight for the remainder of this year. The developments:

1. Price Administrator Bowles said controls on sugar, fats, and oils would be the last to be dropped. It was learned that OPA plans to announce shortly that the new sugar stamp valid Sept. 1 will maintain the current ration—five pounds for four months.

2. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson predicted more sugar for 1946 from increased Cuban cane and domestic sugar beet production.

3. The bureau of agricultural economics expressed belief that several years may pass before the world gets all the sugar it wants.

4. Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] advocated a $15 per ton incentive to beet sugar producers to increase that supply.

TAX CUT URGED BY SMALL FIRMS AS WAY TO JOBS

De Witt Emery, president of the National Small Business Men's association, yesterday telegraphed President Truman urging an immediate "revision of taxes" as the best means of providing the "greatest number of jobs."

"Thousands upon thousands of new businesses will be started just as soon as there is a fair chance to earn and keep a reasonable profit," Emery said. "Also, the expansion plans of other thousands of small businesses are held in abeyance waiting for the green light.

"It should not be overlooked that small business provides a majority of the jobs in the United States."

U. S. Worker Fence-Sitter, Says Harbison

"American workers are fence-sitters content to let management and unions vie for their support," Prof. Frederick H. Harbison, University of Chicago economist and executive secretary of its industrial relations center, asserted last night in a lecture at the university.

He said the antagonism so prevalent in labor-management relations was caused mainly by competition for the allegiance of workers. All opinion polls indicate that workers will adhere to either unions or management, depending on which can raise wages or increase job security, he asserted.

Seek Tangible Benefits

Prof. Harbison said the "vast majority of union members are 'pork-choppers' interested only in immediate tangible benefits that the union may be able to obtain for them in payment of their dues dollars." If management delivers "the pork chops" without union pressure, workers will feel no compunction in shifting their allegiance to the company, he said.

He predicted that the power and prestige of organized labor would not diminish appreciably in the reconversion and post-war periods as it did after World war I., because unionization today has not been limited to a few crafts and industries as then. The growth of coöperative labor-management relations, altho already on the way, "will be a slow process."

Political Swing Perilous

He warned that collaboration of unions and management could result in monopolistic arrangements, and charged that in some cases collective bargaining and union-management coöperation have "degenerated into collective collusion." He advocated an anti-trust policy that would apply to labor organizations as well as to business enterprise.

Entry of unions into fields of political action broadens the potential competition for the allegiance of job-conscious workers. This new problem "transcends the boundaries of labor economics and human relations and could create industrial havoc," he asserted, because of the diverse functional as well as geographical interests that must be harmonized.

PRICE SUPPORT OUTLOOK SENDS GRAINS HIGHER

Grain markets turned higher yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat rose ⅞ to 1 cent a bushel, corn ⅞ to 1⅛, oats ⅝ to 1, rye 1¼ to 2½, and barley ⅛ to 1 cent.

Announcement that the Commodity Credit corporation would ask congress for more money to support the grain and other commodity markets, plans for a 6 billion dollar loan to European countries to offset the elimination of lend-lease, and removal of hedges against sales of cash wheat to the government provided the background for the buying.

Short covering in wheat was accelerated when the French minister of agriculture said France would soon import 13 million bushels of wheat monthly from the United States and Canada. Statisticians said such imports would be the largest on record for France. Normally French wheat production is about equal to domestic requirements.

CHICAGO AREA OUTPUT NEARLY TREBLED IN WAR

Plant Investments Raised 45 Pct.

The Chicago area almost trebled its industrial production during the war, compared with 1939 output, on a 45 per cent increase in the dollar value of its plant facilities, the Chicago Association of Commerce said yesterday. The area's industrial production was valued at 4 billion 300 million dollars in 1939. It rose to 11 billion 900 millions in 1944 and when Japan asked for peace it was at an annual rate of 11 billion 100 millions.

The area's vast contribution to war production was disclosed in preliminary findings of an analysis of the war effects upon Chicago's ability to produce. The analysis is part of a study of wartime economic changes in the area and their post-war implications made jointly by the association, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and the Chicago committee of the Committee for Economic Development.

Electrical Upturn Largest

The largest gain was made by the electrical machinery industry, which includes electronics. When Japan accepted surrender terms, the industry was producing at an annual rate of 1 billion 600 millions, compared with 269 millions in 1939. Second was the manufacture of transportation equipment which rose to 1 billion 350 millions from 137 millions. This increase was accounted for largely by development of the area's new industry making aviation engines and parts and equipment.

The food industry was third, rising to an annual production rate of 1 billion 800 millions from 931 millions in 1939. Next was ordnance manufacture which rose from virtually nothing in 1939 to 850 millions when the Japs quit. Iron and steel production rose to 1 billion 700 million dollars from 917 millions. Non-electrical machinery advanced to 900 millions from 277 millions.

The increase in value of Chicago area plants resulted from an investment of 1 billion 300 millions, of which 36 per cent was spent on new buildings and additions to existing structures and the remainder represented the cost of machinery and equipment. The federal government provided 75 per cent of the cost and private industry the other 25 per cent.

Biggest Gain for Any Area

The largest investments in plant made since 1940 were in the following industries: Transportation equipment, 450 millions; iron and steel, 350 millions; ordnance, 175 millions; chemicals and chemical products, 110 millions; non-ferrous metals and products, 95 millions, and nonelectrical machinery, 60 millions.

The investment in new plant and facilities made in the Chicago area exceeded that in any other industrial area in the nation and exceeded that in 42 of the 48 states. However, on a basis of the new additions the Chicago area's facilities now account for only 7.2 per cent of the nation's aggregate industrial plant, compared with 7.7 per cent in 1939.

CHICAGO FIRM TO SELL WASHER UNITS SHORTLY

Modern Maid company, Chicago, plans to market 250,000 electric dish and clothes washing machines in the next 12 months, Mrs. Charlotta Carr, president, announced yesterday at a luncheon in the La Salle hotel.

She said the machines would be manufactured for Modern Maid at a cost of 16 million dollars by the Empire Ordnance company, New York City, in a plant in Philadelphia, Pa., formerly used for war production. The first machines will be delivered about Nov. 1. No prices were announced.

Egg Futures Fall Limit on Army Buying Cut Plan

Prices of egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange declined 1 to 2 cents a dozen yesterday on reports the army would curtail its purchases within the next two weeks. The December future closed off the permissible limit of 2 cents a dozen from Tuesday's close.

E-Bond Redemptions Heavy Drain on Treasury's Receipts

Redemption of series E war bonds, which are being cashed at an average monthly rate of nearly 350 million dollars, not only makes large demands on the treasury's current receipts but involves substantial cost for compensating banks which act as paying agents, inquiry disclosed yesterday. The treasury has not made public the amount of such payments to banks but it is estimated that they may approximate 1½ million dollars monthly.

The treasury's tabulation of E bond sales from 1941 thru last May shows a total of 33 billion 906 million dollars—at issue price. The amount outstanding May 31 was $27,948,500,000, also at the purchase price. The remainder had been cashed in advance of maturity, which is 10 years from date of issue. The issue price is 75 per cent of the maturity value. The total sold thru May includes only a portion of the 3 billion, 976 million of E bonds placed during the 7th war loan drive.

Redemptions Mount

In some recent months, redemptions have exceeded 50 per cent of sales. Since last October, when the plan of compensation to commercial banks was placed in effect, up to May 31, the total redemptions of $2,781,600,000 were equal to 38 per cent of current sales. The redemption rate rose after the bank payment plan was adopted. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1944, it was 17.7 per cent of the year's sales.

The banks are compensated quarterly for redeeming the E bonds and the earlier series of A to D savings bonds, at the rate of 15 cents each for the first thousand bonds cashed and 10 cents each for all above 1,000 regardless of denomination. A small percentage of redemptions is made thru federal reserve banks without specific compensation and by the treasury direct.

Portion of Small Bonds Big

More than 70 per cent of E bonds sold in 1944 and subsequently are in $25, $50, and $100 denominations, with the $25 unit usually accounting for 35 to more than 40 per cent. Altho the information was not available, the small denomination bonds presumably make up a higher proportion of total redemptions.

It can be assumed that bank redemptions of these bonds costing $18.75, $37.50, and $75, make up about 43, 19, and 23 per cent of the total cashed. On this basis, with monthly redemptions averaging about $347,700,000, the certificates redeemed would total about 10,801,880 a month. At an average compensation of 13 cents each, the banks would receive $1,404,244, without considering bonds of $500 and $1,000 denominations.

Report Kaiser, Frazer Seek Bomber Plant

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 22 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] disclosed today that the Kaiser-Frazer company, owned jointly by Henry J. Kaiser and the Graham-Paige corporation, is "officially negotiating a lease" on the 96 million dollar Willow Run bomber plant. The senator said the plant would be used in the manufacture of two automobiles—the Kaiser and Frazer—and farm machinery.

The firm made an offer to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He added: "It looks like it will go thru."

Graham-Paige directors are to consider the proposed terms of the lease at a meeting Aug. 29, Ferguson declined to disclose the terms, but said the lease would be for five years.

The surplus property board and the RFC must approve any lease, according to Ferguson. He said no other offers had been made for the plant and added, "it was mutually understood the company and the government want to go thru with the deal."

Air Associates declared an extra disbursement of 20 cents a share and the quarterly dividend of 20 cents.

Lane Bryant voted a dividend of 25 cents a share on the new common stock which resulted from the recent two-for-one splitup. The company had been paying 25 cents quarterly on the old common plus year-end extras in May, including $1 this year.

MATERIAL CURB EASING TO AID USER OF STEEL

Makers Pleased by WPB Action

Easing of materials controls by the war production board yesterday will help substantially in getting steel to manufacturers of civilian goods, Chicago steel industry spokesmen said. They contended that earlier Washington announcements that industry had "the green light to go ahead" actually meant nothing while such restrictions as the controled material plan [CMP] were in effect.

Elimination of the more stringent controls as the CMP and the AA priorities and their substitution with more moderate controls, effective Oct. 1, will give the steel companies more latitude in shipping steel to consumers. However, one action of the WPB in practically suspending all controls during September will mean little, it was said, because earlier commitments will channel all steel produced during the month to the earlier buyers.

Sales Offices Busy

The sales departments of steel companies have large numbers of order cancellations from war plants to be processed. At the same time they must handle large numbers of orders and inquiries for steel from manufacturers of civilian products which cannot be taken care of until the full extent of the war cancellations is weighed. It is hoped that the situation may be clearer by the end of this week.

Some steel company executives doubt that the industry will be able to satisfy the demands of all their customers for some time. Once they get rolling on civilian steel, mills will produce at near capacity for many months, they said. This will mean steady jobs for thousands of steel workers.

The mills have been rolling and shipping alloy steels and sheets to some consumers, but in moderate amounts pending the clarification of war cancellations.

Large orders are being placed for sheets and bars needed in large amounts by the automobile, agricultural implement, and other industries. Shapes, such as angle bars, also are being ordered in large quantities.

Price Issue Troublesome

Besides the automotive and agricultural implement industries the container, railroad equipment, and construction industries are among the steel companies' best customers. Orders are expected to increase from these groups during the next few months.

Steel company executives said they are faced with the same disturbed price situation of which all other industries are complaining. They do not know the ultimate prices at which they must produce. Orders are taken at prices in effect at the time of shipment.

DISSOLVE CITY'S OCD; CUT OPA PERSONNEL 600

ODT Announces Plans to Close Area Offices

Two war agencies in Chicago felt the effect of the war's end yesterday. Approximately 600 employes of the office of price administration in this region received 30 day notices of dismissal. Steps were taken to dissolve the Chicago War Service corps, successor to the defunct Chicago office of civiliar defense.

The OPA dismissals represent about 7 per cent of the 8,548 employes in the region, covering several states, and including 1,800 in Chicago. Further cuts may be expected, Rae E. Walters, regional administrator, said just before departing for Washington to discuss future reductions and price control policies.

Stiffer Prosecutions Ahead

Walters warned, however, that violators of price controls will face even stiffer prosecutions than before, and that large staffs to enforce these controls may be necessary. He added that between 15,000 and 18,000 voluntary workers are expected to remain on the job for that and other work.

End of the Chicago War Service corps, which, as the local OCD, had cost taxpayers upward of $1,000,000, was pronounced by Mayor Kelly at a meeting with 15 key figures in the Palmer House. The local OCD officially expired June 30 when President Truman abolished the national OCD, but the Chicago boys demurred. Hence the birth of the corps which essayed to operate in all but name as the old OCD.

Chief Work to Continue

It was agreed that before formal expiration of the local OCD, some plans should be made to continue its principal work—loan drives and canteen services—thru other agencies. This will be done in the next two or three weeks, said Ralph H. Burke, vice chairman, after which the corps will be out of existence.

Its OCD predecessor had as many as 600,000 members—perhaps more—during its heyday. Part of its $1,000,000 cost was charged against the "lending" of city, park and school employes to the OCD with salaries being paid by those departments. In addition the city council allotted grants. The appropriation for 1945 was $197,000, but ending of the war has reduced actual expenditures to $71,000 thus far.

ODT to Close Offices

In addition to the OPA and OCD declines, the regional office of defense transportation likewise announced planned reductions. Harry L. Gormley, regional director, said seven district and three field offices will be closed Sept. 22. District offices to be affected are at Green Bay and La Crosse, Wis.; Peoria, Ill.; Escanaba, Mich.; Davenport and Sioux City, Ia., and North Platte, Neb. Field offices are at Cairo, Ill.; Bismarck, N. D., and Pierre, S. D.

Gormley said personnel cuts will be made at the Duluth, Minn., district office and the Madison, Wis., field office, but that both offices will remain open. Within the last few weeks, he said, 193 ODT employes in the regional eight states have resigned or been let out.

Exhibit in River

The battle scarred LST-512, veteran of the Normandy invasion, will be opened to the public Sept. 2 when it ties up in Chicago river near the Michigan av. bridge. The ship, manned by more than 200 combat veterans of the navy, coast guard, and marine corps, carries more than 2 million dollars worth of exhibit materials.

Its three decks are packed with assault equipment and many Pacific exhibits never before viewed in Chicago. The show is expected to reveal for the first time to many Chicagoans the weapons, assault equipment, and other material used in the Pacific war.

The LST-512 was launched at Seneca, La Salle county, in January, 1944. She took troops, tanks, and supplies onto the Normandy beachhead on D-day and made 20 additional runs to France.

OFFICIAL HAILS CHICAGO'S LEAD IN JOB FAIRNESS

Thomas H. Wright, director of the mayor's committee on race relations, yesterday commended the city council's adoption on Tuesday of a fair employment practice ordinance.

"Once again Chicago has taken the lead in the nation in eliminating discriminatory practices in employment, both as to the city itself and the community at large," he said. The ordinance makes it a misdemeanor for an employer or union to refuse to accept any person because of race, creed, color, or national origin.

Ira Latimer, executive director of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee, which drafted and introduced the ordinance, asserted that its passage was of "the greatest importance" because of the multi-million dollar public works projects to be undertaken now that the war is ended.

VETERAN FOUND HANGED

Eugene Crawford, 36, of 3559 Vernon av., a discharged Negro soldier, was found hanged in the garage behind his home early yesterday. A note beside the body indicated he took his own life, police said.

PEER GETS TOO MUCH MEAT, SO COOK PAYS FINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 22—A British peer today escaped a court penalty for consuming more than his rationed allotment of meat but his cook was fined $85 for getting it for him. His butcher was fined $150 for providing the excess quantities. Six summonses against the peer, Lord Southwood, who is also known as Julius Salter Elias, publisher of the Labor party organ, Daily Herald, were dismissed and Southwood was placed on probation after a court at Highgate found he was ignorant of the goings on for a year during which the household got rations for seven persons instead of the six to which it was entitled.

HOME CONSTRUCTION

The lumber division of the WPB gave a green light to the resumption of home building, banned since before the start of the war except for government housing projects, by announcing immediate removal of all lumber controls except those necessary to fill priority orders.

WPB Chief of Staff John W. Small said he hoped remaining controls could be removed by Oct. 1. This would mean the scrapping at that time of WPB's broad construction order L-41, a step which the United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, and five other national industrial organizations today recommended be taken immediately.

Large supplies of lumber have been released by military cutbacks, it was said, but it was estimated supplies will be "tight" for 30 to 60 days while yards whose stocks are now virtually depleted are building up supplies.

TIRES

Unofficial predictions of an end to tire rationing in two or three months were bolstered by a WPB forecast of doubled tire production in the October-December quarter. This would mean 4 million tires a month, it was said.

TRUCK TRANSPORTATION

The ODT did away with orders requiring truck operators to file various reports with the agency and canceled an order empowering its regional and district offices to requisition used trucks.

SHOES

Predictions that an end of shoe rationing is in sight were supported by an announcement in New York that civilian leather shoe production may exceed 30 million pairs a month for the rest of the year, the highest level ever reached by the industry. The sole leather bureau of the Tanners Council of America was authority for this report.

GAS AND OIL SUBSIDIES

The Reconstruction Finance corporation announced curtailment of the federal subsidy on oil and gasoline, and said it would soon be entirely halted.
